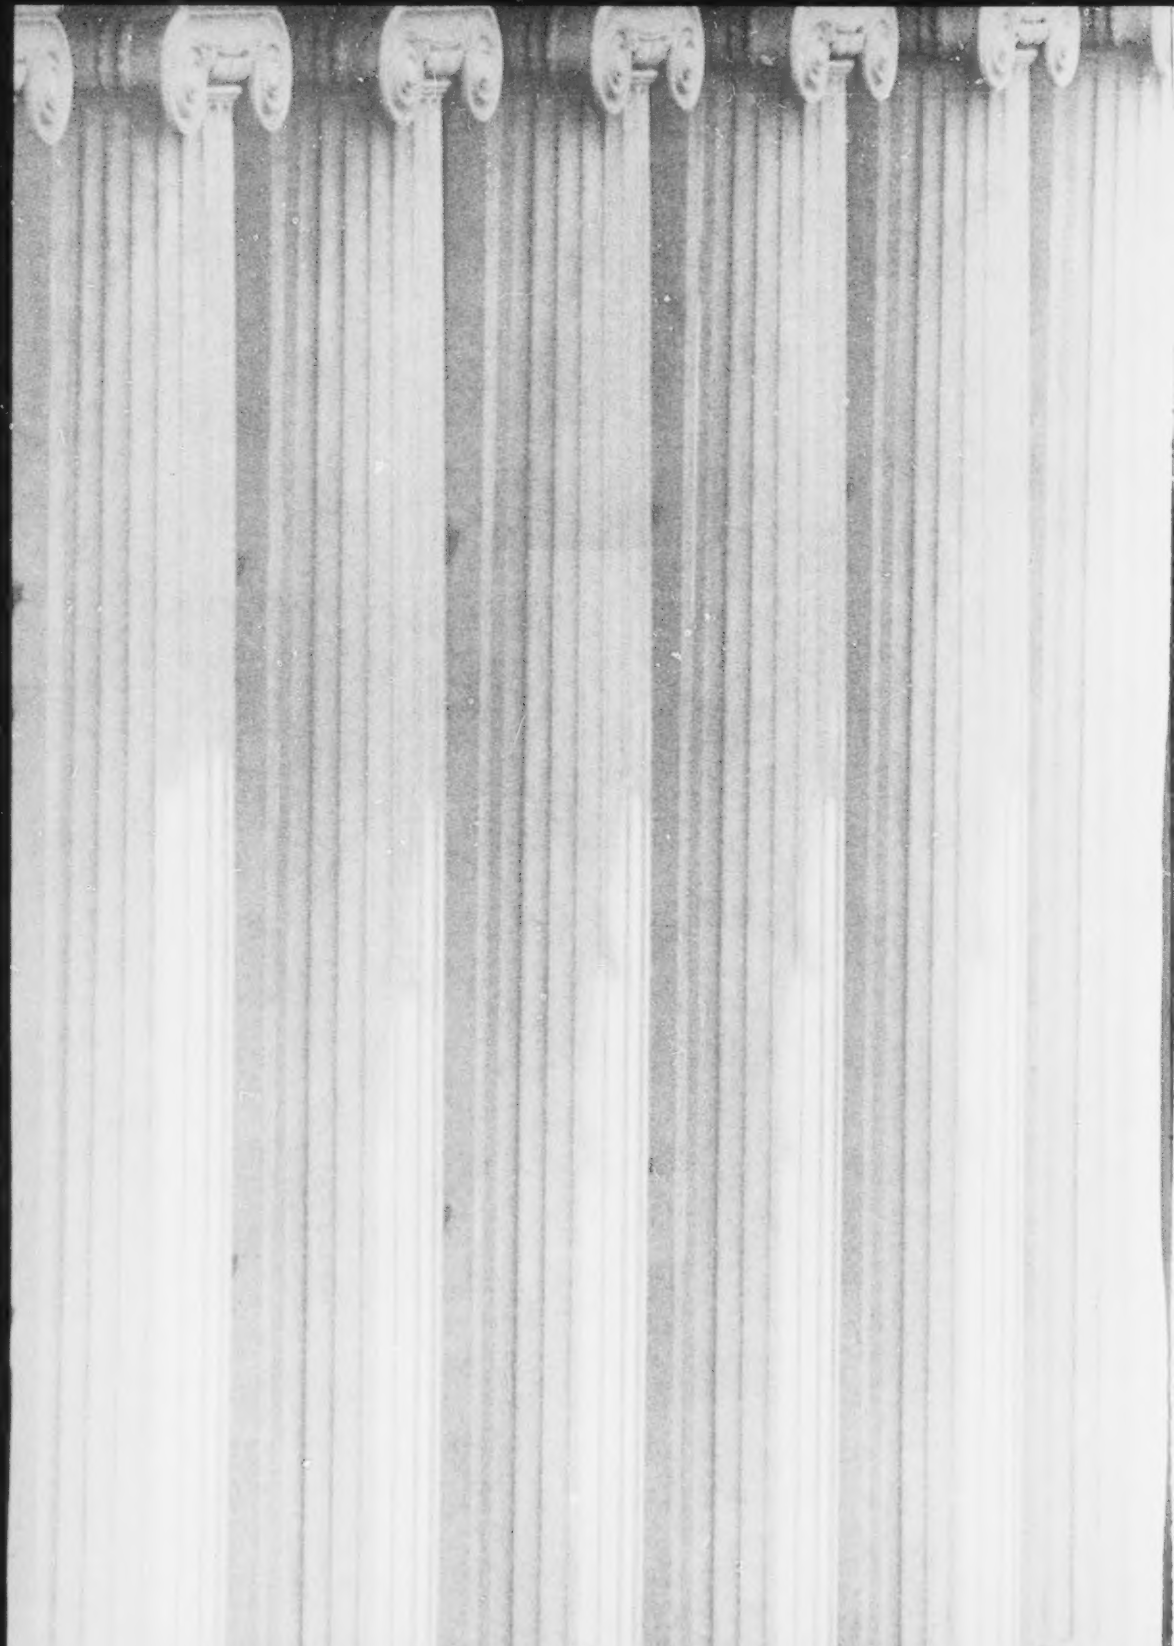
State of the Judiciary Message



STATE OF THE JUDICIARY MESSAGE

Each year as I prepare for the presentation of my remarks on the State of the Judiciary, I gain a new sense of enthusiasm. This enthusiasm is fueled by both the pride I have in the accomplishments of the past year and the anticipation I feel for the challenges which await us in the coming twelve months. By reflecting on the activities of the judicial system since our last conference and by sharing with you my thoughts on our future direction, I hope not only to describe the state of the judiciary but also to renew your spirit and to enlist your support in making necessary improvements to the system.

Clearly, the highlight of the past year was the emergence of the Court of Appeals as a full-fledged member of the judicial family of Virginia. Meeting in special session on December 17, 1984, the General Assembly elected ten judges to the newly created court. The inaugural session of the court was held in Richmond on January 4, 1985. That day signified not only the culmination of years of effort to expand the appellate capacity of our state, but it also marked the beginning of a new era for the Virginia judicial system. The institution of this court should provide increased appellate opportunity for litigants and allow the Supreme Court more time to develop the common law. Greater development of the law will improve the practice of law, elevate judicial performance, and ultimately enhance public confidence in the legal system. I know that each of you joins me in extending best wishes to all the judges of this new court as they begin their important mission.

In another significant event, the advisory committee studying the adjudication of family law matters in Virginia's courts submitted its final report to the Judicial Council. This report concludes a year's study by numerous judges, lawyers, and clerks concerning the overlapping jurisdiction of, and division of responsibility between, the circuit and juvenile and domestic relations district courts in regard to domestic relations matters. The most serious problem identified by the advisory committee is the emotional damage inflicted on children and parents by the uncertainty inherent in the present system. The committee concluded that the de novo appeals process contributes to this emotional damage by permitting multiple hearings in several courts. The lack of stability and continuity of relationships for the children involved can exist for years under the current structure. The advisory committee has recommended the abolition of the juvenile and domestic relations district court and the creation of a family law division of the circuit court. The Judicial Council distributed copies of this report to all judges and clerks for their comment, and you will have several hours on your program at this Conference for discussion of this important issue. Hopefully, after everyone involved has had an opportunity to study and comment on the proposal, Judicial Council will be able to formulate a course of action which will address problems raised by this overlapping jurisdiction.

In addition to the Family Court Study, the Judicial Council has recently commissioned a review of the trial de novo concept in Virginia. As noted, this review stems, in part, from information gathered during the Family Court Study; the advisory committee concluded that the negative aspects of trial de novo also reach into general district courts. Similar concerns were expressed by the National Center for State Courts in its 1979 study of the Virginia court system. Based on these concerns, an advisory committee of judges, lawyers, and clerks has been formed to analyze and report on problems resulting from application of the trial de novo concept in Virginia's general district courts. This report will be available to the Judicial Council in October. The Council will distribute copies of the report to the entire judiciary for review and comment prior to taking any action.

In January of this year, following several years of study, the Judicial Council adopted Standards Relating to Juror Use and Management in Virginia. These standards address every aspect of jury selection and service, ranging from identifying prospective jurors and accurately predicting the court's need for jurors to providing adequate and comfortable facilities during jury service. The goal of these jury standards is to increase the overall efficiency of jury operations while reducing costs and improving attitudes of citizens about jury duty. The fulfillment of these standards is something which should be addressed by each circuit court, and I encourage each of you to work with the appropriate administrative officials on the local level to review and to implement the standards.

Pursuant to authorization by the 1984 General Assembly, the Supreme Court of Virginia has formed a committee on rules of evidence. Consisting of distinguished judges and lawyers, this committee is charged with the responsibility of formulating by September 1, 1985, recommendations for a Code of Evidence for Virginia. The Supreme Court has already received drafts of several proposed rules. Once the Court has received the final work of this committee, a tentative draft will be circulated to the bench and bar for comment. After receiving comments, the Court will determine whether to recommend to the General Assembly a specific Code of Evidence for adoption. While this process is difficult and time consuming, hopefully the end product will improve the practice of law in Virginia and increase fairness in our courts.

As you know, the issue of sentencing disparity has been discussed for many years. In response to that debate and the recommendations of the Governor's Task Force on Sentencing, this Conference recently conducted six regional seminars on sentencing guidelines. After completion of these seminars, the Executive Committee of this Conference voted to form an ad hoc committee to study and produce a proposal for voluntary sentencing guidelines. This committee will not actually produce the guidelines but will develop a methodology for their formulation. Its proposal will then be made available to all members of the Judicial Conference for consideration. At that time, should the Conference choose to endorse any type of sentencing guidelines, we would proceed with their implementation. I expect that the work of this committee will be completed during the summer months and that further reports will be made available to you through your regional seminars.

Indicative of the national attention being given to families in general, and children in particular, the past year has seen much activity in the family law area. As you know, Congress passed the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984, which led to the Virginia General Assembly's adoption of legislation transferring child support enforcement from the courts to the Executive Branch. Effective October 1, 1985, the Division of Support Enforcement of the Department of Social Services will assume responsibility for the collection of support payments. This policy shift will have a significant impact on our juvenile and domestic relations district courts in that clerks will not be permitted to collect and disburse support payments after October 1, 1985. Payments will have to be made either between the parties or through the Department of Social Services in both current and future cases. In that regard, courts will have to take greater care to insure that support orders include the required specified information. Hopefully, these steps will lead to closer monitoring of support payments and to greater enforcement of court orders.

Last year, I reported that the Hearst Survey revealed a majority of our citizens are grossly uninformed about the court system. While this problem continues to plague us, action has been taken to address these concerns. During last fall, law-related education materials, consisting of supplemental texts on the court system for social studies teachers, were distributed to grades K through 12 throughout Virginia's school system. These materials should enable our teachers to better equip school children with knowledge of how our legal system operates. In addition, the Judicial Council has prepared and distributed Public Information Goals and Objectives for the Virginia judicial system. These goals and objectives establish numerous tasks to be accomplished at both the state and local level in order to do a better job of educating the public about the judicial system. These tasks indicate an affirmative attempt by the judicial system to improve the public's understanding of the courts and hopefully its confidence in the system. I trust you will review and implement the suggestions made in the Judicial Council's publication.

Various committees of this Conference have been active during the past year and I especially want to recognize the combined efforts of the Judicial Administration and Judicial Education Committees in undertaking work on a Circuit Court Judges Benchbook. You will hear more about the materials contained in the benchbook later during this Conference, but the Benchbook, when completed, should assist all judges in better discharging their duties.

A review of the past year would be incomplete without mention of two points which specifically deal with both circuit and district judges. The past year has seen thirty lawyers come to the bench for the first time. This represents a turnover in our judiciary of approximately ten percent in one year. The addition of this large number of new judges reminds us that we should constantly give our attention to ways to attract qualified lawyers to the bench. The 1985 General Assembly has made a tangible commitment to the maintenance of a strong judicial system by granting a nine percent increase in judicial salaries, effective July 1. We applaud this recognition of the fact that the judicial compensation package is the single most important item in attracting qualified lawyers to the bench. While I continue to be encouraged by the improvements in judicial salaries, I am dispirited by current efforts in the General Assembly to reduce retirement benefits for judges. As the House Appropriations Committee conducts its study of the judicial retirement system, I hope that we will be able to demonstrate that existing retirement benefits are absolutely necessary if we are to maintain a qualified judiciary. I seek your support in making this point clear to all legislators.

On a related point, I must report to you with regret that the concept of merit selection of judges is no closer to reality than it was when I addressed you from this podium last year. I remain convinced of its worth, however, and I shall take advantage of every opportunity to advance its cause as an appropriate means of insuring the continued high quality of the Virginia judiciary.

To determine those areas of the judicial system which need improvement, it is best to go directly to the participants in the system. For the past several years, as a part of our planning process, we have conducted surveys of judges, clerks, magistrates, members of the bar, and lay citizens. In order that we might chart a course for future action, I want to share some of the results of this year's survey with you.

In the realm of the public's image of the judiciary, nearly 75 percent of all respondents characterize Virginians' knowledge about the court system as uninformed. Among citizen respondents, less than 10 percent feel that Virginians are informed about the basic structures, procedures, and services of the courts. Citizens mention numerous issues which are misunderstood, including constitutional rights, plea bargaining, sentencing, continuances, and the degree to which court personnel may assist the public with cases. What should be done to address these deficiencies? The responses most often given suggest the development of professional slide presentations or public service announcements on the functions and services of the courts. In addition, expansion of court docent programs and formation of Bench/Bar/Citizen Conferences on the judiciary are advocated to increase understanding of the courts. As I mentioned earlier, all of us at both the state and local levels must concentrate on ways to better educate the public on the judicial system.

Next, we sought to determine what services should be offered to citizens who utilize the courts. Perhaps as a result of legislative initiatives as well as increased media coverage regarding treatment of victims and witnesses by the legal system, participants suggest that handbooks should be prepared for victims and witnesses explaining their role in the judicial process and that there should be additional funding to compensate victims for their injuries or losses. Also, it is significant to note that most of the responses to this inquiry list creation of mediation and arbitration services for certain types of cases as a needed improvement in the court system.

Another major topic addressed in the planning survey relates to the pace of litigation.

While sixty percent of respondents express satisfaction with the speed of litigation, increasing interest is expressed in developing case management techniques and procedures to improve the pace and efficiency of litigation. Suggestions include streamlining discovery, making continuances more difficult to obtain, expanding pretrial conferences, and modernizing scheduling procedures. The institution of time standards for case processing is also seen as an appropriate way to reduce delay and expense in litigation. Each judge must be willing to reevaluate every custom, every procedure, not just for the sake of change but to see if there can be legitimate improvements in the speed and cost of litigation.

Of particular importance in the development of long-range planning for the judicial system is the response to an inquiry which asked what issues should be recognized and addressed by policy-making bodies, judges, and court personnel within the judicial branch. Citizens appear to be most concerned about attracting qualified lawyers to the bench, eliminating delays in litigation, and improving public access to the courts. While current projects are underway to address each of these concerns, both the Judicial Council and the committees of this conference should note these issues and seek to identify new initiatives to remedy them.

As was the case in 1982, when asked what one concrete change in the operation of the judicial system should be implemented today, the largest number of respondents mentioned creation of a family court. Also listed in the top responses were abolition of trial de novo, elimination of jury sentencing, and creation of a statewide public defender system. When asked what long-term problems should be addressed, respondents listed the desire for greater access to the Supreme Court, development of alternative forms of dispute resolution, and the need to increase resources, particularly technological, in order to process the high volume of litigation.

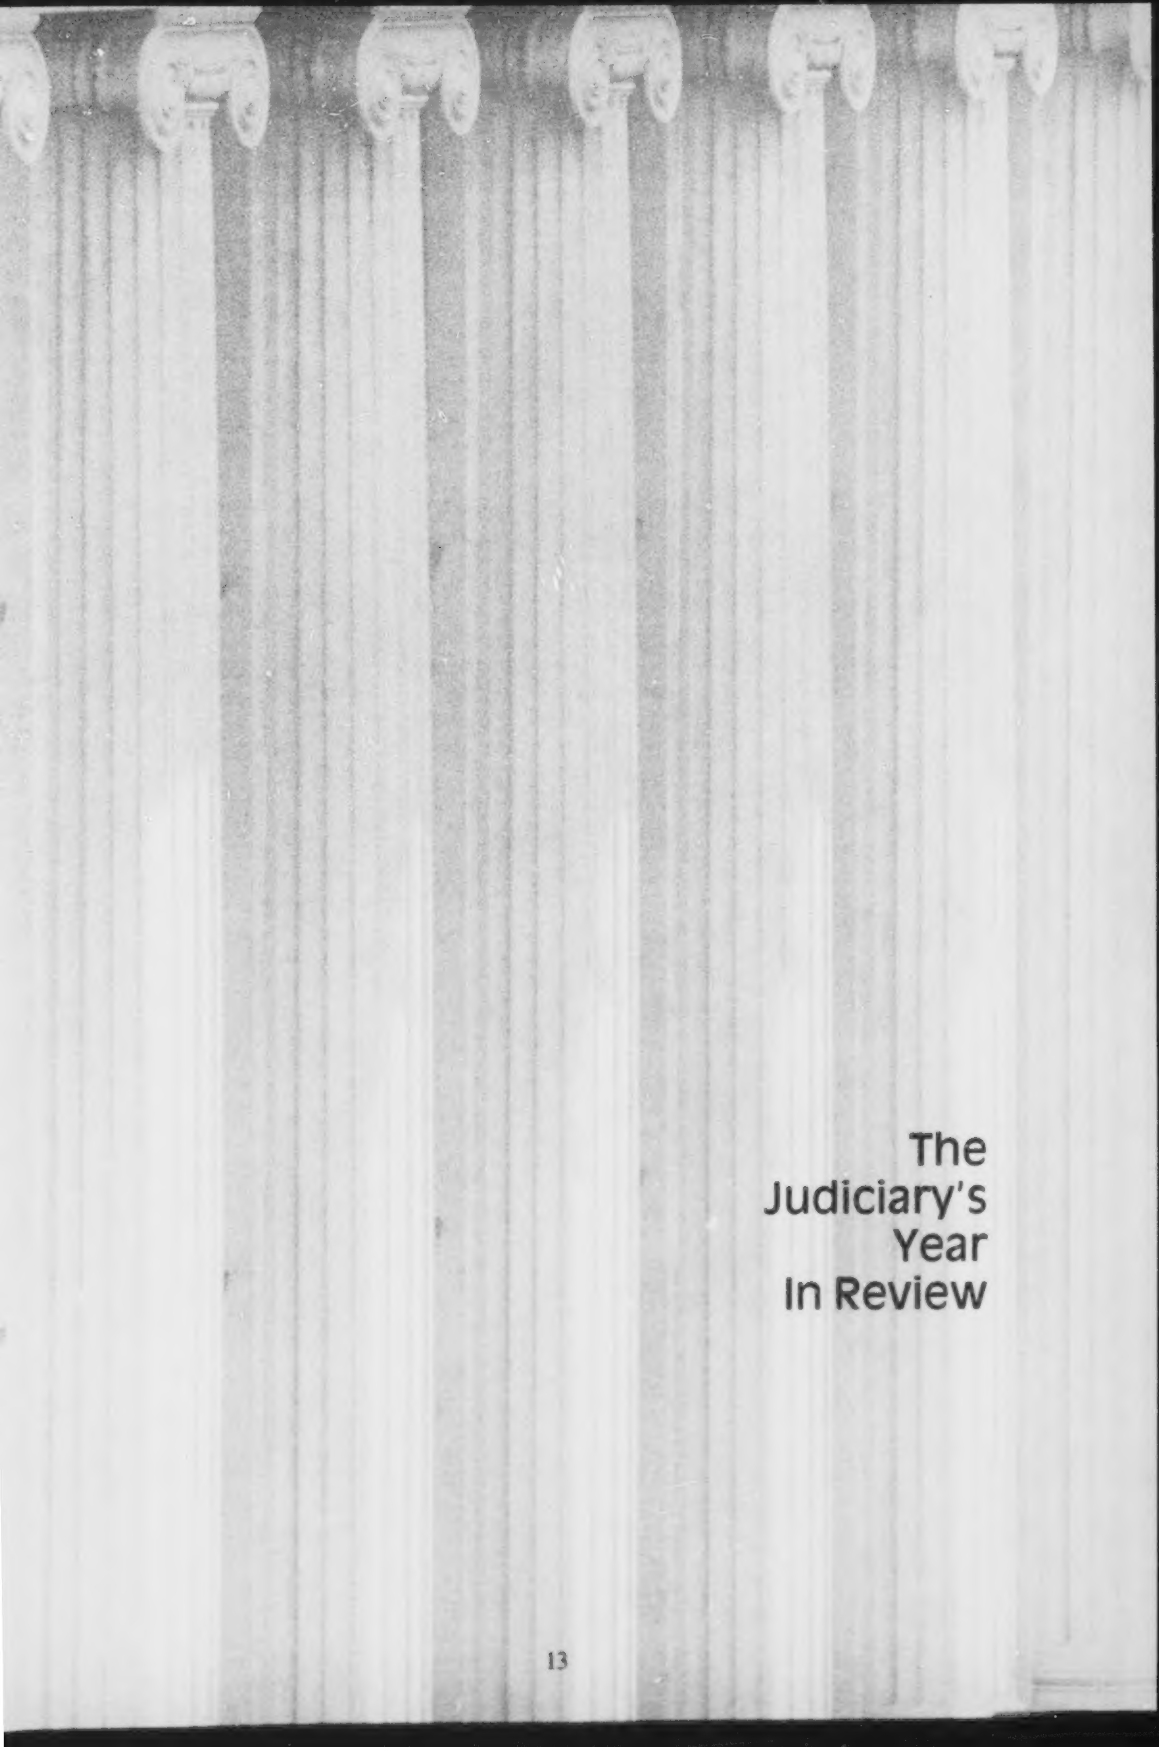
I cannot conclude this brief glance at the future direction of the court system without touching on the entire area of technology. In order to imagine what technology will be available in the next ten years, one need only review how far we have come in the last ten years. It is almost incomprehensible for the average person to envision the strides which are expected in this area during the next decade. In the past, the judiciary has lagged behind private enterprise and indeed the remainder of society in application of technology. The workload will not allow us to make the same mistake in the future. Proper exercise of the trust given us by the citizens will not allow it. We who manage the system cannot tolerate it.

Technology requires us to exercise fertile and vivid imaginations. We must scrutinize every facet of court operation to determine how technology may assist us in doing a better job. We truly live in an age in which we can achieve most anything our minds can perceive. And members of the judiciary must be leaders in both perception and achievement.

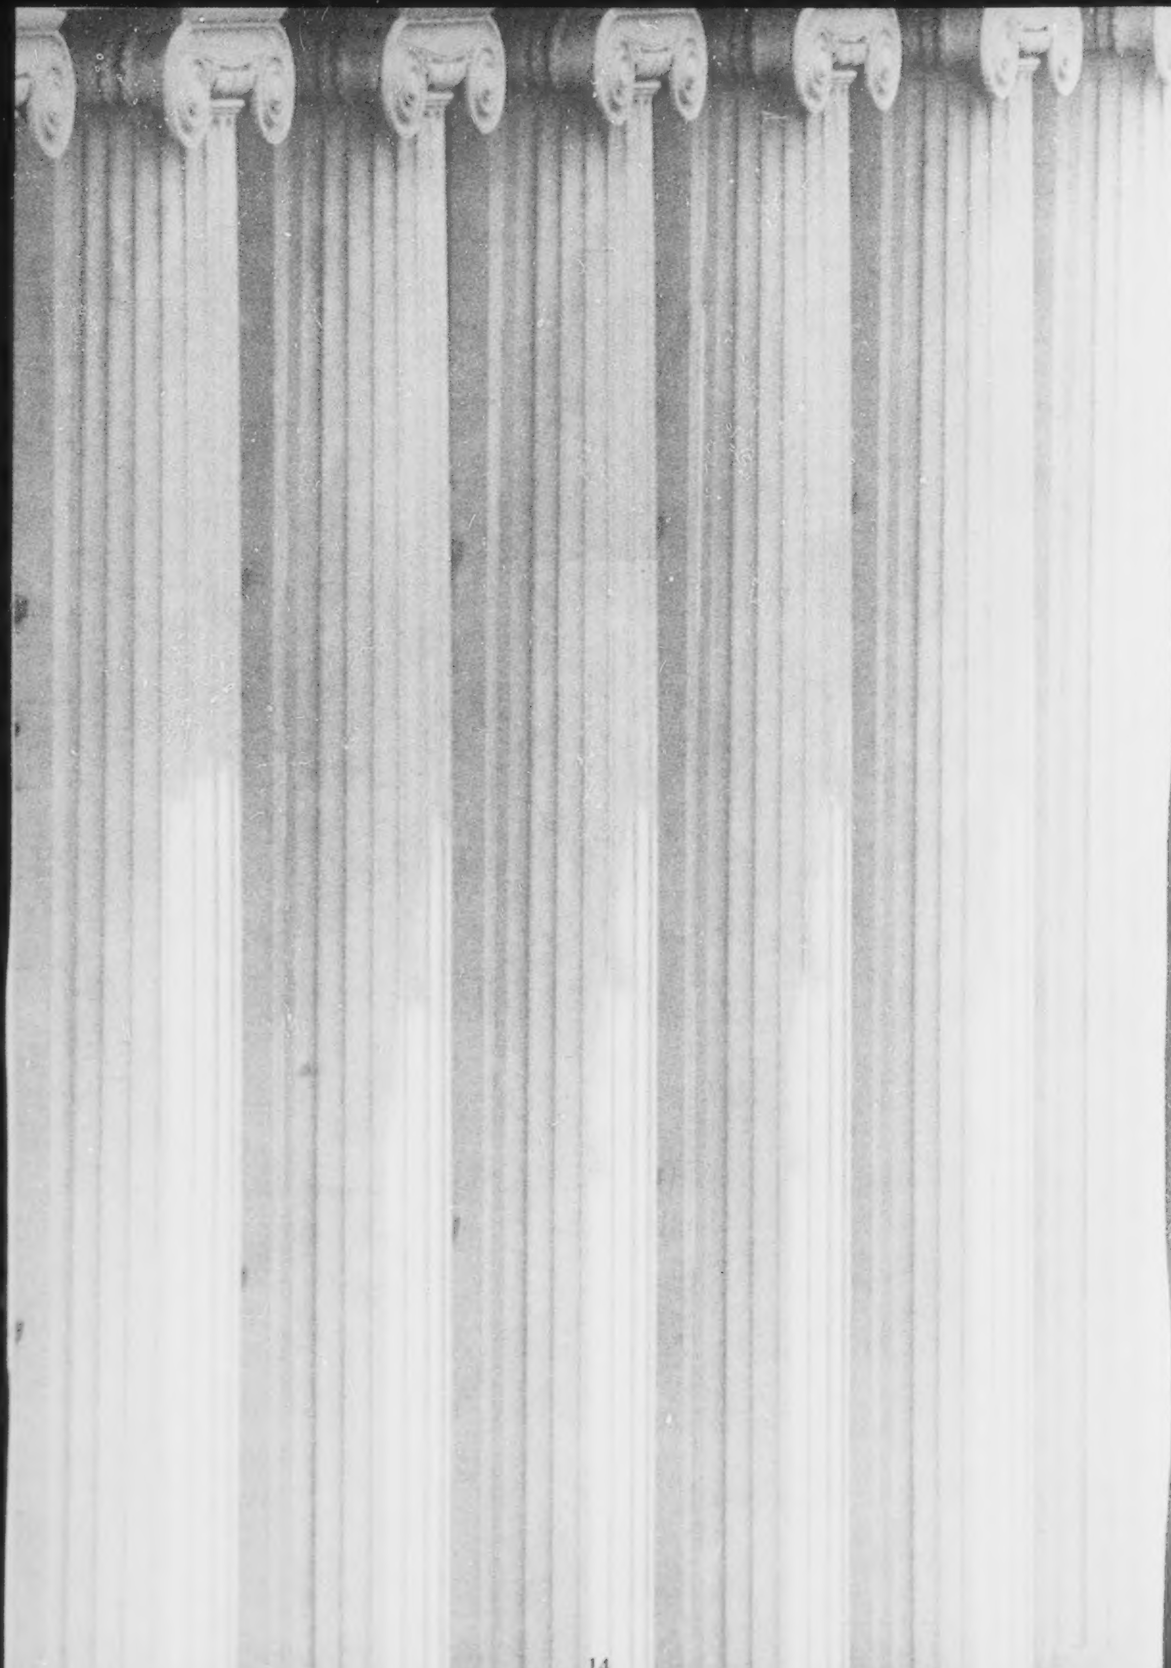
When we become judges, we assume a dual trust. First, we must perform the duties of our office honestly and with diligence. Second, we have the responsibility to leave the office in better professional shape than we found it.

How one judge carries out this trust will differ, substantially, perhaps, from the way it is fulfilled by others on the bench. But, remembering that we are engaged in a never-ending search for truth and justice, each of us must contribute to the creation of a judicial environment in which all judges, present and future, can pursue these elusive concepts with greater fervor.

Because this contribution is the responsibility of the present members of the judiciary, we hold these conferences in an effort to keep abreast of new and changing ideas. Let us therefore learn what we can at this meeting and return home proud of our past, involved in the present, and better prepared for the future.



The Judiciary's Year In Review



IMPLEMENTATION OF THE 1983-86 COMPREHENSIVE JUDICIAL PLAN: A STATUS REPORT

Two years ago, judges and clerks of all courts as well as chief magistrates responded to a request made by Chief Justice Carrico to identify major administrative and substantive problem areas confronting the courts. Based upon the issues and ideas submitted by judges and court system personnel, a three-year Comprehensive Judicial Plan was adopted by the Judicial Council. The Plan serves as a blueprint for further improving services provided by courts to citizens of the Commonwealth.

Throughout the past year, the Council, the Judicial Administration Committees of the two Judicial Conferences, and numerous committees of judges, clerks, and magistrates have been actively involved in monitoring and implementing this Plan. As a result, almost 70 percent of the Plan has been undertaken and/or completed.

Because the judiciary's planning process is designed to address both short- and long-range needs, an update to the 1983-86 Plan was initiated in 1984. An issues survey was again distributed to all courts and to a representative sample of Bar and citizen group representatives. Again, the responses to this survey will form the basis for the development of the 1986-88 Comprehensive Judicial Plan. In addition, funding requests surfacing from the survey will be incorporated into the 1986-88 biennium budget to be submitted by the judicial branch to the General Assembly.

A status report on the 1983-86 Plan follows.

GOAL 1: TO IMPROVE THE ABILITY OF THE COURTS TO PROVIDE A PROMPT AND FAIR RESOLUTION IN ALL LEGAL DISPUTES.

Objective: To support the establishment of an intermediate appellate court in Virginia by January 1, 1985.

Status: The implementation plan for the Court of Appeals was carried forth in 1984 through renovation of space existing within the Supreme Court Building to provide quarters for the court. On December 17, 1984, the General Assembly elected the following persons to become the first judges for the new court: E. Ballard Baker, Fourteenth Judicial Circuit; Joseph E. Baker, Fourth Judicial Circuit; Bernard B. Barrow, Second Judicial Circuit; Samuel W. Coleman III, Thirtieth Judicial Circuit; Charles H. Duff, Seventeenth Judicial Circuit; William H. Hodges, First Judicial Circuit; Barbara M. Keenan, Nineteenth Judicial Circuit; Lawrence L. Koontz Jr., Twenty-Third Judicial Circuit; Norman K. Moon, Twenty-Fourth Judicial Circuit; and James W. Benton Jr., a Richmond attorney. Judge E. Ballard Baker was elected by his peers as Chief Judge. Following Judge Baker's untimely death in March, 1985, Judge Marvin F. Cole of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit was elected to the Court of Appeals. Judge Koontz was elected as the new Chief Judge for the Court. As of April, 1985, 41 cases had been disposed of by the Court and 533 cases were pending.

Objective: To determine the most effective means to adjudicate family disputes in Virginia courts.

Status: The Family Court Study Committee concluded its work in 1984 and submitted a draft report to the Judicial Council in December. As a part of its study, the Committee catalogued both the strengths and the deficiencies of the current division of responsibilities between the J&DR and circuit courts regarding domestic relations matters. The study then proceeded to consider a variety of alternative court designs and capacity of the designs to address the problem areas noted. The major recommendation of the study was the creation of a Family Division of the Circuit Court incorporating the jurisdiction of the present Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court as well as other family law matters such as divorces, adoptions, etc. into one court of record. This would abolish the present de novo appeal process in the adjudication of juvenile and family matters. The Council has referred the study committee's report for review its Judicial Administration Committee. In addition, copies of the report were distributed to the Executive Committees of the two Judicial Conferences and to all circuit and juvenile court judges and clerks. Input regarding the proposal is being sought from persons both within and outside the court system.

Objective: To assess needed changes in the substantive and procedural laws affecting the administration of justice.

Status: One of the key tasks under this objective was Council's request that the Committee on District Courts continue to investigate methods of containing costs within the involuntary mental commitment fund and the criminal fund. Expenditures related to the civil commitment process rose 20 percent in fiscal year 1984. As in the past, this increase was due largely to a 35 percent rise in hospital costs for those detained pending preliminary and/or commitment hearings. During 1984, the Supreme Court joined the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation in an effort to establish contractural agreements for more cost-effective medical services. However, the Court was notified by the Department in late spring that proposals received from hospitals relative to this effort were noncompetitive and that overall costs might increase under such contractual agreements.

Following the passage of new indigency guidelines by the 1984 General Assembly, a Court-Appointed Counsel Procedures and Guidelines Manual was prepared and distributed to all courts. The manual included information on the implementation of the guidelines as well as on recommendations made by the State Auditor's Office relative to criminal fund expenditures.

Also under this objective, a study was completed by the Committee on District Courts regarding the need for court services for general district courts. Unlike the J&DR and circuit courts, there is at present no statewide system for providing probation offices or court service units for the general district courts. Based on the study, the CDC recommended that the Department of Corrections take several actions to establish a direction and a means of further development of such court services on a program-by-program basis. Among these actions was the creation of a committee composed of general district court judges and local criminal justice officials to guide the Department's efforts regarding court services programs. A full report of the study was presented to the Governor and members of the General Assembly in January 1985.Copies also were sent to each general district court judge.

Objective: To provide for fair and equitable sentencing policies in Commonwealth's courts.

Status: With monies appropriated by the 1984 General Assembly, six sentencing seminars were held for circuit court judges throughout the state. A featured speaker for the seminars was Judge Marshall A. Levin, Chairman, Maryland Sentencing Guidelines Commission.

After completion of these seminars, the Executive Committee of the Judicial Conference of Virginia concluded that a six-member ad hoc committee should be formed to study and produce a proposal for voluntary sentencing guidelines. This Committee will not produce guidelines but will consider developing a procedure for going about the creation of such guidelines. The proposal would then be made available to all members of the Judicial Conference for their consideration.

Objective: To determine additional mechanisms to enforce the collection of court fines and costs.

Status: Beginning in January 1985, the district courts began participating in the Set-Off Debt Collection Act. The Act was passed by the legislature in 1981 and matches the names of individuals due tax refunds with names of persons owing debts to the Commonwealth including court costs and fines. Regional training for the courts was held during the fall of 1984 regarding implementation of the Act.

GOAL 2: TO IMPROVE THE EFFICIENCY AND EFFECTIVENESS OF THE JUDICIAL SYSTEM BY STRENGTHENING ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES.

Objective: To assist judicial system personnel in the management of court activities through implementation of the Court Automated Information System (CAIS).

Status: Substantial momentum was gained in the implementation of the CAIS system during the year. At the close of 1984, 10 juvenile and domestic relations courts were operational on the support system. 21 general district and circuit courts were on-line with the financial management portion of CAIS and the Henrico General District Court served as the pilot court for implementation of the case management system. By the end of the biennium, these numbers are expected to increase to courts with the financial system and courts having the case management system.

Objective: To determine methods of improving jury management programs and procedures.

Status: At its December meeting, the Council adopted a set of standards to be used as guidelines for Virginia courts in initiating improvements in their jury procedures. The standards were recommended by the Jury Use and Management Advisory Committee. This ten-member committee of circuit judges and clerks and private attorneys was appointed by Chief Justice Carrico to study and report on recommendations for improvements in jury management practices. The standards address all areas of management including source lists, random selection procedures, exemptions, voir dire, and juror orientation. Copies of the standards were forwarded to all circuit courts and numerous bar organizations in early January 1985.

Objective: To determine the most efficient and economical methods of records management in the court system.

Status: Preparation was under way throughout the year for implementation of new records retention procedures for Virginia's district courts. The legislation enabling these courts to retain case papers initiated therein was enacted by the General Assembly in 1983. Regional training for district clerks in the new procedures was conducted in the fall.

Objective: To revise the statistical caseload reporting systems in order to produce more accurate, timely and useful management information about the courts and magistrate's offices.

Status: Implementation of this objective has taken place in phases. In late 1983, an update and revision of the circuit court caseload reporting system was completed. Circuit courts statistical reports were addressed first due to the system's interplay with the design of the automated case management system. Further training in the new reporting system was provided at the statewide Circuit Court Clerks Conference in November, 1984. In addition, an update of the district court docketing and caseload reporting system was completed and implemented on January 1, 1985.

Objective: To provide technical assistance to the courts in order to improve and standardize business management policies and practices as well as legal procedures.

Status: Under this objective, a cooperative effort by the Forms Review and Revision Committee of the Circuit Court Clerks Association and the Office of the Executive Secretary resulted in development of several uniform forms in the areas of recordation and fiduciary matters. In addition, several forms relating to criminal case processing also were drafted.

GOAL 3: TO ASSIST THE PUBLIC IN UNDERSTANDING THE JUDICIAL SYSTEM, ITS FUNCTIONS AND PROCEDURES, AND THE SERVICES IT PROVIDES.

Objective: To develop goals and objectives regarding the responsibility of the judicial branch for informing and educating citizens about the operation of the courts.

Status: Public information goals and objectives were adopted by the Judicial Council following reviews by the Judicial Conference and the Judicial Conference for District Courts. Also suggested are specific tasks which may be undertaken by judicial system personnel in order to better inform users of the courts, school students, and the media concerning the operation and services of the courts. Additional copies of the goals and objectives will be sent to all courts early in 1985.

To further educate school students both about the law and the court system, an entire teaching supplement for kindergarten through the twelfth grade was created. Entitled "Journey to Justice," this seven-volume set was printed and distributed both to public and private schools and to judges and clerks, as requested.

GOAL 4: TO INCREASE THE LEVEL OF PROFESSIONAL EXCELLENCE OF JUDICIAL SYSTEM PERSONNEL.

Objective: To continue to provide educational opportunities for judges and court personnel.

Status: More than $1 million was appropriated by the General Assembly in order to provide continuing educational opportunities for judges and court personnel during the 1984-86 biennium. Since the demise of federal funding, the judicial branch is completely dependent upon state funds to support all educational conferences, the pre-bench orientation for judges, clerk and magistrate orientation and certification programs, regional conferences for circuit judges, and out of state training for circuit and district judges. The funds also supported the sponsoring of a statewide circuit court clerks conference in 1984.

Objective: To seek salary increases for justices of the Supreme Court and all circuit and district court judges with the ultimate objective being salary parity between Virginia's circuit judges and United States district court judges.

Status: Studies conducted by the Office of the Executive Secretary indicated that salaries paid members of the Virginia judiciary are inadequate remuneration consistent with the crucial value of the judiciary to the functioning of an orderly society. The issue of adequate judicial salaries has also been identified by the members of the bar as important in attracting and retaining a competent and dedicated judiciary. In 1982, when circuit court judges were paid $57,000 annually, it was recommended that circuit court judges salaries be increased (with comparable adjustments made for the justices of the Supreme Court of Virginia and the judges of the district courts) by 5.3 percent for 1983, 10 percent for 1984, and 9 percent for 1985. Judicial salaries were not increased in 1983. On July 1, 1984, a ten percent raise became effective, bringing circuit court judges salaries to $62,700. A nine percent increase in 1985 will raise salaries for circuit court judges to $68,343, a figure $7,657 less than the current salary of a U.S. district court judge and $18,942 less than the 1984 average for the top partners in Virginia law firms.

Objective: To improve the selection and training of magistrates and to enhance the management structure and policies of their offices.

Status: Under the auspices of the Committee on District Courts, a project to develop performance criteria for magistrates has been undertaken and is near completion. Based upon the new criteria, a testing and screening process will be established for all candidates for magistrate positions.

MEDICAL MALPRACTICE REVIEW PANELS

A system of Medical Malpractice Review Panels was instituted in late 1976. During the last eight years, nearly a thousand panels have been requested. During calendar year 1984, 177 panels were assigned, and this represents an increase of 9 (5.4%) over the previous year. Since the inception of the Medical Review System, an average of 120 panels per year have been processed.

From the first panel assignment on December 6, 1976 through December 31, 1984, 966 panels have been requested through the Supreme Court. Of this total number, 494 have been concluded, 59 dismissed, 269 withdrawn and 144 remained in a pending or to-be-heard status at the end of 1984.

The 1977 General Assembly amended the original legislation setting up the Medical Malpractice Review Panel System and provided the following opinions which a panel might determine pursuant to Section 8.01-581.7 of the Code of Virginia:

1. Evidence does not support a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care.
2. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is a proximate cause in the alleged damages;
3. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is not a proximate cause in the alleged damages; or
4. Evidence indicates that there is a material issue of fact, not requiring an expert opinion, bearing on liability for consideration by a court or jury (i.e., the case contains a material issue of fact that a court or jury can resolve without an expert opinion).

Of the 595 decisions* which had been rendered as of December 31, 1984, 468 (79%) favored the health care provider, 72 (12%) favored the claimant, and the remaining 55 (9%) fell within the last two opinion categories of Section 8.01-581.7.

During 1984 Northern Virginia took the lead as the section of the state where the greatest number of medical malpractice claims were filed. Northern Virginia was followed closely by the Tidewater area and then Richmond. This general pattern of urban versus rural filings has been true since the inception of the Medical Malpractice Review Panel System. As illustrated on the following page, hospital administrators, general surgeons, OB-GYN physicians and doctors specializing in internal medicine are the groups accounting for the largest number of panel requests.

The 1984 General Assembly continued to review the Medical Malpractice Review Panel System and amended several applicable statutes. Retired circuit court judges are now allowed to act as chairmen of panels. The Chief Justice will appoint a particular medical review panel only after a certification has been made that discovery is complete and that all relevant documents and statements have been submitted as provided in Section 8.01-581.4. The per diem rate for panel members was increased for the first time since the inception of the Medical Review System.

---

* Total differs from Panels Concluded due to the fact that more than one opinion may be rendered in a case.

REVENUE

Revenue from the District Court and Magistrate Systems are either deposited to the credit of the Commonwealth or forwarded to local Treasurers for use by the locality. The revenue recipient is determined by statutory provision. In FY 84, revenues collected for the Commonwealth increased by 5.6 percent, and reached $40,632,165. In other words, the State collected $0.86 for every dollar expended on these two systems. Local revenues experienced a 1.4 percent rise and totaled $14,013,908.

OF EXPENDITURES

EXPENDITURES

Expenditures for the judiciary during FY 84 totaled $69,681,984, a three percent increase over FY 83. The majority (71 percent) of these expenses were for personal services (salaries, wages and fringe benefits) and 23 percent represented compensation to court-appointed attorneys and other related court costs (Criminal Fund) and for Involuntary Civil Commitments.

INDIGENT DEFENSE SERVICES

During the most recent fiscal year, the total cost to Virginia taxpayers in providing court assigned counsel for indigents charged with a criminal offense fell to $8.3 million, a decline of eight percent from FY 83. Of this amount $7.5 million was reimbursed to court appointed attorneys by the Criminal Fund while the remaining costs were incurred by the Public Defender Commission in the operation of the four pilot public defender programs. The distribution of court appointed attorney expenses was 53 percent for district court cases, 44 percent for circuit cases and 3 percent for Supreme Court cases. Of the $4 million expended by the district court system, eleven percent of the expenses were recouped by the courts.

INVOLUNTARY CIVIL COMMITMENTS

Over the past five years, costs for maintaining the involuntary civil commitment process rose from $1,312,881 in FY 79 to $3,588,652 during the last fiscal year. Fiscal year 1984 expenditures increased almost 20 percent over the previous year's figure of $2,992,296.

Of the $3.6 million expended in FY 84, $2.0 million, or 56 percent, went towards payment of hospital costs. These costs included charges for room and meals, medication, lab tests and pharmaceutical supplies.

The next largest sum of reimbursements, 18 percent of the total, was made to physicans and psychiatrists. Payments made to attorneys representing persons alleged to be mentally ill accounted for 14 percent of $492,601 of the total expenditure.

JUDICIAL POLICY MAKING BODIES

JUDICIAL COUNCIL

The Judicial Council of Virginia was established in 1930 and is charged with the responsibility for making a continuous study of the organization, rules and methods of procedure and practice of the judicial system of the Commonwealth. It is responsible also for examining the work accomplished and results produced by the system and its individual offices and courts. A report of the proceedings and recommendations of the Council is made to the General Assembly and to the Supreme Court on an annual basis.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court is presiding officer for the Council whose membership includes one Court of Appeals judge, five circuit court judges, one general district court judge, one juvenile and domestic relations district court judge, two attorneys qualified to practice in the Supreme Court and the Chairmen of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Senate and House of Delegates. Council members are appointed by the Chief Justice and serve for four years, or during his pleasure.

By invitation of the Chief Justice

The Council is charged with the obligation to study the need for additional circuit court judges. In 1975, Council altered procedures for determining the need for additional circuit court judges and for changes in circuit lines. Prior to this change, cases commenced and population were the primary guidelines. Recognizing the inadequacies of total reliance on these criteria, Council adopted a dual analysis mechanism.

As the administrative office for the judicial system, the Office of the Executive Secretary was advised that, in addition to providing a thorough statistical evaluation of the judicial workload, visits should be conducted to each circuit which had requested an additional judge. Court dockets were to be reviewed and judges, clerks, commonwealth attorneys, members of the bar, and other individuals having a knowledge of the court system in that circuit should be interviewed.

The Judicial Council concluded that additional judges should be authorized in a circuit whenever all procedures short of adding a judge had been exhausted or when despite the best efforts of the current judges, they are unable to handle their caseloads as expeditiously as the bar and general public expect. Council is then guided by the principle that the only way to insure sound, effective and speedy administration of justice is to guarantee that sufficient judicial resources are available.

JUDICIAL CONFERENCE OF VIRGINIA

The Judicial Conference of Virginia was organized to discuss and consider means and methods of improving the administration of justice in the Commonwealth. Active members include the Chief Justice and Justices of the Supreme Court of Virginia, all judges of the circuit courts and all retired justices and judges of such courts. There is also an honorary membership consisting of the Attorney General, the Chairmen of the Courts of Justice Committees of the Senate and House of Delegates, the presidents and secretaries of the Virginia State Bar, the Virginia Bar Association, the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association and the Virginia Association of Defense Lawyers, the deans of the law departments of the College of William and Mary, University of Richmond, University of Virginia, Washington and Lee University and George Mason University, and four attorneys appointed by the Chief Justice. The Chief Justice serves as president of the Judicial Conference. Six circuit court judges are elected to serve on the Conference's executive committee.

Specifically, the duties and responsibilities of the Conference include:

- Advising and cooperating with the Supreme Court of Virginia in the improvement of practice and procedure in the courts of the Commonwealth;
- Reporting to the General Assembly such findings and recommendations as the Conference may adopt;
- Compiling, studying, discussing and disseminating to its members information of interest to the judiciary;
- Planning continuing judicial educational programs;
- Advising and cooperating with the bar associations, law schools and other groups on projects designed to improve the administration of justice; and
- Gathering, studying and disseminating information relating to the public, press educational institutions and other such organizations as may be interested in the work and functions of the courts.

Much of the work of the Judicial Conference is accomplished through its seven permanent committees whose members are appointed by the Chief Justice with the advice of the executive committee. Standing committees and their responsibilities are as follows:

1. Nominations, Resolutions, and Memorials
   To consider, evaluate and make recommendations regarding resolutions; nominate members of the Executive Committee; and prepare appropriate memorials.
2. Judicial Education
   To plan the educational content of Judicial Conference meetings and specialized programs of interest to the judiciary, and to assist in the orientation of new judges.
3. Judicial Administration
   To consider means and methods of improving the administrative functions of the Courts; attain greater uniformity in procedures and efficiency; and study the effective management of Court calendars.
4. Information and Public Relations
   To explain and interpret matters concerning the law, the legal system, and the administration of justice to the public; and disseminate information on the functions of the Courts.
5. Judicial Conduct
   To distribute to members information relating to judicial conduct and to consider inquiries concerning the propriety of judicial conduct.
6. Judicial Compensation, Retirement and Insurance
   To consider programs affecting benefits consistent with judicial responsibility; and consider proposed changes.
7. Probation, Parole and Corrections
   To study and consider improvements in probation, parole and corrections as they affect the Courts.

COMMITTEE ON DISTRICT COURTS

The General Assembly created the Committee on District Courts in 1972 to assist the Chief Justice in the administrative supervision of Virginia's unified court system. Nine members including the Chairmen of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Senate and House of Delegates, two members of each of the Courts of Justice Committees appointed by the respective chairman, a Circuit Court Judge, General District Court Judge and a Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court Judge, are appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the Chief Justice.

By statute, the Committee on District Courts has been given the responsibility for fulfilling the following duties:

- Reporting annually to the General Assembly on the number of judges needed and the district for which they should be authorized.
- Certifying that the filling of a vacancy occurring in the office of any judge of any district is or is not necessary.
- Authorizing the appointment of substitute judges.
- Authorizing the establishment of district court clerks' offices.
- Fixing salary classification schedules for court personnel.
- Establishing vacation and sick leave policies for district court judges.
- Establishing a sick leave policy for district court personnel and full-time magistrates.
- Establishing guidelines and determining the necessity for the employment of substitute judges, clerks, deputy clerks and all other personnel of the district courts and authorizing the employment of such personnel.
- Authorizing the appointment of personnel to serve one or more district courts within any district.
- Authorizing clerk and deputy clerks of the circuit court of a political subdivision to serve as clerk and deputy clerk of one or more district courts within the political subdivision.
- Authorizing the number of magistrates in each district.
- Authorizing the appointment of substitute magistrates.
- Fixing annual salaries of magistrates.
- Performing such other duties as may be conferred by law and necessary for the effective administration of justice.

JUDICIAL CONFERENCE OF VIRGINIA FOR DISTRICT COURTS

The Judicial Conference of Virginia for District Courts has similar responsibilities for the district court system as has the Judicial Conference of Virginia for the circuit courts. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court also serves as president of this Conference. Membership includes all active judges of the general district and juvenile and domestic relations district courts. Honorary members are the Attorney General, Chairmen of the Courts of Justice Committees of the Senate and House of Delegates, the president and secretary of the Virginia State Bar and the president and secretary of the Virginia Bar Association. Seven district court judges are elected by the Conference to serve on the Executive Committee. The 1981 General Assembly added the presidents and secretaries of the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association and the Virginia Association of Defense Attorneys to the honorary membership of this Conference.

The Conference meets at least once a year to consider means of improving the administration of justice in Virginia. The Conference's committee structure is similar in duties and responsibilities to those of the Judicial Conference of Virginia. A list of the committees and their membership follows the membership listing of the Committee on District Courts.

ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES

As the administrative arm of the Virginia court system, the Office of the Executive Secretary assists the Chief Justice in executing the policies and programs of the judicial branch of government. The primary mission of the Office is to assist the courts in improving the quality and efficiency of the administration of justice in Virginia. Generally, this objective is accomplished by introducing effective business management practices and updating and standardizing the legal procedures utilized by the judicial system. Eight departments comprise the Office of the Executive Secretary. Significant activities and accomplishments of the Office during 1984 are described below.

ASSISTANT EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

The Assistant Executive Secretary's main areas of responsibility continue to be: (1) Serving as a focal point for assignment of judges throughout the state; (2) Preparation of designations primarily for the circuit courts and in a limited number of instances for the district courts; (3) Maintaining updated lists of retired/recalled judges and substitute judges for the district court system; (4) Reviewing all foreign attorney (reciprocity) applications and preparing a report on each for transmittal to the Supreme Court; (5) Maintaining the list of Hearing Officers who serve under the Administrative Process Act pursuant to §§54-1.36 and 54-1.37 of the Code of Virginia; and (6) Assisting with Medical Malpractice Panels by answering inquiries related to procedures and assignments.

During 1984 the Assistant Executive Secretary's office prepared 560 designations for issuance by the Supreme Court. This represented a slight decline of 11 from the total of 571 issued in 1983. Significant, however, in the 1984 total is the fact that, effective July 1, designations in the district court system became the responsibility of the local courts. Amendments to §§16.1-69.21, -69.35 and -69.44 authorized the district courts, (and not the Supreme Court) to designate retired/recalled judges and substitute judges.

Disqualification (§16.1-69.35)	30
District Total	188

During 1984 a total of 372 circuit court designations were issued, and this represented an increase of 35 (10 percent) over the 1983 total. From January 1 through June 30, 1984, a total of 178 district court designations were issued. With amendments to the governing statutes, the number of designations issued through the Assistant Executive Secretary's office for the second six months fell to ten. During 1984 a total of 188 district court designations were issued, a decrease of 46 (20%) from the previous year.

Of the 372 circuit court designations issued last year, the majority (215 or 58 percent) were for assistance as authorized by §§17-7 and 51-178 of the Virginia Code. The next highest circuit court category was the designations in cases involving disqualifications (120 or 32 percent).

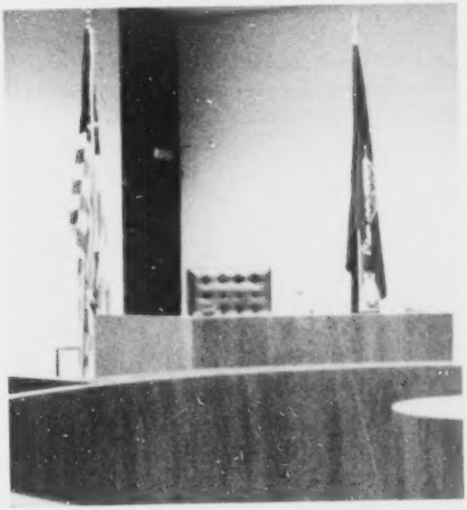
During 1984 the Assistant Executive Secretary reviewed and sent to the Supreme Court a total of 114 foreign attorney applications. This was an increase of 23 (25 percent) over the preceding year. The large majority (110) of the foreign attorney applications were filed pursuant to Rule 1A:1, the Supreme Court's general licensure provision. The remaining four were for patent licenses pursuant to Rule 1A:2.

A total of 20 new hearing officers were added to the list maintained by the Office of the Executive Secretary pursuant to §§54-1.36 and -1.37 of the Code of Virginia. Five hearing officers asked that their names be removed, leaving a total of 128 available for call at the end of 1984. This number still represented a 10 percent increase in the number of hearing officers since 1983.

In 1984 a total of 177 Medical Malpractice Review panels were assigned, bringing to 966 the number of requests which have been made since the inception of the system. The number of panels in 1984 was nine more than in 1983, and this represents a five percent increase.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

Education returned to a full program during the last half of 1984 due to the General Assembly's granting requested funds for the 1984-86 biennium. The major immediate impact of this increased funding was in national level education for judges. For the first time since July, 1981, money became available to send judges to the National Judicial College, the National College of Juvenile Justice, and the American Academy of Judicial Education. First priority for these courses was given to judges who had been elected to the bench since 1981 and who had not had the opportunity to attend the basic course. Funding allowed 17 judges to attend the basic courses: nine circuit, six general district and two juvenile and domestic relations judges. This priority for basic courses is a one-time priority, and in subsequent years the system will return to an essentially first-come-first serve basis for national level education. Funds also were made available for three juvenile and domestic relations judges to attend the annual conference of the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges.



The department's conference year for 1984 began with the March Magistrate Certification Course. In this and two subsequent certification courses, 35 magistrates qualified. Fifteen new judges attended a Pre-Bench Orientation: five circuit, seven general district, and three juvenile and domestic relations judges. A new session addressing special concerns of new circuit judges was added to the program and was conducted by Judges Willard I. Walker and John F. Daffron, Jr.

The other educational conferences were conducted as usual except that, with the return of full funding, a conference for circuit court clerks was held and the format of the District Court Clerks mandatory conference was changed from one statewide conference to six regional conferences. Both of these changes were well received. The attendance at the Circuit Court Clerks' Conference was impressive with 88 clerks and deputies attending. The same was true for the District Court Clerks' regional conferences where total attendance was 257. This regional format was so successful that it will be continued if the staff is able to support the increased workload.

In addition to the conferences, the department prepared an information pamphlet describing the public information goals, projects and tasks adopted by the Judicial Council. The pamphlets will be distributed to the public and judicial personnel in the spring of 1985. Guidelines for release of information to the media were also approved and are being printed in pamphlet form for distribution.

With the cooperation of the Legal Research Department, the State Department of Education, the Department of Criminal Justice Service and the Virginia Institute of Law and Citizenship Studies, the Office of the Executive Secretary adapted the Alabama Law Related Educational Manuals for grades K through 12 to Virginia law, printed them and are now distributing packets to every school in Virginia. The initial reaction from schools has been quite favorable. This is especially gratifying in light of Chief Justice Carrico's strong desire to increase the knowledge of all Virginia's citizens about the judicial system as well as to foster respect for the system of law.

The task analysis of magistrate and district clerk duties was completed, and work is going forward to translate this data into both better screening of applicants for positions and better training for those who must accomplish magistrate and clerk duties.

FISCAL SERVICES

During 1984, the Department of Fiscal Services processed 97,620 vouchers and 6,488 purchase orders and requisitions, paid 2,100 full-time, part-time, substitute, and wage employees, began the development of the Judicial System budget for the 1986-88 biennium, conducted training on the purchase portion of the Clerk's Basic Orientation Program, continued its participation in the Department of Accounts pilot project to test a new combination purchase order/invoice, and became involved in the definition of requirements for the State's new automated Central Payroll System which is now in the development stage.

The Department also was involved in the continuing development of the Financial Information Reporting System (FIRS). This project has been divided into three phases. In the first phase, automated assistance is being provided to process payments to vendors for services in connection with involuntary mental commitments. This segment is scheduled to be completed in February 1985. In phase two, newly obtained software (APL-DI/ADRS) is being used to set up files of information and produce various financial reports. The third, and final phase, is to be completed by July 1985 and will involve the automation of the cost allocation system and the generation of data for the annual financial report.

During fiscal year 1984, eleven new forms were added to warehouse stock. This brings the total to 361 forms. These forms are used by court system personnel, attorneys, hospitals, laboratories, public schools, special justices, and the general public. Plans are still underway to move the department's operation to the Supreme Court Building basement. The project is planned to be implemented in fiscal year 1987.

JUDICIAL PLANNING

Implementation of the 1983-86 Comprehensive Judicial plan continued to dominate the activities of the Judicial Planning Department during 1984. Three major Plan-related projects were undertaken. These included a study assessing the need for court services for general district courts, a study of the adjudication of family law matters, and preparation of a manual for all courts on the state's new indigency guidelines. In order to maintain the Judicial Council's long-range planning process, the 1984 Issues Survey was also prepared and distributed to more than 1,000 judges, clerks of court, chief magistrates, public officials and bar and citizen organization representatives. The results of this survey will provide the basis upon which the 1986-88 Comprehensive Judicial Plan will be formulated.

Following the adoption of new indigency guidelines by the 1984 General Assembly, the Judicial Planning Department worked in cooperation with Technical Assistance staff to prepare a Court-Appointed Counsel Procedures and Guidelines Manual. The manual was distributed to all courts in July. Training on the use of the indigency guidelines was provided by planning staff as a part of the fall regional conference for district court clerks.

During its 1984 Session, the legislature also passed House Joint Resolution #26 which directed the Committee on District Courts to assess the need to provide staff for general district courts in order to administer sentencing alternatives programs. The department worked with the CDC to survey general district court judges on this issue. In addition, information was compiled on existing sentencing alternatives programs and the administrative mechanisms through which they are staffed and funded. As a result of the study, the Committee made several recommendations to the Department of Corrections regarding the need to establish a direction for further development and funding of sentencing alternatives programs for misdemeanants. A report was submitted by the CDC to the Governor and General Assembly and copies were sent to all general district judges.

Research assistance also was provided to the advisory committee studying the adjudication of family law matters in Virginia. This assistance included preparation of an analysis of judgeship and personnel needs which would be required should the family court concept recommended by the committee be implemented in Virginia. Additional information on the study is contained in the earlier section entitled Comprehensive Judicial Plan Activities.

The Planning Department also is responsible for the analyses of caseload statistics and other management information provided by the circuit and district courts. With this information, the department produces numerous reports used by decison-makers within the judiciary and the legislature. Staff prepared 55 workload analysis reports during the year. These are used for the certification of judicial vacancies and consideration of additional judgeships as well as for evaluating staffing levels within the District Courts and Magistrates' offices. It is also from this information that the department prepares the annual State of the Judiciary Report and the Judicial Council's Report to the Governor and General Assembly.

Due to the department's management information responsibilities, staff participated in the revision of the district court docketing system. Additionally, a follow-up training session was held for circuit court clerks in the revised circuit court caseload reporting system implemented in 1984.

Finally, the department worked with members of the Magistrates Advisory Committee of the Committee on District Courts to produce an informational pamphlet on the Virginia Magistrate System.

LEGAL RESEARCH

During 1984, the Legal Research Department continued to provide legal research services to the judicial branch of government in many ways, including providing responses to inquiries from clerks and judges and working with new developments in the forms and publications areas. In addition, significant changes in child support laws have required continued involvement of the department in support-related matters.

One of the tasks outlined in the 1983-1986 Comprehensive Judicial Plan concerns supporting the efforts of the Forms Review and Revision Committee of the Virginia Circuit Court Clerk's Association to develop standard forms for use in circuit courts. This committee is seeking to design civil and criminal case forms and fiduciary and recordation forms for statewide use that will be legally correct, easy to prepare, easy to understand and with consistency in style and format from form to form. To assist the committee in its efforts, a consultant was hired to provide research services and to develop initial drafts of each proposed form. This effort was supervised and coordinated by the Legal Research Department.

In September, the draft forms were approved for statewide use by the Virginia Circuit Court Clerk's Association. Camera-ready copy of each form will be provided to all clerks for the addition of local information (such as court name and address) before the forms are printed.

Since 1977, the Legal Research Department has been actively involved in the development of district court forms. While not as much change occurred with these forms in 1984 as had occurred in prior years, some significant changes did take place primarily because of federal litigation regarding the constitutionality of garnishment procedures. Forms to comply with emergency legislation affecting garnishment procedures were developed or revised from existing forms. In addition, substantial changes to civil attachment forms were made to deal with procedural statutory changes. Since these changes significantly changed the role of magistrates in the attachment process as well as in the process of issuing attachments, departmental staff developed and taught a course for magistrates in the new attachment process.

The department continued its involvement in the revision of existing publications as well as the development of new publications. Updates to the District Court Manual and the Circuit Clerks Duties List were developed and published, and assistance was given to the updating of the Magistrates Manual.

The Court Legal Research Assistance Project, which is administered through the Legal Research Department, has provided case research services for circuit court judges since 1979 through the use of a law clerk pool in Richmond. During 1984, the Project also undertook two major tasks as special projects.

The first task was to develop a set of supplemental educational teacher's materials which ultimately was titled The Judicial System: Journey to Justice for use by Virginia's elementary and secondary school teachers. These materials focused on Virginia's judicial system and involved the development of a separate text for each grade in secondary schools and for groups of grades in elementary schools. All information was tailored to meet the standards of learning for each grade as designated by the Virginia Department of Education.

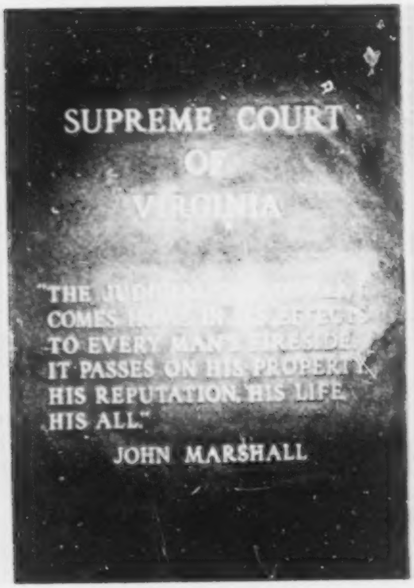
A second task was to revise the Handbook for Judges and Clerks in Virginia. This effort involved both the revision of existing materials to reflect changes in statutory and case law, and the development of some additional materials to reflect substantial additions to Virginia laws. The revision process involved the project staff and the Judicial Administration Committee of the Judicial Conference of Virginia. As has always been true, the purpose of the Handbook is to provide a set of model orders, forms and synopses to assist circuit court judges and clerks in pre-trial, trial, and post-trial matters which most frequently occur in circuit court cases. The latest revision was distributed to all circuit court judges and clerks at the end of 1984.

A new matter which will significantly affect the courts is the 1984 federal child support enforcement legislation, which was enacted on August 14, 1984. Since certain state statutory changes will be in effect in Virginia by October 1, 1985, an interagency work group was created to review the new laws and to make general recommendations for implementing the new federal law. The Legal Research Department and the Division of Support Enforcement Programs spearheaded the meetings of this group. The Department provided substantial assistance in drafting and providing comments on the legislative proposals.

During the year, the Legal Research Department has been involved in several short-term projects. Department staff participated in the study of computerized legal research needs and resources; provided materials and information to help train deputy sheriffs in the service of civil process; and prepared and presented to the state's circuit court clerk a presentation on the changes in records retention provisions for district court records that will affect their offices.

MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS

During 1984, the Management Information Systems Department continued expanding the Courts Automated Information System (CAIS) network and completed the first version of the Case Management System. Thirty-five courts were included in the network with ten processing the Support Payment System, with twenty-one fully operational in the Financial Management System and with four more in training. The Case Management System was introduced in the pilot court, the Henrico General District Court, and the system became operational on the first of December.



In addition to expanding the coverage and size of the CAIS, the MIS Department continued to provide support to the OES staff. A new Circuit Court Statistical System became operational as did the first two phases of the Fiscal Information Reporting System (FIRS). Substantial progress has been made in the development of the new Personnel, Payroll and Leave Accounting System (PEPALS), and a new District Court Statistical System has nearly been completed.

Development and integration of these support systems into a basic OES integrated Management Information System will continue through 1985 as time and resources permit.

PERSONNEL

Staffing is a major Personnel Office responsibility. Concentration during 1984 was focused in budget preparation for the 1986-88 biennium. In addition to caseload growth projections, all courts and chief magistrates were surveyed to obtain their analysis of needs. All inputs were consolidated, discussed with advisory committees, and finally presented to the policy body for approval.

To assist courts in managing their own personnel resources and to use community resources creatively, the Personnel Office sponsored a series of one-day seminars on volunteerism. The Office of Volunteerism conducted the sessions and provided management data applicable to both volunteers and court employees. Such topics as planning work, developing job descriptions, and incorporating volunteers into the office team were covered.

A recently developed personnel service that has been well received is the preparation of benefits seminars primarily designed for judges. These address how the Commonwealth's benefits complement each other. Of major interest are the Judicial Retirement System and Deferred Compensation Plan. Profiles have been developed for all judges showing the application of their benefits to individual circumstances. An expansion of this service in the Deferred Compensation area is contemplated during 1985 for court personnel and magistrates. The benefit provider plans a personal financial analysis approach with each interested employee.

Development of the Personnel Employment, Payroll, and Leave System (PEPALS) continued, and implementation is anticipated during 1985.

Personnel Office staff participated in a series of regional seminars with court clerks. Details concerning personnel procedures, benefits information and a manual for keeping information current were provided to attendees.

Development of an updated Personnel Policy and Procedures Manual continues. When it is completed, three separate documents will be available: a policies manual, a management manual, and an employee handbook. Each document will be tailored for its audience and will contain information about how to accomplish and comply with policies.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

The Technical Assistance Department participated in the development of a new docketing system during 1984 for implementation on January 1, 1985. The system was changed to improve the reliability of caseload reports by removing subjective codes and replacing them with objective codes. Only those matters requiring the appearance of the defendant, (or giving them an opportunity to appear), that would result in a judicial disposition, are included in the court's caseload report. It is anticipated that the new docketing caseload reporting system will become more uniform throughout the Commonwealth and will result in a better comparison of judges and clerical workloads. Under the new system, dockets will be audited to insure uniformity of reporting.

A new district court record retention policy was also implemented on January 1, 1985. Prior to this time, some of the larger district courts were retaining civil records, but none of them were retaining criminal records. Juvenile and domestic relations courts had always retained their juvenile petitions, but adult records and juvenile traffic violations were sent to the circuit court. Now all records will be retained in the district courts except for appeals and removals.

Along with records retention, a flat filing system was also implemented for district courts. An individually numbered folder was designed for juvenile and domestic relations courts and a multiple case folder was designed for district courts (color coded according to case type).

The set-off debt collection system was also implemented on January 1, 1985. This system represents an alternative method of collecting monies on unpaid fines and costs due the Commonwealth. If anyone is eligible for a refund of state income tax but owes money to the court, the debt owned will be set off against the refund.

In order to train district court personnel in these new procedures, the Technical Assistance Department conducted six regional conferences throughout the state during October and November. Two hundred and fifty seven district court clerks and deputy court clerks II attended the regional meetings. In some areas district court judges also attended portions of the meetings. Since this was a mandatory meeting for the clerks, the Personnel Department also participated in the training as did the Fiscal Department which presented a program on the new Combo Form.

The Technical Assistance Department also conducted over 500 on-site technical assistance visits to district clerks and magistrates offices, traveling over 60,000 miles throughout the state during 1984. Thirteen in-depth management analysis visits were made. The Department also conducted four two-day magistrate orientation classes and two five-day basic training courses for new clerks.

The Technical Assistance Department also participated in the development of the automated Case Management System and in the design of new docket sheets that are compatible and incorporate changes in the docketing system. Ten different docket sheets have now been consolidated into four, which has resulted in savings in printing costs and storage space.

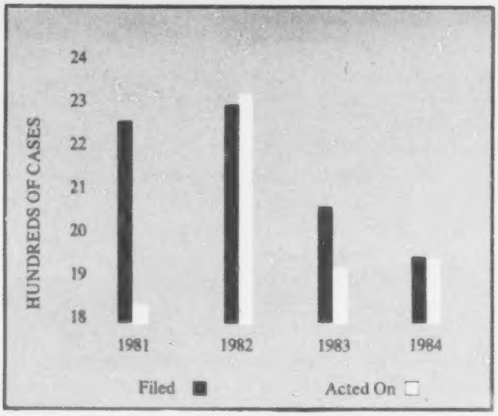
Over 10,000 district court caseload reports, revenue reports and magistrates workload reports were logged in, processed and collated for informational purposes by the Technical Assistance Department. The Department also accounted for 1,373,227 official court receipts issued to district and circuit courts.

The Technical Assistance Department also assisted the Planning Department in the development of a Court-Appointed Counsel Procedures and Guidelines Manual which was distributed to all courts and judges. A massive update to the Magistrate Manual was undertaken, and several updates to the District Court Accounting Manual were distributed.

SUPREME COURT OF VIRGINIA

The Supreme Gourt of Virginia experienced a busy year in 1984 as it completed its 205th year of existence. Founded on August 30, 1779, the Supreme Court of Virginia is one of the oldest continuously operating judicial bodies in the United States.

SUPREME COURT PETITIONS FILED AND ACTED ON 1981-1984



The Supreme Court of Virginia is responsible for the overall supervision of the entire Virginia Judicial System. Even though the administrative demands on the Supreme Court are great, its primary mission remains that of reviewing decisions of lower courts in which appeals have been allowed. These decisions fall into two basic categories: 1) Decision of lower courts in which questions of proper application of statutory or common law are raised; and 2) Decisions of lower courts based on the question of constitutionality.

The Supreme Court of Virginia has original jurisdiction in cases of habeas corpus, mandamus and prohibition, and in matters of judicial censure, retirement, and removal (Article VI, § 10; Virginia Code §§ 17-96 and 17-98; and Rule 5:5). All other jurisdiction is appellate (Article VI, § 1). The Supreme Court of Virginia has jurisdiction to hear all appeals, both civil (Virginia Code § 8.01-670) and criminal (Virginia Code § 19.2-317) from the circuit courts and appeals from the State Corporation Commission (Virginia Code § 12.1-39).

The Supreme Court meets for five-day sessions beginning in October each year and continuing every seventh week until the completion of its June docket. No session is held in July, but the Court meets in a three-day session in late August or early September. During the recess periods between sessions, the Justices conduct legal research in cases awaiting decision, draft and review opinions, study cases in which petitions for appeal have been filed, conduct hearings on petitions for appeal, and attend to numerous administrative duties. A law clerk and secretary assist each Justice.

In addition to its appellate functions of examining results reached in lower courts and of redefining and developing the body of state law, the Supreme Court is also responsible for the general supervision of the entire Virginia Judicial System. The Chief Justice serves as the administrative head of the system, and he is charged with overseeing its efficient operation.

The Clerk of the Supreme Court reported that 1,915 petitions for appeal and original jurisdiction were filed in the Supreme court during 1984. Of the 33 original jurisdiction cases, 281 were writs of habeas corpus, 44 were writs of mandamus and 8 were for writs of prohibition. Original jurisdiction cases accounted for 17 percent of the total filings. Appellate petitions number 1,582 for the year and of this number 682 were civil, 851 were criminal and 49 were habeas appeals.

By the close of 1984, the Court had acted on 1,919 cases, consistent with the previous year's activity. Of the 1,522 appellate cases, 54 percent (or 815) were criminal, 44 percent (or 664) were civil, 2 percent (or 37) were habeas corpus involving civil cases, and less than one percent (or 6) represented granted appeals remanded to trial courts. Original jurisdiction cases numbered 397, up from the 263 reported in 1983. Writs of Habeas Corpus accounted for 78 percent of these actions (310 cases); Writs of Mandamus represented 20 percent (79 cases); and Writs of Prohibition amounted to 2 percent (8 cases) of the total.

In 1984, six percent or 109 of the total petitions filed were withdrawn before being acted upon. This percentage is somewhat higher than in the previous year. The Court granted 308 petitions during the year, up from the 273 granted in 1983. Of the cases disposed of during 1984, 176 were by Written Opinions and 126 through Orders. Of the cases decided by Opinion, 46 percent affirmed the judgment of the lower court.

Detailed information related to the workload of the Supreme Court may be found on the following tables and in Appendix C.

COURT OF APPEALS

During 1978, the Judicial Council of Virginia authorized a study by the National Center for State Courts to evaluate past court reform activities in Virginia and to develop plans for the future direction of the Court system. The major area of concern identified by that study was the need for relief from appellate court overload. The National Center's report concluded that the appellate caseload was too great for one appellate court.

As a follow-up to this initial study, the Judicial Council prepared and recommended legislation to the 1982 session of the General Assembly suggesting at that time a twelve-judge intermediate appellate court. The legislature recognized the problem but remained divided as to the proper solution. The study concerning the need for an intermediate appellate court continued through 1982.

After years of study by the Judicial Council and other interested groups, the 1983 General Assembly adopted legislation creating the Court of Appeals of Virginia, to be effective January 1, 1985. As originally proposed, the Court of Appeals was to hear appeals as a matter of right in criminal and domestic relations cases as well as in cases that originate in the Industrial Commission.

The 1984 session of the General Assembly appropriated $3.2 million for the Court of Appeals but also enacted several amendments to the legislation adopted a year earlier. The most significant change was in the creation of a petition or writ of error procedure for criminal cases rather than an appeal as a matter of right as had originally been proposed. Criminal cases appealed from circuit courts to the Court of Appeals will proceed by petition similar to the procedure employed by the Supreme Court of Virginia. In moving to the petition process for criminal cases, the 1984 session of the legislature cited significant monetary savings which will be realized by reducing the need for additional attorneys general.

The General Assembly also in 1984 increased the number of judges from nine to ten. Election of these judges occurred at a special legislative session in December 1984. Additionally, a change in the process for electing the chief judge was enacted. The 1984 legislature decided to provide for the selection of the chief judge by a majority vote of the judges of the Court of Appeals. The chief judge's term is four years.

To provide an orderly transition to the Court of Appeals, the General Assembly provided that in any case within the appellate jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals in which the judgment appealed from is entered by a circuit court on or after October 1, 1984, appeal shall only be to the Court of Appeals.

1984 filings by case type (October 1, 1984 — December 31, 1984) to the Court of Appeals are shown in the following chart:

THE CIRCUIT COURTS

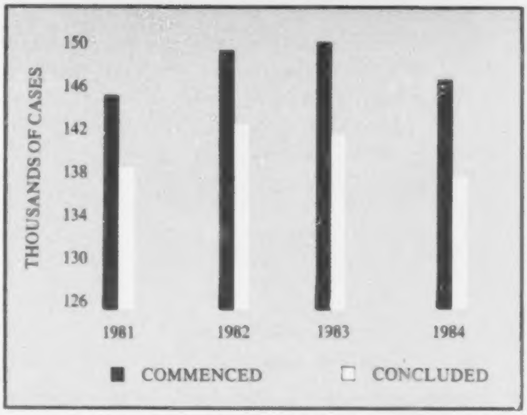
The Circuit Court is the only court with general jurisdiction in the Commonwealth of Virginia. During 1983, 120 judges, 122 locally elected clerks and approximately 725 support staff served the thirty-one judicial circuits.

This court has concurrent jurisdiction with the general district court in civil cases involving claims between $1,000 and $7,000 with the exception of attachments in which the claim must exceed $20,000. They have exclusive jurisdiction over all equity matters such as adoptions, divorces, and land title disputes.

Circuit courts have jurisdiction of proceedings by quo warranto and to issue writs of mandamus, prohibition, and certiorari to all tribunals. They must also issue writs of mandamus in all matters or proceedings arising from or pertaining to the actions of the board of supervisors or other local governing bodies. The appellate jurisdiction extends to all cases, civil and criminal, in which appeal may, as provided by law, be taken from the judgment of any inferior tribunal.

In an effort to improve the overall credibility of information collected, a revised caseload reporting system was implemented in the Circuit Courts on January 1, 1984. In addition to reducing the subjective areas of case counting, the revised scheme expands jury trial data to include the actual number of juries impaneled and sworn; captures the number of defendants involved in criminal cases and provides a mechanism to track each court's inventory of pending cases. When comparing 1984 data to previous years', caution should be exercised in that changes may be the result of the revised reporting procedures and not necessarily an indication of actual caseload increases or decreases.

CIRCUIT COURT CASELOAD
CASES COMMENCED AND CONCLUDED
1981-1984



Circuit courts reported commencing 146,407 cases during 1984 — nearly 600 each day the courts were in operation. The range of commenced cases was a low caseload of 1,996 in the Twenty-Eighth Judicial Circuit to a high of 14,745 cases in the Fourth Circuit. While the average circuit caseload was 4,700 commenced cases, 84 percent of the circuits reported that fewer than 6,000 cases were initiated last year.

During the last twenty years, the caseload of Virginia's circuit courts has grown by 124 percent, while the number of judges has risen from 75 in 1986 to 120 in 1984, a 60 percent increase. In 1984, Virginia circuit court judges handled an average caseload of 1,220 commenced cases each. In rural circuits, the measure was 1,120 while urban judges averaged 1,296 cases each.

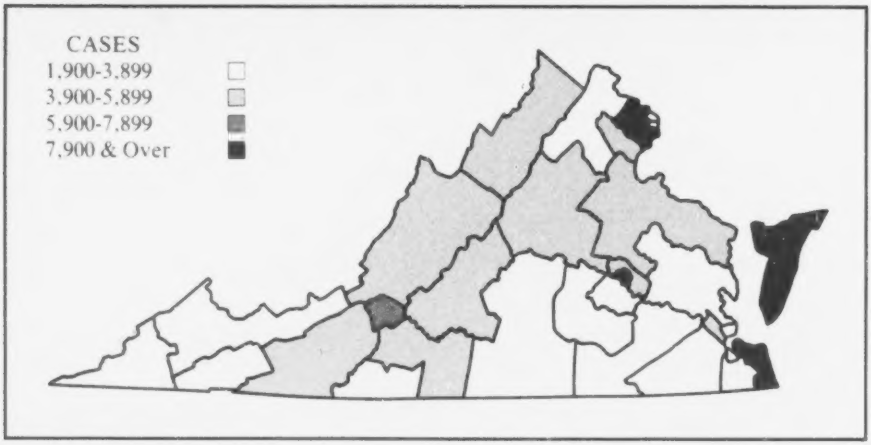
 Implementation of the Revised Caseload Reporting System

By the close of the year, 137,504 cases were concluded by the courts. On the average, judges were responsible for slightly more than 1,100 concluded cases each. The measure for urban area judges was 1,190 while in rural circuits, this average was somewhat lower, 1,088 concluded cases per judge.

The 1984 concluded caseload continued to be less than the number of cases commenced. This has been the trend since 1966, and therefore, the number of pending cases has constantly increased. A total of 128,330 cases were pending at the year's end. Of this number, 48 percent (61,246) were equity, 33 percent (42,147) were law, 13 percent (17,160) were felony and 6 percent (7,777) were misdemeanor. Pending caseload figures do not necessarily indicate a burden upon court time, nor do they reveal delay in case processing. Whether out of preference or strategy, some cases "simply mature" on the docket until a more favorable time. These cases may not represent an immediate demand on judicial resources but merely a deferred normal expenditure of bench time. All court caseloads contain a natural level of pending cases.

CIRCUIT COURT
1984 COMMENCED CASES

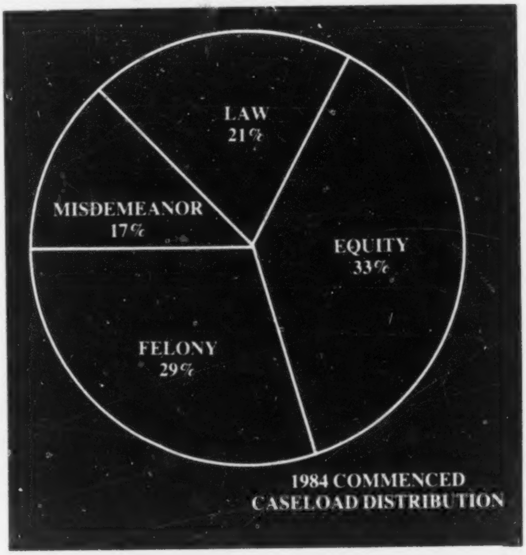


CIVIL

Nearly 80,000 civil filings were processed during 1984. The statewide civil caseload reflected a distribution weighted more heavily with equity cases (60%) than law cases (40%). Of the 79,522 civil cases, 93 percent were placed on the docket as an initial filing; 4 percent were reported as a reinstatement, and 3 percent were initiated due to other circumstances.

Among the 31 circuits, the Nineteenth recorded the largest 1984 caseload with 9,653 civil commenced cases. The Fourth's caseload of 7,041 ranked second highest throughout the state. In comparison, three-fourths of all circuits reported fewer than 2,500 civil cases.

Concluded cases totaled 73,415 for the year. Of the cases disposed of, 28 percent involved a settlement, non-suit or voluntary dismissal; 20 percent were concluded as a result of a decree on depositions; in 16 percent, a judgment was entered following the judicial review of a Commissioner in Chancery's (or the Commissioner of Social Services' in the case of adoptions) report and recommendations; and in 14 percent of the cases, conclusion was reached following a judge trial with witnesses. Jury trials were utilized in two percent of the cases. Slightly more than one-tenth of the concluded cases were purged under either the two or five-year rule. Similar to 1983 figures, four-fifths of the concluded cases reached disposition within twenty-four months of filing — 65 percent of which were concluded within the first twelve months.



1984 COMMENCED CASELOAD DISTRIBUTION

CRIMINAL

The majority (64%) of the 64,089 criminal cases initiated in 1984 involved felony charges. Statewide, 57 percent of the cases began as an "indictment, presentment, information or waiver", 32 percent involved appeals from the district court system and 11 percent were placed on the dockets as reinstatements.

With 7,704 criminal cases, the Fourth Judicial Circuit reported the largest caseload throughout the state. The Nineteenth ranked second with 5,006. Only seven circuits reported criminal caseloads in excess of 2,500 cases during 1984. In comparison, the smallest number of criminal cases (704) was recorded by the Twenty-Eighth Circuit.

By the close of the year, the 31 circuits noted that 64,089 criminal cases had been concluded. Of this number, 46 percent reached disposition with a guilty plea prior to trial; 24 percent were concluded by a judge trial with witnesses; and 16 percent were nol prossed by either the Commonwealth's attorney or local prosecutor. An additional 6 percent utilized juries to conclude the case. The remaining concluded cases fell into the categories of "withdrawal" and "other." Disposition was achieved within five months of filing in 83 percent of the concluded criminal cases.

Courts reported that nearly 36,000 defendants were involved in new criminal cases during the past year. This figure includes only individuals with cases filed as appeals or cases stemming from indictments, presentments, informations or waiver. Felony defendants averaged 1.93 charges each, whereas misdemeanor defendants averaged 1.35 charges during 1983.

JURY TRIALS

In 1984, the circuit courts reported that 3,832 criminal cases (of which 3,154 involved felony charges) were concluded by the 2,569 impaneled juries. For the 1,712 concluded civil cases, 1,866 juries were impaneled and sworn. Generally jury utilization remained consistent with previous year's figure of 4 percent. Slightly more than two percent of the concluded civil cases were concluded by a jury trial while six percent of the criminal concluded cases involved a jury trial. On an average, 5.8 jury trials were held for every 100 concluded law cases and 7.6 for felony cases. The ratio for concluded misdemeanor cases was 3:100 in 1984.

Statewide, judges presided over an average of 37 impaneled juries. The range of this measure was a low of 19 in the Eighth Circuit to an average of 91 impaneled juries per judge in the Third. The number of days Virginia judges spent in jury trials rose from 5,341 in 1983 to 5,533 in 1984. Criminal cases required 53 percent of the total jury days.

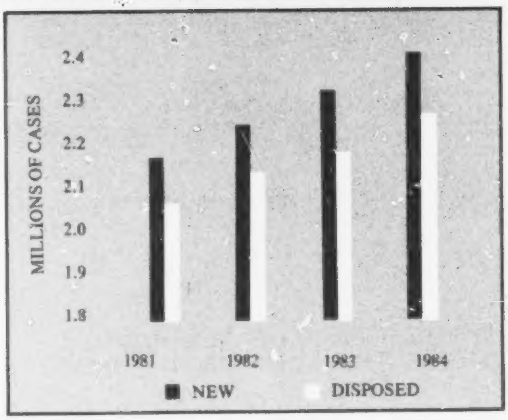
THE DISTRICT COURTS

The Virginia District Court System is composed of 204 courts classified as either general district, juvenile and domestic relations, or combined. During 1984, 169 judges served in the Commonwealth's judicial districts and were supported by 907 persons working in clerks' offices.

General district court cases are categorized as civil, criminal or traffic. The court's civil jurisdiction extends to suits involving amounts of money up to $7,000 and in attachment cases, $20,000. Cases in which a person is charged with a misdemeanor are decided in this court; however, only preliminary hearings are held for felony cases. Jurisdiction extends also to all cases in which an adult is charged with a traffic offense.

Juvenile and domestic relations district courts have exclusive original jurisdiction over all matters and proceedings involving: delinquents; juveniles accused of traffic violations; children in need of services; children who have been subjected to abuse or neglect; adults accused of child abuse or of offenses against members of their own family; adults involved in disputes concerning support, visitation or custody of a child; abandonment of children; foster care and entrustment agreements; court-ordered rehabilitation services; and court consent for certain medical treatments.

DISTRICT COURT CASELOAD
NEW AND DISPOSED CASES
1981-1984



Virginia's district courts reported that 2,403,973 new cases were initiated during 1984. Growing by 4 percent, the rate of increase, as captured by the current uniform docketing system, appears to be stabilizing from a high of 9 percent recorded between 1979 and 1980. The 99.75 judges of the general district courts handled 91 percent of the district's new cases. The balance of 210,791 new cases were heard by the 69.25 juvenile and domestic relations district court judges.

District courts also reported that 3.5 million hearings were scheduled on the courts' docket during the past year. Of this number, 82 percent, or 2,863,294 hearings involved actual judge time. Statewide, an average of 1.19 hearings were held for each new case.

During 1984, nearly 2.3 million cases were concluded by the district courts. The rate of growth of these cases was consistent with the change in new cases, four percent. Statewide 0.94 cases were concluded for every new case initiated.

General District Courts

During the past calendar year, 2,193,182 cases were initiated in Virginia's general district courts, 93,000 more than in the previous year. Clerks reported that approximately 3.1 million hearings were placed on the docket throughout 1984. Of this number, 80 percent, or 2,450,098 hearings, required judge involvement. On the average, 1.12 hearings were held for each new case, a ratio slightly lower than in previous years. By the close of the year, 2,074,685 cases reached disposition, an increase of four percent over 1983.

Increasing caseloads were noted in 20 districts, with the greatest change reported as a 16 percent growth in the Thirteenth's new caseload. Of the districts reporting declining numbers, the Fourteenth noted the largest decrease (-12%).

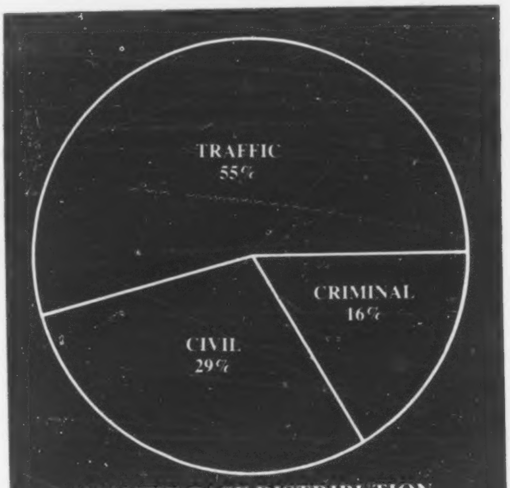
Judges of the general district courts averaged 21,987 new cases and 24,562 hearings. Urban judges averaged 26,037 new cases and 29,964 hearings each while the rural judge measures were 17,681 and 18,820, respectively.

Increasing by less than one percent, criminal new cases numbered 342,697 for the year and represented 16 percent of the total general district caseload. Criminal hearings totaled 656,946, also a slight increase from the number held in 1983. The 1984 hearing per case ratio rose to an average of 1.92 hearings for each new criminal case — the highest ratio within the general district caseload. The range of new criminal cases was a low of 2,233 cases in the Eastern Shore to 39,233 in Norfolk.

The statewide average criminal caseload per judge was 3,436 new cases and 6,586 hearings, an increase from 1983 when these measures were 3,420 and 6,511, respectively.

New traffic cases rose by five percent and reached an all time high of 1,211,059. These cases constituted the bulk of the general district caseload, 55 percent. The courts also reported 1,058,329 hearings and 1,166,320 dispositions. The Nineteenth Judicial District reported the highest traffic caseload throughout the state with 145,214 new cases and 110,734 hearings. The increase in new traffic cases was accompanied by a three percent rise in hearings. Hearings waived totaled 465,927 up six percent from 1983. The ratio of hearings to new traffic cases, 0.87 was indicative of the large number of traffic hearings being waived when compared to the 1977 measure of 1.14. The ratio of dispositions to new cases was 0.96 and consistent with previous year figures.

On the average, Virginia's general district judges presided over 12,141 new traffic cases and 10,610 hearings each during 1984.



1984 NEW CASE DISTRIBUTION

Following a three percent decline reported in 1983, civil filings regained momentum and increased by six percent during the past year. By the close of 1984, the general district courts reported a total civil caseload of 639,426 new cases. Hearings were recorded as 734,823, a two percent rise. The majority (66%) of the 849,265 civil transactions involved suits in debt. Unlawful detainers and garnishments numbered 121,026 and 86,135, respectively. The largest civil caseload was recorded in the Thirteenth District where 165,077 new cases and 153,771 hearings were reported. Richmond's caseload accounted for one-fourth of the state's civil new cases in 1984.

The state average of new civil cases per judge rose to 6,410 and hearings per judge increased to 7,367.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts

In 1984, Virginia's juvenile and domestic relations district courts reported a total caseload that included 210,791 new cases, 413,196 hearings, 425,855 transactions and 187,224 dispositions. Generally, this caseload was comparable with the previous year's figures.

The largest J&DR caseloads were reported by the Nineteenth (19,921 new cases), the Thirteenth (13,970 cases) and the Second (13,786 cases) Judicial Districts. Higher juvenile and domestic relations caseloads were recorded in 21 of the 32 districts when compared to their 1983 workload. The Twenty-Third Judicial District reported the highest percentage increase (14.2%) followed by a 13.7 percent rise in the new caseload of the Twelfth.

On the average, each of the state's juvenile and domestic relations district court judges handled 3,044 new cases and 5,967 hearings in 1984. Urban judges averaged 3,426 and 6,848, respectively. Experiencing somewhat lower averages, rural judges were responsible for 2,682 new cases and 5,131 hearings during the past calendar year.

After experiencing a decrease between 1982 and 1983, the number of juvenile new cases remained fairly stable in 1984, increasing by less than 200. The 128,762 juvenile cases accounted for slightly more than three-fifths of the total J&DR filings. The change in new cases was accompanied by a 4,600 jump in hearings. Representing a two percent increase, hearings totaled 237,725 for the year. On the average 1.85 hearings were held for each juvenile case. This ratio was slightly above the 1.81 recorded in 1983. Of the 248,260 hearings scheduled on the court's dockets, 108,220 (44%) were criminal in nature, 73,198 (29%) involved custody related matters, 55,033 (22%) dealt with traffic infractions and the remaining transactions, 11,809, were for status offenses. Criminal and status transactions fell from the previous year's figures. Custody transactions increased by seven percent and traffic transactions grew by five percent when compared with the numbers reported in 1983.

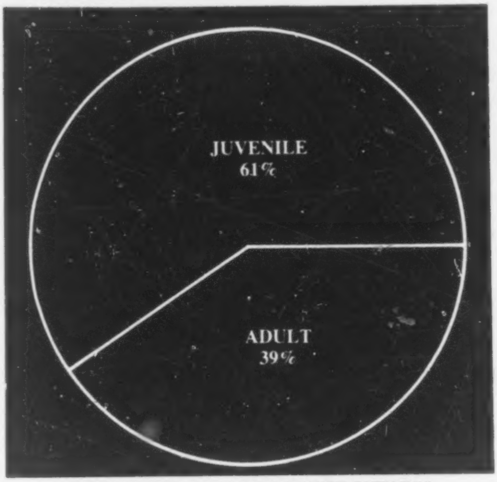
The adult caseload was composed of 82,029 new cases, 175,471 hearings, 177,595 transactions and 71,989 dispositions. All categories recorded growth in 1984; most interestingly, hearings grew by six percent while new cases experienced a growth of less than one percent. This latter change resulted in a higher hearing per case ratio (2.14) than in 1983 when an average of 2.03 adult hearings were held for each new case. The distribution of adult transactions has shifted from an even split in 1980 to a distribution weighted more heavily with non-support hearings (53%) than criminal hearings (47%).



1984 NEW CASE DISTRIBUTION

Juvenile and domestic relations district courts reported that on the average, 76,120 support cases are handled monthly. This figure was six percent (4,033 cases) higher than in 1983 and forty-six percent (24,086 cases) greater than in 1980.

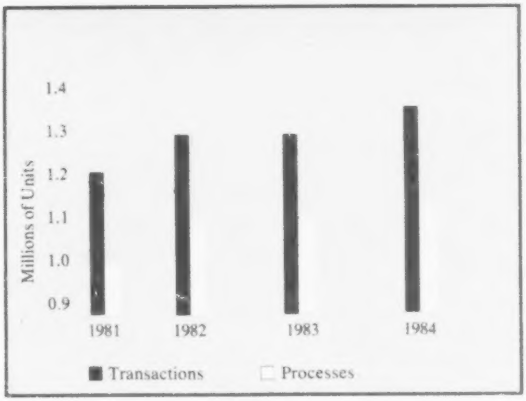
THE MAGISTRATE SYSTEM

There were 32 Chief Magistrates and 417 magistrates authorized to serve in the Virginia Magistrate System during 1984. Magistrates are appointed by the Chief Circuit Court Judge for a four-year term. However, they must pass a certification examination at the Supreme Court within the first six months of the term or their appointments will be terminated at the end of the six months.

Magistrates are to provide independent, unbiased reviews of complaints brought to their offices by police officers, sheriffs, deputies, and citizens. One of the primary duties of magistrate is conducting bond hearings to set bail in instances in which an individual is charged with a criminal offense. Magistrates also issue various types of processes such as arrest warrants, summonses, search warrants, subpoenas, and civil warrants. A magistrate may also accept prepayments for traffic infractions and minor misdemeanors.

Each judicial district has authorization for a number of magistrates and one chief magistrate. Many of the more urbanized areas utilize full-time magistrates who work on a shift basis to maintain an office twenty-four hours a day. On the other hand, most of the rural magistrates work on an availability basis and are contacted as needed. Other magistrates work on a fixed schedule during the day and are "on call" in the evenings.

MAGISTRATE SYSTEM
TRANSACTIONS AND PROCESSES
1981-1984

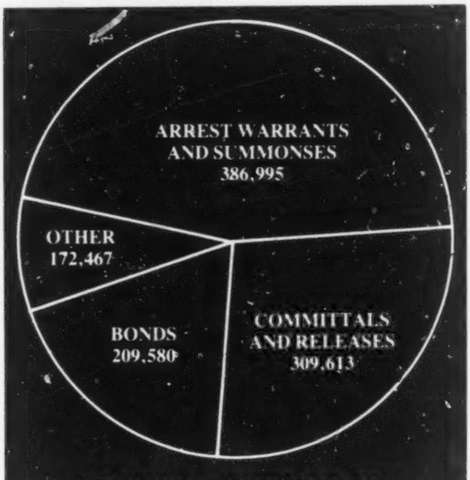


During the calendar year 1984, the 449 magistrates of Virginia reported being available and "on call" 1,336,449 hours, of which 560,610 were spent in providing actual services to the public. The demand for magistrate services is best described by the number of transactions (requests for processes) along with the number of incoming telephone calls and in-person inquiries. In 1984, there was a total of 1,330,302 requests for processes, 746,648 telephone calls and 292,877 inquiries as recorded by magistrates statewide. These requests for information or services came to nearly 2.4 million requests, an increase of nearly 100,000 requests over 1983.

Magistrates issued 1,078,655 processes (including prepayments) in response to the requests. Processes were issued at a rate of eight for every ten requests which was similar to the two years preceeding, although nearly 22,000 more processes were issued. Processes ranged from a high of 103,840 in the Fourth Judicial District to a low of 4,155 in District 2A. These districts constituted the same range of processes in 1983 as well. Ranked behind the Fourth District in the number of processes issued was the Nineteenth District with 96,954, the Thirteenth District ranked third with 65,979, the Twenty-Ninth District ranked fourth with 57,191 and ranked fifth was the Second District with 49,254 processes. Slightly more than one-half of the districts recorded increases in the number of processes issued. Increases in the number of processes issued ranged from a 1 percent increase in the Second District to a 32 percent increase in the Thirteenth.

There was a total of 342,994 arrest warrants and 44,001 summonses issued in 1984. This reflected an increase of 7,537 arrest warrants and nearly 4,000 summonses over 1983 figures. Of the arrest warrants issued, 51,953 (15%) were felony warrants and 291,041 (85%) were misdemeanors. This was the same distribution recorded in the previous year.

The number of bonds processed in 1984 (209,580) declined about 900 or less than one percent. The issuance distribution was 14 percent felony and 86 percent misdemeanor which was similar to previous years. Unsecured bonds were issued at a rate of 1.7 to every secured bond, the same as the previous year. Bonds composed 19 percent of the total processes issued in 1984. When combined with arrest warrants and summonses, these processes accounted for 55 percent of the total process activity. Prepayment of traffic fines and costs and Class IV misdemeanors declined by nearly 4,300 (13%) from 1983.



PROCESS DISTRIBUTION

Magistrates also issued 3,306 search warrants and 93,510 civil processes. These figures represent increases of 155 search warrants and 800 civil processes. Committals and release orders made up a substantial portion of the workload (29%) and numbered 169,979 and 139,634, respectively. Committals increased by nearly five percent and release orders increased by almost four percent over 1983. The number of mental detention orders and subpoenas issued also increased slightly. They numbered 4,885 and 42,230, respectively.

Caseload Summaries By Circuit And District

FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The First Judicial Circuit consists solely of the city of Chesapeake which had a population of 114,486 according to the 1980 census. The juvenile population, those under eighteen years of age, comprised 32 percent of the total population. Projections conducted by the state Department of Planning and Budget estimate that the population of Chesapeake will grow to 162,500 by the year 2000, a 42 percent increase over 1980's figure.

Two judgeships were authorized for the circuit during 1984. Filling these positions were William L. Forbes and William H. Hodges. Effective January 1, 1985, Judge Hodges began serving in his newly elected position on the Court of Appeals. His vacancy was filled by Judge Russell I. Townsend, Jr., who was elevated from the general district bench. Also, the judges of the Fifth Circuit continued to assist the Chesapeake court. In addition to Judge Townsend, Judge Charles B. Cross, Jr. served in the general district court during 1984. The retirement of Judge Cross on February 1, 1985, and the election of Judge Townsend to the circuit court created two vacancies in the general district court. The General Assembly elected Stephen L. Comfort and Robert R. Carter to fill these judgeship vacancies. Authorized to serve the juvenile and domestic relations court were E.P. Grissom and James A. Leftwich. Judge Leftwich continued to assist the J&DR court of the Fifth District during 1984. The district judges utilized 34 substitute judge days and no recalled retired judge days. Each judge averaged 8.5 assistance days each. This was well below the statewide average of 13.9 assistance days per district court judge. The statewide average for the previous year was 22.6 assistance days for each judge.

There was an increase of 93 new cases commenced (3,022) in 1984 as compared to 1983. This resulted from a nine percent increase in civil cases (150) partially offset by a five percent decrease in criminal cases (57). The final distribution of cases was 22 percent law, 38 percent equity, 25 percent felony and 15 percent misdemeanor. Equity cases varied the most from the statewide distribution which was 33 percent for equity cases. The 3,015 concluded cases during 1984 reflected a four percent increase from 1983. Fifty-two percent (925) of the total concluded civil cases (1,763) were terminated within twelve months of filing and 91 percent of the 1,252 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months. Also, there was an increase of seven pending cases over the previous year to bring the total number of pending cases to 3,113.

The Chesapeake General District Court recorded 39,932 new cases in 1984, 64 fewer than in 1983. The slight decrease in commenced cases was due to a reduction of 472 criminal cases and 285 traffic cases. This was partially offset by an increase of nearly 700 civil cases. The number of hearings increased 58,773 (2%) in 1984. The caseload composition for the court was 18 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 27 percent civil. This was similar to the statewide distribution of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

A total of 5,317 new cases were reported in the juvenile and domestic relations court in 1984. Of these, 3,306 were juvenile cases (2% increase) and 2,011 were adult cases (−2% decrease). The total number of new cases increased less than one percent, while hearings rose by nearly eight percent. For adults, the average number of hearings per case was 3.35 which ranked third highest among all 32 districts. The juvenile and adult caseload composition was 62 percent and 38 percent, respectively. This was nearly identical with the statewide caseload distribution of 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult.

A total of nine magistrates were authorized to serve the First District in 1984. They reported 15,818 hours of activity during which they received 16,685 telephone calls, 3,416 inquiries from the public and 30,185 requests for processes. This resulted in the issuance of 24,862 processes or 82 percent of the total requested. Arrest warrants (7,297) accounted for 29 percent of the processes issued. Of the 5,047 bonds issued, 46 percent were unsecured bonds (2,312) and 54 percent were secured (2,735). Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 8.8 for every 10 requested, and bonds were issued at a rate of 5.4 for every 10 requested. Other processes issued by the magistrates were 9,118 civil warrants, 2,523 committals and releases, 604 subpoenas, and 122 search warrants.

SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Serving the city of Virginia Beach and the Eastern Shore counties of Accomack and Northampton is the Second Judicial Circuit. With 262,199 residents, Virginia Beach represented 85 percent of the circuit's total 1980 census population of 308,092. It is anticipated that the population will grow to 466,800 by the year 2000. If so, this will become the second most populous circuit, according to a study by the state Department of Planning and Budget. While the Eastern Shore is expected to increase by seven percent, Virginia Beach is projected to jump by a noteworthy 59 percent.

Seven judgeships were authorized for the circuit in 1984. Serving in these positions were Bernard G. Barrow, N. Wescott Jacob, Henry L. Lam, Austin E. Owen, Philip L. Russo, H. Calvin Spain, Kenneth N. Whitehurst. Judge Barrow was elected by the General Assembly to serve on the Court of Appeals effective January 1, 1985. Edward W. Hanson, Jr., was elected to fill the circuit court vacancy. An additional judgeship was created for the circuit effective July 1, 1985. Judge John K. Moore was elevated from the juvenile and domestic relations court to become the circuits eighth judge. Judges John B. Preston, R. Stanley Hudgins, Edward W. Hanson, Jr., and Alan E. Rosenblatt served in the general district court of Virginia Beach. The vacancy created by Judge Hanson's election was filled by Robert L. Simpson, Jr., effective March 1, 1985. Serving in the juvenile and domestic relations district court were Frederick P. Aucamp, John K. Moore and J. Davis Reed. The vacancy created by Judge Moore's election to the circuit court will be filled by Jerome B. Friedman. The general district judges reported an average of 16.3 substitute and recalled judge days utilized per judge. Judge Wescott B. Northam continued to serve a combined judgeship for the district courts on the Eastern Shore (Judicial District Two-A).

During the year, the circuit courts of the Second reported 9,695 commenced cases, a six percent increase from 1983. The circuit's caseload ranked third highest statewide. The caseload rise resulted from a 13 percent jump (468 cases) in the number of criminal cases which totaled 4,139. The criminal caseload ranked fourth highest in the state. Civil cases increased by one percent to bring the civil caseload to 5,556, third highest statewide. The caseload composition of 22 percent law, 35 percent equity, 27 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor differed marginally from the statewide distribution. Sixty-six percent (3,522) of the total concluded civil cases (5,340) were terminated within one year of filing. Nearly four-fifths of the concluded criminal cases (4,180) were disposed of within five months of initiation.

The only locality in the Second Judicial District is the City of Virginia Beach. The general district court was ranked fourth highest in the number of new cases in 1984. The court's caseload of 104,361 new cases and 121,572 hearings represented increases of three and seven percent, respectively, over the caseload reported in 1983. New civil cases increased significantly by 19 percent and numbered 24,705. These cases accounted for nearly one-fourth of the district's new caseload. Criminal new cases increased by seven percent and totaled 19,512. This represented nearly one-fifth of the total caseload. Declining from the previous year, traffic cases made up the remaining 58 percent of the caseload with 60,144 cases. Both criminal and traffic case categories ranked fourth highest in the Commonwealth.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported slight decreases in cases during 1984 for the third consecutive year. Nevertheless, as in 1983, the Second's J&DR courts continued to have the third highest caseload in Virginia. The total number of commenced cases declined by two percent to 13,786. The juvenile caseload decreased by one percent yet represented the second highest juvenile caseload. The adult cases filed dropped by four percent and constituted the third highest number of cases among all districts in the adult case category. The distribution of cases was 66 percent juvenile and 34 percent adult.

Authorized for the Second District in 1984 were 16 magistrate positions. Of the 58,189 transactions completed, 49,2[illegible]4 or 85 percent of the requests resulted in the issuance of a process. The district ranked fifth highest in the total number of processes issued. Of the 19,585 arrest warrants issued, 65 percent were for misdemeanors (12,703). There were nearly 9,000 bonds issued of which 6,305 (70%) were unsecured. In addition, there were 11,312 committals and releases and 6,510 subpoenas issued.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT TWO-A

The counties of Accomack and Northampton form District Two-A. In 1984, the general district courts noted a 14 percent rise in caseload and a 6 percent increase in the number of hearings. The actual number of new cases came to 20,834 and hearings totaled 14,666. Of the new cases, traffic cases jumped by 28 percent. Criminal and civil cases decreased by three and two percent, respectively. Accomack County noted an increase in all case types resulting in a 16 percent increase overall. Northampton County recorded significant reductions in criminal (−26%) and civil cases (−18%). However, Northampton did note a 44 percent increase in traffic cases. The caseload distribution of 28 percent for civil cases was nearly identical with the statewide distribution for civil cases (29%). While the criminal case percentage (11%) was lower than the statewide average of 16 percent, the composition for traffic cases (61%) was substantially higher than the average of 55 percent for the state as a whole.

Both counties reported caseload increases in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts in 1984. Accomack County recorded a significant increase (17%) while Northampton County recorded a one percent growth. The overall rate of growth in cases was 11 percent. Hearings rose 16 percent. The district had the smallest caseload of any district with 1,154 total cases. The distribution of these cases was 59 percent juvenile (686) and 41 percent adult (468).

The four magistrates assigned to the district in 1984 reported 3,748 activity hours, 5,854 public inquiries, and 4,879 process requests. Eighty-five percent of the requests resulted in a process being issued. Transactions and processes increased by the identical rate of 17 percent each. Arrest warrants (2,143) were issued at a rate of 9.4 for every 10 requested. For every 10 bond requests, 5.7 were granted. Together, arrest warrants and bonds accounted for 70 percent of the process activity. The magistrates issued 853 committals and releases, 8 subpoenas, 18 search warrants, 23 temporary mental detention orders, and 2 civil warrants. Prepayments for 347 traffic and Class IV misdemeanors was received during 1984.

THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Third Judicial Circuit serves the city of Portsmouth. This locality had a 1980 population of 104,577 which included 30,024 juveniles. Of significance, the circuit's projected population for the year 2000 is expected to decrease by nearly 8,000 persons from 1980 and total 96,800 residents by that year.

Judges serving the third circuit were Dennis F. McMurran, William H. Oast, Jr., and Lester E. Schlitz. The general district court judges were Archie E. Elliott, Jr., Stanley L. Morris, Jr., and James A. Cales, Jr. Judges Cecil W. Johnson and Von L. Piersall continued to serve the juvenile and domestic relations court. During FY 84, the five district court judges used only an average of 1.7 assistance days each. This was the second lowest average reported statewide.

The three circuit judges experienced a five percent reduction (181) in the total number of cases commenced (3,879) during 1984. A total of 4,060 commenced cases were reported in 1983. Criminal cases commenced declined by 166 cases (−7%) and there were 15 fewer civil cases commenced (−1%). The number of cases concluded declined by 13 percent (490 cases) to number 3,363. Of the 1,460 total civil cases concluded, 56 percent or 813 cases were terminated within 12 months of filing. There were 1,903 criminal cases concluded in 1984 and 93 percent of these (1,775) were disposed of within 150 days of initiation. There was a nine percent increase (516 cases) in the number of total pending cases (6,090). The final case composition was 21 percent law, 20 percent equity, 30 percent felony and 29 percent misdemeanor. The equity and misdemeanor caseloads differed substantially from the statewide allocation of 33 percent equity and 17 percent misdemeanor.

In 1984, the Third District's general district court caseload grew by ten percent and numbered 59,896. This increase was caused by a rise in both traffic (9%) and civil (18%) cases. Criminal cases declined by six percent. The distribution of new cases for Portsmouth was 16 percent criminal, 44 percent traffic and 40 percent civil. Commensurate with the increased caseload was an increase of more than seven percent in the number of hearings.

In 1984, the juvenile and domestic relations caseload was 4,226 new cases with 11,116 hearings. This was nearly a four percent increase in new cases and two percent increase in the number of hearings. The average number of hearings per adult case (3.14) ranked the fourth highest among all districts. While juvenile cases decreased by 17 cases from 1983, adults cases increased by 172 cases (10%). The distribution of juvenile and adult cases was 56 percent and 44 percent, respectively. Statewide, the distribution was 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult.

In 1984, the five magistrates of the Third District worked 9,981 hours during which they issued 23,583 processes, an increase of eight percent from 1983. The number of processes issued equaled 84 percent of those requested (28,010). The migistrate offices received 22,089 telephone inquires and 5,819 in-person inquiries (a total of 27,908 inquiries). Misdemeanor arrest warrants (7,438) composed 81 percent of the 9,204 arrest warrants issued. Felony warrants numbered 877 and summonses equaled 889. The number of unsecured misdemeanor bonds represented 3,317 or 99 percent of all unsecured bonds (3,364). Misdemeanor secured bonds equaled 2,380 or 99 percent of all secured bonds (2,609). The combination of arrest warrants and bonds constituted 64 percent of all processes issued. Arrest warrants were issued at of rate of nine for every 10 requested. Bonds were issued at a rate of 6.4 for every 10 requested. Other significant quantities of processes issued were subpoenas (1,141), mental detention orders (444) and jail committals and releases (6,654).

FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Norfolk is the single locality in the Fourth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 census listed Norfolk as having a population of 266,979 residents. By the year 2000, this area is projected to have a decrease of 26,979 persons, an 11 percent decline in population from 1980.

During 1984, there were nine circuit court judgeships authorized. Filling these positions were Joseph E. Baker, William Moultrie Guerry, Morris B. Gutterman, John E. Clarkson, Thomas R. McNamara, Jerome James, Robert W. Stewart, Alfred W. Whitehurst and John W. Winston. With the election of Judge Baker to the Court of Appeals by the General Assembly effective January 1, 1985, Judge Leonard B. Sachs of the general district court was elevated to the circuit bench effective February 16, 1985. General District Court judges included Joseph A. Jordan, Jr., Lawrence C. Lawless, Fred E. Martin, Jr., Leonard B. Sachs and Reid M. Spencer. Joseph H. Campbell was elected to replace Judge Sachs effective March 1, 1985. Lydia C. Taylor was elected to serve in a sixth judgeship authorized by the General Assembly effective July 1, 1985. The juvenile and domestic relations courts were served by James H. Flippen, Jr., John C. Morrison, Jr., and Lester V. Moore, Jr. During FY 84, the district judges reported a total of 61 assistance days. This compares to a total of 134 assistance days noted in 1983.

During 1984, there were 14,745 new cases commenced. This was 201 cases fewer than in 1983. The Fourth Circuit recorded more new cases than any other circuit. In addition, the caseloads for the civil (7,041) and criminal (7,704) ranked second and first largest, respectively. Both civil and criminal cases declined slightly from the preceding year. The caseload dispersion for the circuit was 17 percent law, 31 percent equity, 26 percent felony and 26 percent misdemeanor. This differed somewhat from the statewide distribution of 21 percent law, 33 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor. The number of concluded cases (11,388) was 425 cases fewe[illegible]an recorded in 1983. Three percent (327) of the case dispositions were terminated by 21[illegible]paneled juries. Seventy percent of the 4,238 concluded civil cases were eliminated within one year of filing. Of the criminal cases concluded (7,150), 82 percent were disposed of within five months. With respect to the number of cases pending (11,033), there was nearly a 44 percent increase (3,357 cases) from 1983.

Ranking third highest in the state, the caseload in Norfolk's general district court rose to 177,846. This represented an increase of one percent from 1983. Also, Norfolk was ranked first in criminal cases, third in traffic cases and second in civil cases among all districts. The court sits in three divisions. New cases in the criminal division declined to 39,233 and represented 22 percent of the total caseload. The traffic division's caseload of 73,128 was consistent with the number reported in 1983. Traffic cases accounted for slightly more than two-fifths of the district's new case total. Civil cases numbered 65,485 and represented the remaining 37 percent of the caseload. This varied from the 1984 statewide caseload distribution of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

The juvenile and domestic relations court experienced substantial increases in both new cases (10%) and hearings (20%) in 1984. This brought the total number of new cases to 11,596 and the number of hearings to 26,973. Juvenile cases grew by nine percent and adult cases jumped by 12 percent. The breakout of new cases revealed that juvenile cases comprised 62 percent and adult cases encompassed 38 percent of the total commenced caseload. This was close to the statewide distribution of 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult. Interestingly, the juvenile and domestic relations court ranked fourth highest in the overall number of new cases and also in both juvenile and adult caseloads.

The thirteen magistrates assigned to the Fourth District recorded the highest number of processes issued (103,840) of all 32 districts. Processes were issued at a rate of 8.6 for every ten process requests (120,125). Magistrates worked 21,192 hours during which they received 51,479 inquiries by telephone and 37,236 in-person inquiries. Arrest warrants (nearly 33,000) were issued primarily for misdemeanors (18,332 or 56%) and summonses (10,596 or 32%). Ninety-four percent of the arrest warrant requests were granted. Bonds (12,079) were issued at a rate of 4.6 for every 10 requests.

FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Included in the Fifth Judicial Circuit are the counties of Isle of Wight and Southampton and the cities of Franklin and Suffolk. The population of the Fifth Circuit was 95,263 residents, according to the 1980 census. Of this number, 27,750 were under eighteen years of age. The Department of Planning and Budget has projected that the circuit's population should reach 104,200 residents by the year 2000.

During 1984, three judges were authorized to serve the circuit. They were E. Everett Bagnell, James C. Godwin and Benjamin A. Williams, Jr. These judges continued to assist the First Judicial Circuit. As in 1983, the judges serving the general district court were Robert B. Edwards and William Wellington Jones. Judge William R. Moore, Jr. served on the bench of the juvenile and domestic relations district court and received assistance during the year from Judge Leftwich of the First District. During FY 84, each district judge, on the average, used 9.7 substitute and recalled retired judge days. This fell below the 13.9 assistance days per judge averaged statewide.

The caseload for the circuit court decreased by 18 percent (553 cases) in 1984 from the previous year. The decrease was attributable mainly to the civil caseload which dropped by 34 percent from 1983. The number of criminal cases recorded (1,523) was only 36 cases or one percent less than the 1983 mark. The city of Suffolk accounted for the greatest portion of the decline in caseload by posting a 27 percent reduction in commenced cases. Southampton County decreased in caseload by two percent and Isle of Wight County noted the only increase in cases commenced (6%). The final caseload composition of 16 percent law, 25 percent equity, 37 percent felony and 22 percent misdemeanor varied markedly from the statewide distribution. There were 171 fewer cases concluded in 1984 (2,527) than during the previous year. Ninety of the cases were disposed by jury trial. Of the 958 civil cases concluded, nearly three-fourths were terminated within the first year of their filing. Of the total 1,569 concluded criminal cases, 1,019 or 65 percent were disposed of within 150 days.

The general district courts of the Fifth District registered an increase in new cases of 11 percent and the number of hearings rose about three percent. An increase of 20 percent (4,522) in the total number of traffic cases (27,179) accounted for the overall caseload expansion. Both criminal and civil cases decreased one and six percent, respectively. All localities posted increases in the number of new cases. The city of Franklin posted increases in all case types. The distribution of new cases among the three categories of cases was 13 percent criminal, 66 percent traffic and 21 percent civil. The traffic case distribution was well over the statewide average while criminal and civil cases fell short of the statewide mark.

There were 4,079 new cases and 8,945 hearings recorded in the juvenile and domestic relations courts. New cases declined by 153 from 1983 and total number of hearings increased by 46 cases in 1984. The slight reduction in new cases was most closely linked to the eight percent caseload decline in the city of Suffolk. The city of Franklin posted the only substantial increase in cases (14%) among the four localities. The caseload composition was nearly evenly divided among juvenile (52%) and adults (48%).

The nine magistrates of the Fifth District reported 14,807 hours of activity during 1984. They received 16,229 telephone calls and 6,416 in-person inquiries and handled 29,743 requests for processes. Processes (22,894) were issued for 77 percent of the requests. There were nearly 200 fewer processes issued in 1984 than in 1983. Most of the process activity was devoted to the issuance of arrest warrants (6,825), bonds (4,714), committals and releases (5,960) and civil warrants (4,574). Misdemeanor arrest warrants constituted 85 percent of the arrest warrants issued. The majority of the bonds issued were secured (64% or 3,021) and of these, 84 percent (2,546) were for misdemeanor offenses. Other recorded activity included the issuance of 207 temporary mental detention orders and the processing of 440 prepayments for traffic infractions.

SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Sixth Circuit includes the counties of Brunswick, Greensville, Prince George, Surry and Sussex, as well as the cities of Emporia and Hopewell. The population of the circuit was 97,425 citizens according to the 1980 census. It is anticipated that the circuit will experience an increase of slightly more than 6,000 new residents by the year 2000. Approximately 30 percent of the 1980 population were juveniles.

Judges William Park Lemmond, Jr., and Robert G. O'Hara, Jr., continued to serve the Sixth Circuit in 1984. Judges James A. Luke and C.C. Connelly sat on the general district court bench. Judge Connelly retired on April 23, 1985 and on May 2, 1985, John C. Baker filled the vacant judgeship. Samuel E. Campbell and C.A. Perkinson served the J&DR courts of the Sixth District. The four district court judges averaged 10.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days each last year. This compares to the 27.1 assistance days per judge recorded in FY 83.

The two judges of the Sixth Circuit reported that 2,025 cases were commenced in 1984. This was a nine percent decrease from 1983 figures. This decline was due to a 16 percent reduction in civil cases commenced (196 fewer cases). The city of Hopewell recorded the most significant caseload reduction with 176 fewer civil cases (-34%). Surry County had an overall decrease of 26 percent (33 cases). The counties of Greensville and Sussex were the two localities to record slight increases. They noted a combined increase of 39 cases. The distribution of cases for the circuit was 18 percent law, 34 percent equity, 33 percent felony and 15 percent misdemeanor. Forty-nine more cases were concluded in 1984 (2,043) than in the previous year (1,994). Seventy-one of the total concluded cases were disposed of by jury trials. Sixty-two percent of the 1,063 civil cases concluded were eliminated within 12 months of initiation. Slightly more than three-fourths of the 980 criminal cases were disposed of within five months of initiation.

An overall caseload rise of nearly 7,000 cases or 11 percent was reported in the general district courts in 1984. New cases totaled 69,376 for the year and reflected the ninth highest caseload among all districts. Although civil cases declined by 3 percent, criminal and traffic cases rose by 8 and 13 percent, respectively. Likewise, the number of hearings held in the Sixth District increased 6 percent in 1984 and were reported at 52,143. Within the district, substantial growth was reported for the caseloads of Sussex (10%), Greensville (22%), Hopewell (27%) and Prince George (33%). In contrast, the courts in Emporia, Brunswick and Surry noted declines of 6, 11 and 22 percent, respectively. The caseload distribution was 9 percent criminal, 80 percent traffic and 11 percent civil. This differed markedly from the statewide breakout of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

Increases in new cases and hearings occurred in the juvenile and domestic relations courts in 1984. The number of new cases commenced was 3,534, a six percent increase. Hearings expanded by only one-half the rate of new cases and numbered 8,281 by the end of 1984. Among juvenile cases, the average number of hearings per case was 2.49, fifth highest in the state. Juvenile cases increased by an additional 79 cases and the adult caseload grew by 133 cases.

Eighteen magistrate positions were authorized for the district, one less than the previous year. They responded to 10,250 telephone inquires and 5,900 in-person inquiries from the public. Transactions (24,363) and processes (20,239) continued to decline in number. Total transactions decreased by 16 percent and total processes dropped by 8 percent from 1983 levels. Arrest warrants were granted for 88 percent (7,560) of the total number of requests (8,606). There were 6,501 misdemeanor warrants issued and these constituted 86 percent of the arrest warrants issued. Bonds (4,748) were issued at a rate of seven for every ten requests (6,820). Unsecured bonds comprised 57 percent of the bonds issued. Together, arrest warrants and bonds equaled 61 percent of all processes issued. The magistrates also issued 1,478 subpoenas, 70 search warrants, 79 civil warrants, 5,311 jail committals and releases, and accepted prepayment for 935 processes for traffic infractions.

SEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Serving the city of Newport News is the Seventh Judicial Circuit. This cirucit served 144,903 citizens according to the 1980 census. Of these, 41,223 were categorized as juveniles under eighteen years of age. By the year 2000, this locality is predicted to grow to 154,200 citizens.

The judges serving the Seventh Circuit during 1984 were Fred W. Bateman, Douglas M. Smith and J. Warren Stephens. The five judgeships authorized for the district courts were served by Robert W. Curran, James H. Harvell and Randolph T. West in the general district court and F. Thompson Wheeler II and Robert M. Yacobi in the J&DR court. These district judges utilized a total of 50.9 assistance days during FY 84. This averaged to 10.2 assistance days per judge which was below the 13.9 statewide average.

The circuit courts noted an increase of 136 new cases in 1984 bringing the total to 4,247. Similar to other circuits in 1984, the increase was due to additional civil cases being filed. The final apportionment of cases was 22 percent law, 35 percent equity, 27 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was similar to the statewide percentages. There were 4,211 cases concluded during 1984, a decrease of 150 cases from 1983. Ninety-five of the cases reached disposition through jury trial. Ninety juries were impaneled in 1984 to resolve these cases. Three-fourths of the 2,400 civil case dispositions came within one year of filing. Of the 1,811 criminal terminations, 1,586 or 88 percent were eliminated within five months of initial filing. The number of cases pending increased from 3,162 during 1983 to 3,198 for 1984, an increase of one percent.

The caseload in the general district court decreased for the fourth consecutive year. A total of 62,062 new cases were commenced, 1,234 fewer than in 1983. The court also experienced a 12 percent drop in the number of hearings. Criminal and traffic cases decreased noticeably with declines of 21 and 13 percent, respectively. Civil cases, on the other hand, increased by a substantial 17 percent and ranked third highest statewide in the number of new civil cases commenced. Compared with the statewide composition of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil, the district court had a new case distribution of 15 percent criminal, 35 percent traffic and 50 percent civil.

The juvenile and domestic relations court reported an increase of 570 new cases (13%). Of the total 5,000 new cases, 2,545 were juvenile and 2,455 were adult. Adult cases increased by a significant 18 percent while juvenile cases increased by 8 percent. The number of total hearings grew 14 percent. The number of hearings per case in juvenile cases was 2.67, fourth highest among all districts.

The six magistrates of Newport News reported 10,675 activity hours in 1984. Requests for processes totaled 41,855, 7,000 fewer than in 1983. Total processes issued (29,664) were 3,640 fewer than the previous year. Transactions and processes had declined in 1983 as well. Arrest warrants (14,628) of which 9,786 (67%) were for misdemeanors, accounted for nearly one-half of all processes issued. Committals and releases (10,199) constituted the second largest category of processes (34%). Arrest warrants and committals and releases combined accounted for 83 percent of all processes. Unsecured bonds (2,[illegible]91) represented 64 percent of all bonds granted (4,502). Bonds were issued at a rate of 4.5 for every 10 bonds requested (10,048). The magistrates also [illegible] 207 search warrants, and 120 temporary mental detention orders.

EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Eighth Judicial Circuit serves the city of Hampton. This area had a population of 122,617 in 1980 according to the Bureau of the Census. The juvenile population comprised 29 percent or 35,639 of the total population. From the 1980 figure, the circuit is expected to grow by more than 4,000 individuals by the year 2000.

Edgar A. Massenburg, Nelson T. Overton and John D. Gray served in the circuit court judgeships during 1984. Judge Massenburg retired effective January 1, 1985, and his position was filled by Walter J. Ford on February 16, 1985. Serving the general district court were Henry D. Kashouty and Thomas H. Wilson, II. A third judgeship position was added effective July 1, 1985. Judge Wilford Taylor, Jr. will fill the newly authorized position. Paul Crider, Jr., and Nelson T. Durden continued to serve in the juvenile and domestic relations court. The four district court judges recorded 12.6 substitute judge days each during FY 84 which was similar to the 13.9 days per judge averaged statewide.

The Eighth Circuit reported that 2,953 cases were commenced in 1984, a decline of three percent from 1983. While the number of civil cases increased by 202 cases (12%), criminal cases dropped by more than 21 percent (288 cases). The circuit reported the following caseload composition: law (22%), equity (42%), felony (16%) and misdemeanor (20%). The number of cases reaching disposition (2,846) declined by nine percent from 1983. Only a small percentage of the cases (2%) were resolved by jury trial. Approximately three-fifths of the 1,738 civil dispositions were resolved within 12 months of filing. The vast majority (96%) of the criminal case conclusions (1,108) were terminated within five months of initiation. The number of pending cases (2,532) rose by four percent or an additional 107 cases. There were 57 juries impaneled during 1984.

The 1984 caseload in Hampton's general district court was nearly identical in number to that reported in 1983. There was a slight increase in the number of hearings which rose to 79,298 in 1984. The criminal and traffic caseloads experienced marginal increases of five and four percent, respectively. Civil cases continued to decline in number, posting a seven percent decrease from 1983 figures. A 15 percent reduction in civil cases was recorded in 1983. The caseload composition of 21 percent criminal, 45 percent traffic and 34 percent civil contrasted noticeably with the statewide distribution of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic, and 29 percent civil.

A ten percent reduction in new cases was noted in the juvenile and domestic relations court in 1984. The year ended with 4,645 cases or 510 cases fewer than in 1983. This drop in total caseload was due to the significant 24 percent decline in the number of juvenile cases (849 fewer cases). Adult cases, on the other hand, rose 21 percent. The number of hearings increased by six percent and numbered 14,585. The average number of hearings per case (3.39) for juveniles ranked first among all 32 districts. The final composition of cases was 58 percent juvenile and 42 percent adult.

Working a total of 10,338 hours, the six magistrates of the Eighth received over 16,000 inquiries from the public in 1984. Total processes and transactions declined marginally by three and two percent, respectively, from the previous year. Arrest warrants composed the largest portion of the processes issued with nearly 14,000 or 65 percent. Misdemeanor warrants (11,701) comprised 85 percent of all arrest warrants issued. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of nearly one per request (97%). There were over 6,000 bonds issued in 1984 which represented 19 percent of the processes issued. Of these, 88 percent were for misdemeanors. For every 10 bonds issued, 6.4 were unsecured. Other process activity included the issuance of 184 search warrants, 346 temporary mental detention orders, 406 jail committals and releases and the receipt of 84 prepayments for traffic infractions and 141 Class IV misdemeanors.

Included within the Ninth Judicial Circuit are the counties of Charles City, Gloucester, James City, King and Queen, King William, Mathews, Middlesex, New Kent and York and the cities of Poquoson and Williamsburg. With a 1980 census population of 143,418, the district is expected to increase 37 percent to 196,500 by the year 2000. Residents under the age of eighteen totaled 39,948 or 28 percent of the 1980 population.

The circuit court of the Ninth Circuit continued to be served by Judges Russell M. Carneal, John E. DeHardit and G. Duane Holloway. Judges William T. Bareford and J.R. Zepkin served in the general district court and Judges Herbert I.L. Feild and John G. Sowder filled the two J&DR court judgeships. The four district court judges reported 22.4 assistance days each which was nearly identical to the 1983 average per judge in the Ninth.

The three circuit court judges of the Ninth recorded a five percent increase in new cases which totaled 3,192 during 1984. The increase resulted from an additional 51 civil cases and 104 criminal cases. By the end of the year, civil and criminal cases numbered 1,846 and 1,346, respectively. The counties of King and Queen and Middlesex noted the most significant increases in caseload, 64 and 57 percent, respectively. Other counties registering increases were Charles City (23%), New Kent (22%), King William (6%), Gloucester (4%) and York (1%). The distribution of cases was 18 percent law, 40 percent equity, 22 percent felony and 20 percent misdemeanor. The statewide percentage for equity (33%) and felony (29%) cases varied the most from the Ninth's final allocation in these case categories. The number of concluded cases decreased by five percent to number 2,939. Fifty-eight percent of the 1,776 civil case dispositions were cleared from the court dockets within the first year of filing. Within five months of filing, 80 percent of the 1,163 terminated criminal cases had been resolved. Pending cases grew by an additional 253 cases to number 2,876.

The general district courts of this area reported an increase in the overall caseload of seven percent. By the end of 1984 the total commenced caseload had reached 40,404. The increase was aided by a nine percent increase in criminal cases (20% of the overall distribution) and an eight percent rise in traffic cases (63% of the distribution). The remaining 17 percent of the distribution rested with the civil caseload which posted a decline of two percent. One-half of the localities posted gains in their caseloads. The most significant increases were noted in the counties of King and Queen (37%), Mathews (32%), York (26%), and King William (24%). Mathews County reported a tremendous growth in criminal cases (66%), while the counties of King and Queen and King William noted the greatest percentage increases in traffic (49%) and civil cases (39%), respectively. Corresponding to the increase in caseload was a six percent rise in total hearings (42,005).

In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, there were 2,641 new juvenile and 1,742 new adult cases commenced. These figures reflect declines of 50 juvenile cases and 7 adult cases from the 1983 figures. This brought the total number of new cases to 4,383 during 1984. The number of hearings decreased by 311. The localities posting caseload increases ranged from a high of 25 percent (King William County) to 6 percent (King and Queen County). Caseload reductions ranged from −20 percent (New Kent County) to −15 percent (Charles City County).

Authorized for the Ninth District in 1984 were 19 magistrates. They worked 14,466 hours during which they received 10,125 telephone calls and 5,423 in-person inquiries from the public. Of the 21,539 requests for processes, they issued 18,128 processes or 84 percent. The district experienced an increase of 12 percent in transactions and an 11 percent increase in processes issued over 1983 figures. Of the nearly 7,000 arrest warrants issued, 73 percent were for misdemeanors (5,078). Felony warrants numbered 1,148 and summonses equaled 728. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of nine for every ten requested. The nearly 3,000 bonds issued along with the arrest warrants constituted more than one-half of all processes. Approximately six bonds were issued for every ten requests (58%). The second and third largest groups of processes were civil warrants (4,443) and committals and releases (2,997), respectively. In addition, 45 subpoenas, 71 search warrants, 378 prepayments for traffic infractions, and 307 Class IV misdemeanors were issued.

TENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Tenth Circuit is inclusive of the counties of Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Halifax, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, and Prince Edward and the city of South Boston. In 1980, the circuit served 139,585 persons of which 39,685 (28%) were juveniles. By the year 2000, the circuit should experience an increase of nine percent in total population from 1980.

Judges Charles L. McCormick, III, and John R. Snoddy, Jr., continued to preside on the Tenth Circuit's bench. The judges of the general district courts were William Hay, Jr., Robert B. Spencer, Jr., and Robert T. Vaughn. A vacancy was created by Judge Vaughn's retirement on February 1, 1985. The position was filled by Irvin D. Sugg effective March 18, 1985. Serving in the two authorized judgeships of the juvenile and domestic relations courts were William L. Wellons and J. Taylor Williams. The five district judges utilized a total of 63 substitute judge days during FY 84. The mean number of days per judge was 12.6.

The Tenth Circuit received 2,453 new cases in 1984, an eight percent increase over 1983. Civil cases numbered 1,333 which represented a three percent increase. Criminal cases rose by an even greater percentage (14%) and totaled 1,120. Buchingham County witnessed a dramatic increase in its caseload with 154 new cases which more than doubled the figure for 1983. Other notable increases occurred in the counties of Appomattox (10%), Lunenburg (12%), and Cumberland (21%). The only decline in caseload was noted in Charlotte County (−31%). The composition of cases was 22% law, 33% equity, 32% felony and 13% misdemeanor. This distribution was similar to the statewide percentages. The number of cases concluded (2,153) decreased by 12 percent (292 cases) from the previous year. Sixty-eight of the 2,153 terminated cases were disposed of by jury trial. Three-fifths of the 1,141 civil cases reaching disposition were terminated within 12 months of initiation. Seventy-five percent (759) of the 1,012 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months of filing. The circuit had 2,201 pending cases in 1984, an increase of 16 percent over the previous year.

Within the general district courts, criminal and traffic cases decreased while the civil caseload grew by three percent. The 4 percent drop in the number of new cases commenced was largely the result of the 18 percent decline in criminal cases and two percent decrease in traffic cases. By the end of 1984, commenced cases totaled 47,466. A close inspection of the district showed that all localities decreased in commenced cases except for the counties of Lunenburg and Prince Edward which posted increases of 20 and 3 percent, respectively. Appomattox County registered the most significant decline in cases overall (−13%). The caseload distribution was calculated at 13 percent criminal, 69 percent traffic, and 18 percent civil.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts had an increase of 45 cases in 1984. The number of hearings increased five percent and numbered 9,638. Juvenile cases declined by 114 cases from 1983 and adult cases rose eight percent to reach 2,231 cases for 1984. Adult cases constituted 43 percent of the caseload. Most significant among the localities, Buchingham County recorded a 75 percent increase in total cases. The juvenile caseload there increased by 52 percent and the adult caseload more than doubled (107%). Three localities recorded caseload reductions. Cumberland County noted the most significant decline (−22%).

The 24 magistrates authorized for the Tenth District worked more than 19,000 hours in 1984. They received 20,425 inquiries from the public, both by telephone and in-person. The requests for processes declined by seven percent to 25,138 and processes issued (21,452) also dropped by seven percent. Processes were issued at a rate of 8.5 for every 10 requested. Arrest warrants (7,361) and bonds (4,304) represented 54 percent of all processes. The majority of the arrest warrants were for misdemeanors (6,204 or 84 percent). For every 10 requests for arrest warrants, 8.7 were granted. Unsecured (2,224) and secured (2,080) bonds were nearly equal in number. Bonds were issued at a rate of 6.3 for every 10 requested. Civil warrants (4,762) and committals and releases (4,012) comprised 41 percent of the processes. The magistrates also issued 496 subpoenas, 48 search warrants, and received 357 prepayments for traffic infractions.

ELEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Amelia, Dinwiddie, Nottoway and Powhatan counties, and the city of Petersburg comprise the Eleventh Judicial Circuit. The population for the circuit in 1980 was 99,790, of which 28,276 were juveniles. A population growth to 109,900 persons is projected by the year 2000, according to the Department of Planning and Budget.

Serving in the circuit court were Judge Oliver A. Pollard, Jr., and Thomas V. Warren. The four judgeship positions of the district courts were filled by James F. D'Alton and Richard E. Lewis, Jr. in the general district court and Ben L. Campbell and L.L. Mason, Jr., in the J&DR district court. During FY 84, 22.5 assistance days were utilized for each district court judge.

Increasing by nine percent from the previous year, the 1984 commenced caseload for the circuit reached 2,313. Civil and criminal cases expanded by 2 and 16 percent, respectively. With the exception of Powhatan County, all localities within the circuit noted caseload increases. The largest percentage increase was recorded by Nottoway County (16%). The largest increase was reported by Petersburg with 118 additional cases (10%). The caseload make-up was 22 percent law, 28 percent equity, 37 percent felony and 13 percent misdemeanor. This varied from the statewide distribution of 21 percent law, 33 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor. There were 1,967 cases concluded, an increase of 74 cases from 1983. Three-fourths of the 879 civil cases were concluded within 12 months of filing. Eight-eight percent of 957 of the 1,088 criminal cases reached disposition within 150 days of filing. A 42 percent increase in pending cases was noted in 1984.

During the year, the general district courts experienced increases in both new cases and hearings. The total number of cases rose to 36,718, a five percent increase. Hearings increased four percent to 47,150. Criminal cases noted the smallest growth with an increase of only 13 cases due primarily to appreciable declines in all localities, save the city of Petersburg, which recorded an 11 percent increase in criminal cases. Amelia County had the largest decrease in criminal cases (−24%). Dinwiddie County reflected the greatest increase in traffic cases (30%) and civil cases (16%). Districtwide, traffic and civil cases grew seven percent and four percent, respectively. The caseload mixture was 19 percent criminal, 53 percent traffic and 28 percent civil. This was similar to the statewide distribution of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

An increase of 15 percent in the adult caseload and a 2 percent increase in the juvenile caseload caused the overall eight percent caseload expansion in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts. The number of new cases reached 3,705. Hearings decreased by two percent. Nottoway County recorded the most significant increases in juvenile and adult cases and ended the year with a 27 percent growth in new cases. Amelia County recorded the only caseload reduction (−3%). The district-wide caseload distribution was 53 percent juvenile and 47 percent adult. This varied considerably from the statewide distribution of 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult.

As in the previous year, the Eleventh District had 14 magistrates authorized to serve the public. They responded to 18,677 telephone calls and 7,699 in-person inquiries during their 15,204 hours of activity. Of the 24,701 transactions, they issued 20,512 processes. Both transactions and processes experienced increases of ten percent each. Of the arrest warrants issued, 1,449 were for felonies (18%), 5,669 were for misdemeanors (72%) and 757 were for summonses (10%). These warrants were issued at a rate of 8.7 for every 10 requested. The number of bonds totaled 4,325 with three-fifths of these being unsecured. Approximately one bond was issued for every two requested. A large number of committals and releases (5,639) were issued as well. Other process activity included 848 subpoenas, 61 search warrants, 262 mental detention orders, 444 civil warrants and the receipt of 42 prepayments for traffic infractions.

TWELFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twelfth Judicial Circuit consists of Chesterfield County and the city of Colonial Heights. This area is expected to grow rapidly from 157,881 residents in 1980 to a projected population of 285,600 by the year 2000. This represents an 81 percent expansion in population. There were 39,685 juveniles within the 1980 population figure.

Presiding in the circuit courts of the Twelfth were Judges Ernest P. Gates, William N. Humphries, Jr., and John F. Daffron, Jr. The three general district court judgeships were held by John E. Dodson, William R. Shelton and Robert D. Laney. Judge Laney filled the vacancy created by retirement of Judge John H. Snead. Judges Marvin L. Garner and John H. Thomas sat on the bench of the juvenile and domestic relations district court during 1984. The district judges used 189 substitute and recalled retired judge days averaging 39.4 days ulitized per judge. The statewide average was 13.9 days per judge.

The circuit experienced a slight decline in new cases during 1984. There was a 19 percent drop in criminal cases while civil cases rose nine percent to reach 2,392 cases. Chesterfield County registered a 64 case reduction overall (– 2%) and the city of Colonial Heights noted a 21 case increase (8%). The number of cases concluded (3,139) declined by 408 cases from 1983. Sixty-six juries were impaneled during the year. Of the civil cases concluded (2,266), 69 percent resulted in a disposition within one year of filing. Seventy-seven percent of 873 criminal dispositions were resolved within five months of filing. Pending cases grew by 11 percent and reached 2,724. The caseload composition for the circuit was 20 percent law, 50 percent equity, 21 percent felony and 9 percent misdemeanor. The equity category was weighted more heavily than the statewide percentage of 33 percent. The felony and misdemeanor case types were underweighted in comparison.

The general district courts of the Twelfth District recorded nearly 48,000 new cases in 1984, a seven percent increase. The increased caseload is explained by seven percent increases in criminal and traffic cases and an eight percent increase in civil cases. The number of hearings increased by ten percent. The city of Colonial Heights accounted for the greatest percentage increase (24%) in new cases. A 29 percent increase in traffic cases in Colonial Heights contributed to the nearly three-fifths proportion of the overall caseload being traffic. Civil and criminal cases each composed about one-fifth of the case distribution. This was the exact caseload distribution recorded in the previous year.

The two judges in the juvenile and domestic relations courts handled significantly more cases in 1984 than in 1983. The number of new cases (6,004) increased by 14 percent or 723 cases. There were 441 more juvenile cases (13%) and 282 more adult cases (16%). Hearings increased by one percent. The average number of hearings per adult case was 3.12, fifth highest statewide. The expanded caseload can be solely attributed to Chesterfield County as it recorded a 16 percent increase in cases. The city of Colonial Heights recorded a reduction in caseload of six percent. The final caseload distribution was 66 percent juvenile and 34 percent adult.

In 1984, the 11 magistrates of the Twelfth worked nearly 14,000 hours. During this time, the magistrates reported almost 28,000 telephone inquiries and nearly 3,000 in-person inquiries. Processes (22,091) were issued at a rate of 8.2 for every 10 requested (26,810). Both transactions and processes increased by seven and eight percent, respectively. There were 8,017 arrest warrants issued which comprised 36 percent of all processes. Of the 8,017 arrest warrants issued, 67 percent (5,409) were for misdemeanors. Of the 5,703 bonds issued, 66 percent were unsecured. Bonds were issued at a rate of nearly 6 for every 10 requested. Also, there was a significant number of committals (4,179) and releases (3,612) issued. Committals and releases represented 35 percent of the processes. In addition to these, the magistrates of the district also issued 295 subpoenas, 74 search warrants, 87 temporary mental detention orders and received 114 traffic prepayments.

THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Richmond is a single locality circuit. Listed with a population of 219,214 in 1980, a 12 percent drop from 1970, Richmond is projected to decrease another 13 percent by the year 2000. The Bureau of the Census also reported that the 1980 figure included 49,025 persons less than eighteen years old.

The eight judges presiding in the circuit courts were Marvin F. Cole, James M. Lumpkin, James E. Sheffield, Thomas N. Nance, Willard I. Walker, James B. Wilkinson, Frank A.S. Wright and Melvin R. Hughes, Jr. Judge Hughes was appointed to fill the vacancy created by Judge Sheffield who resigned effective August 1, 1984. Judge Robert W. Duling of the general district court was elected to the circuit court effective February 1, 1985. Also, Judge Cole was elected to the Court of Appeals on April 16, 1985, and Robert Lee Harris of the general district court was elevated to the circuit bench. The general district court judgeships for 1984 were served by Jose R. Davila, Robert W. Duling, Melvin R. Hughes, Jr., Henry J. Schrieberg, Edgar L. Turlington, Jr., Walter W. Stout, III, and Judge Harris. Gregory L. Rupe and Ralph B. Robertson were elected by the General Assembly to general district court judgeships effective February 1, 1985 and March 1, 1985, respectively. An eighth judgeship position was authorized effective July 1, 1985, to be filled by William L. Wimbish. In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, the judges presiding were Alton E. Bryant, Jr., Willard H. Douglas, Jr., and Arlin F. Ruby. Each district court judge used an average of 19.2 assistance days each.

The eight judges of the Thirteenth Circuit handled an increase of 745 cases in their workload in 1984 over 1983. The largest portion of the increase was attributable to criminal cases which grew by 560 cases (16%). Civil cases expanded by three percent. The circuit ranked fourth highest in commenced cases and civil cases statewide. The criminal caseload ranked third largest in the state. The Richmond city court accounted for 86 percent of the circuit's caseload with 8,104 new cases. This was an increase of ten percent (724 cases) over the previous year. The Manchester court registered a slight increase of 21 new cases (2%) to number 1,317. The distribution of cases for the circuit was 36 percent law, 19 percent equity, 36 percent felony and 9 percent misdemeanor. This breakout of cases differed markedly from the statewide composition of cases for law (21%), equity (33%), felony (29%) and misdemeanor (17%). Three-fourths of the 4,621 civil cases concluded were terminated within one year of filing. Ninety-three percent or 4,293 of the criminal case dispositions were resolved within five months of initiation.

In 1984, Richmond's general district court recorded the largest caseload in Virginia. Increasing by 16 percent, new cases totaled 285,832 for the year. Criminal and traffic cases expanded by 24 percent and 23 percent, respectively. Civil cases increased by 11 percent. The civil caseload for the Thirteenth District ranked first among all districts. In addition, the criminal and traffic caseloads ranked second largest in both categories, statewide. The composition of the district caseload was 9 percent criminal, 33 percent traffic and 58 percent civil. This varied substantially from the statewide case averages of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. Hearings increased by five percent to reach a total 295,308, the highest number of hearings recorded in the Commonwealth.

In the juvenile and domestic relations court, there were 5,690 fewer commenced cases (−29%). This resulted in a total caseload of 13,970 during 1984. Significantly reduced numbers of cases were recorded for both juveniles and adults. In 1984, the number of juvenile cases was 7,704, a decrease of 25 percent from 1983. Adult cases numbered 6,266, a 33 percent decline. Adults comprised about 45 percent of the case distribution. As in 1983, the Thirteenth ranked second highest in adult new cases. The district ranked second highest in total caseload and third highest in juvenile cases statewide.

The Thirteenth ranked third highest statewide in the number of processes issued (65,979). The nine magistrates assigned to this district completed these processes during their 16,230 hours of activity. The magistrates received more than 45,000 inquiries from the public by telephone and in-person. They also received 88,331 requests for processes. Transactions and processes increased dramatically in 1984 by 29 and 32 percent, respectively. Arrest warrants were granted for 96 percent of the requests (24,695). Misdemeanor warrants reflected 81 percent of all warrants authorized.

FOURTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Henrico County is the sole locality within the Fourteenth Judicial Circuit. According to the 1980 U.S. Census report, 180,735 persons resided in this area. Of this figure, 46,880 were juveniles. It is anticipated that by the year 2000, this circuit should increase by 21 percent to a population of 219,200.

The Fourteenth Circuit was served by Judge E. Ballard Baker, L. Paul Byrne, Buford M. Parsons, Jr., and Robert M. Wallace. Judge Baker was elected to the Court of Appeals on January 1, 1985. Judge Joseph F. Spinella of the general district court was elected by the General Assembly to replace Judge Baker and began service to the circuit on February 16, 1985. The three authorized judges of the general district court were Donald R. Howren, H. Ratcliffe Turner and Judge Spinella. Following the latter's election to the circuit court, George F. Tidey was elected to fill the vacancy effective March 1, 1985. The juvenile and domestic relations district court was served by Judges Augustus S. Hydrick and J. Mercer White, Jr Judge Hydrick retired on October 15, 1984, and Robert J. Smith was appointed to service on November 16, 1984. With an average of 17.6 substitute days utilized per district court judge, the district was slightly higher than the 13.9 days averaged statewide.

The circuit recorded 343 fewer cases commenced in 1984 than in 1983. The total commenced caseload was 4,330. This decline was due to 33 fewer civil cases and 310 fewer criminal cases. The change in concluded cases was negligible (2 cases fewer with the total numbering 3,871). Fifty-two percent of the 1,711 concluded civil cases were cleared from the court's dockets within 12 months of filing. On the criminal side, 84 percent or 1,807 cases were disposed of within five months of initiation. The final allocation of cases was 14 percent law, 32 percent equity, 28 percent felony and 26 percent misdemeanor. Misdemeanor cases were more heavily weighted than the state's percentage of 17 percent. The number of pending cases decreased by 459 cases in 1984. This was an 11 percent decline from 1983. The final pending caseload numbered 4,538.

There was a noticeable decrease in the number of new cases for 1984 in the general district courts. The 55,848 commenced cases reflected a decline of 12 percent that was due primarily to a 26 percent reduction in civil cases. Traffic cases declined by seven percent and criminal cases recorded an increase of three percent. The breakout of the number and percentage of cases in each category was 11 percent criminal (5,982), 63 percent traffic (35,043) and 26 percent civil (14,823). There was a ten percent reduction in the number of hearings which numbered 59,293.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts noted decreases in juvenile (−11%) and adult (−4%) cases in 1984. This resulted in an eight percent reduction in the total caseload which totaled 5,452. The number of hearings also declined (−5%). The 1984 hearings per case ratio of 1.92 was comparable to the statewide average of 1.96 hearings per case. The caseload distribution for the district was 57 percent and 43 percent for juvenile and adult cases, respectively. This varied somewhat from the statewide distribution of 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult.

The nine magistrates of this district reported 15,844 activity hours in 1984. They reported nearly 80,000 telephone calls to their offices, over 7,000 in-person inquiries and received 41,507 requests for processes. Every ten requests resulted in the issuance of 8.7 processes. A total of 36,093 processes were actually issued. Henrico County recorded the tenth highest number of processes issued during 1984. Transactions and processes declined by six and seven percent, respectively. More arrest warrants were issued than any other process. The warrants issued were for 5,963 misdemeanors, 1,480 felonies, and 602 summonses. There were nearly 1,000 more secured bonds issued than unsecured bonds. There was a total of 6,314 bonds issued. Also, there were 9,275 committals and releases and 7,940 subpoenas issued. Other activity included the issuance of 94 search warrants, 164 temporary mental detention orders and the receipt of 3,870 traffic prepayments and 391 prepayments for Class IV misdemeanors.

FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The localities served by the Fifteenth Circuit and District include: the counties of Caroline, Essex, Hanover, King George, Northumberland, Richmond, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Westmoreland and Lancaster; and the city of Fredericksburg. This circuit is expected to grow considerably in the next 15 years. Projections are that by the year 2000, this circuit will serve 324,200 residents. This will rank as the third most highly populated circuit in Virginia. This will be a 48 percent increase over the 1980 census population of 218,886. The 1980 juvenile population was reported as 64,698, or 30 percent of the total residents.

The four judges authorized to serve the circuit courts were Dixon L. Foster, John A. Jamison, Richard H.C. Taylor and J.M.H. Willis, Jr. Presiding in the general district courts were Judges Tristram T. Hyde, IV., Robert R. Gwathmey, III, James Peyton Farmer, and J.L. Savage, Jr. Judge Gwathmey retired November 1, 1984, and was replaced by James W. Haley, Jr. Judges William J. Cox and Walther J. Fidler continued to serve in the juvenile and domestic relations courts during 1984. On the average, the district judges used 15.8 assistance days each. This was only two days more than the 13.9 mean assistance days per judge statewide.

The Fifteenth Circuit registered an increase in new cases of eight percent in 1984. This meant an additional 364 cases over the 1983 caseload. The number of civil cases rose by nearly seven percent and criminal cases expanded ten percent. The counties of Lancaster and Stafford noted the most significant increases in caseload both in actual figures and in percentage growth. Lancaster County had 66 additional cases or a 29 percent rise. Stafford County reported a 24 percent increase (193 cases). Only Essex County experienced a decrease in caseload (−23%) which was 42 less cases than in the previous year. Nineteen percent of the 4,799 commenced cases were classified as law and the remaining distributions were 38 percent equity, 27 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. Equity cases varied most from the statewide case type averages which listed equity cases at 33 percent. The number of concluded cases (4,175) declined by 11 percent from 1983. Five percent or 201 cases were disposed of by jury trials. Three-fourths of the 2,476 concluded civil cases were resolved within the first year of filing. Eighty-five percent of the 1,699 criminal case dispositions were terminated within five months of initiation.

The general districts courts had 95,081 new cases and 89,567 hearings during 1984. As in 1983, the district ranked fifth highest among the state's 32 districts in the number of cases initiated. The general district courts also ranked fifth highest in the number of traffic cases initiated. Civil and traffic cases rose by five and two percent, respectively. Criminal cases decreased by four percent. Changes in the number of new cases commenced from 1983 ranged from a 19 percent increase for the city of Fredericksburg to a 18 percent decrease for Essex County. Essex and Hanover counties recorded fewer cases in all three case classifications. Only the city of Fredericksburg registered substantial increases in all case types. The caseload distribution of 13 percent criminal, 59 percent traffic and 28 percent civil was not substantially different from statewide figures. Hearings increased by one percent over the 1983 total and numbered 89,567.

As in 1983, the district had the seventh largest juvenile and domestic relations caseload throughout the state. The caseload increased by 608 cases (7%) and totaled 9,155 in 1984. Juvenile cases decreased by 79 cases (−1%) while adult cases increased by 687 (23%). The district had the sixth largest docket for adult cases and the seventh highest for juvenile cases. Hearings rose by eight percent from 1983 to bring the total number of hearings to 13,898. Of the eleven localities in the district, six recorded juvenile case decreases. All localities registered increases in adult cases for 1984. The distribution of cases for the district was three-fifths juvenile and two-fifths adult.

The Fifteenth District was served by 25 magistrates in 1984, the same as the previous year. They reported nearly 30,000 hours of activity during which they traveled over 119,000 miles, received 18,713 telephone calls, dealt with 7,391 in-person inquiries and handled 35,233 requests for processes. Of these processes, 29,540 were actually granted. Processes were issued at a rate of 8.4 for every 10 requested.

SIXTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Sixteenth Judicial Circuit is composed of the counties of Albemarle, Culpeper, Fluvanna, Goochland, Greene, Louisa, Madison and Orange, as well as the city of Charlottesville. With a population of 194,069, as registered by the Bureau of the Census of 1980, this circuit can expect to reach a population of 262,100 by the year 2000. This is a 35 percent increase from the 1980 figure. Juveniles constituted 26 percent of the 1980 population or 49,615 residents.

The Circuit was authorized four judgeships and was served by Judges David F. Berry, F. Ward Harkrader, Jr., Herbert A. Pickford, III, and E. Gerald Tremblay. Judge Berry retired on March 1, and was replaced by Lloyd C. Sullenberger. Presiding in the general district courts during 1984 were Basil C. Burke, Jr., Stephen H. Helvin, Franklin J. Jenkins, and D.B. Marshall. Judge Burke retired on April 1, 1984, and William A. Talley, Jr. filled his position. Serving in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts were William D. Reams, Jr and Ralph P. Zehler, Jr. The six district judges utilized a total of 100.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days during FY 84. On the average each judge used 16.8 assistance days each.

In the Sixteenth Circuit, a decrease of four percent (184 cases) occurred in 1984 and the civil and criminal case categories declined by 152 and 32 cases, respectively. Seven of the localities recorded decreases in caseloads. The reductions were noted in the counties of Madison (−22%), Fluvanna (−15%), Goochland (−14%), Orange (−12%), Greene (−10%), Albemarle (−4%) and the city of Charlottesville (−1%). The counties of Culpeper and Louisa reported caseload increases of 20 and 5 percent, respectively. The composition of case types was reported as follows: 20 percent law, 34 percent equity, 32 percent felony and 14 percent misdemeanor. There were 63 fewer cases terminated in 1984 when compared with the previous year. Within 12 months of filing, 65 percent of the 2,430 concluded civil cases were eliminated. Eighty-three percent (1,783) of the criminal case dispositions (2,148) occurred within 150 days of initiation. Pending cases increased by 12 percent from 1983 to total 2,710 cases.

Caseload statistics for the general district courts in 1984 remained relatively unchanged from the previous year. New cases totaled 67,167, an increase of only 184 cases from 1983. The largest increase occurred in criminal cases (681) while traffic cases recorded 610 fewer cases. Civil cases expanded by an additional 113 cases. A review of the data recorded for each locality revealed a range of a 12 percent increase in cases for Orange County to a 23 percent decrease in cases for Madison County. Fluvanna County was the only locality to experience a reduction in all categories. The distribution of 24 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic, and 21 percent civil varied from the statewide distribution for criminal and civil cases but was identical with the statewide traffic case composition. There were 78,883 hearings, an increase of six percent.

The juvenile and domestic relations district courts recorded a 1984 caseload distribution of three-fifths juvenile and two-fifths adult. A total of 6,215 new cases were recorded, of which 3,722 were juvenile and 2,493 were adult. New cases and hearings each increased by eight percent. Juvenile cases grew by 5 percent and adult cases increased by 11 percent. The counties of Albemarle, Goochland and Greene recorded case reductions in 1984 of 10, 9 and 12 percent, respectively. The remaining localities had caseload increases that ranged from eight percent (Louisa County) to 54 percent (Madison County).

The 22 magistrates assigned to this district issued processes for 38,175 of the 43,361 requests in 1984. This represents an 88 percent issuance rate. The number of transactions for 1984 increased by 13 percent and processes increased by 10 percent from 1983 totals. Process activity for the district ranked ninth highest statewide. Also, during the magistrates 19,417 hours of activity, they responded to over 30,000 public inquiries both by telephone and in-person. In addition, the magistrates granted 16,347 misdemeanor arrest warrants or 86 percent of the arrest warrants issued. More than 8,000 jail committals and releases were authorized. Of the 10,538 requests for bonds, three-fourths were granted (7,825).

SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Seventeenth Judicial Circuit serves Arlington County. The circuit is expected to decline in population from 152,599 (1980 census) to 148,000 by the year 2000. This is a decrease of three percent as compared to the 12 percent decrease from 1970 to 1980. The juvenile population under eighteen years of age was 24,969 or 16 percent of the total 1980 population. This was the lowest juvenile population percentage recorded throughout the 32 districts.

The Seventeenth Circuit's four authorized judgeships were held by Paul D. Brown, Charles H. Duff, William L. Winston, and Thomas R. Monroe. Judge Duff was elected by the General Assembly to serve on the new Court of Appeals effective January 1, 1985. Elected as his replacement effective February 16, 1985, was Judge Benjamin N.A. Kendrick. Presiding in the general district court during 1984 were Judges Francis Everett Thomas, Jr., Joseph C. Gwaltney and Eleanor S. Dobson. Judges Andrew B. Ferrari and Berton V. Kramer served on the bench for the juvenile and domestic relations district court. Each district judge averaged 11.4 substitute and recalled retired judge days lower than the 13.9 day usage statewide.

In 1984, the Seventeenth recorded a nominal increase of six new cases from 1983 and numbered 3,730. The circuit's case composition was 23 percent law, 29 percent equity, 43 percent felony and 5 percent misdemeanor. The statewide distributions for felony and misdemeanor cases were 29 and 17 percent, respectively. The number of concluded cases dropped by seven percent (232 cases) to number 3,225. There was an equal number of cases concluded by jury trial in 1984 (156) as in 1983. An identical number of juries were impaneled (156) to hear these cases. Fifty-seven percent (753) of the 1,318 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months of initiation. The number of cases pending (6,895) was an increase of eight percent over the 1983 figure of 6,390.

The general district court serving Arlington County handled the tenth highest number of cases for the Commonwealth. The new caseload grew by seven percent to reach 68,161 cases. Criminal and traffic caseloads had decreases of eight and nine percent, respectively. Most notable was the phenomenal 117 percent leap in civil cases commenced. This was an increase from 8,044 cases in 1983 to 17,426 cases in 1984. Despite doubling the number of civil cases, the distribution of cases fell most heavily on traffic which comprised 65 percent of all cases. Civil cases composed one-fourth of the distribution and criminal cases comprised the remaining percentage (10%). The increase in the number of hearings (7%) was equivalent to the percentage increase that occurred in the caseload.

The caseload for the juvenile and domestic relations court dropped to 2,959 new cases for 1984. This was the third smallest caseload among all 32 districts. The final caseload reflected a six percent reduction in cases. The juvenile caseload for 1984 (2,336) declined by ten percent and adult cases (623) increased by nine percent. Hearings decreased by nine percent. However, the average number of hearings per case for adults ranked first among all districts at 4.94. The average number of hearings per case for juveniles was second highest at 2.99. The distribution of cases was weighted heavily toward the juvenile cases (79%) with only 21% being adult cases. This was a distribution varying widely from the state's 61 and 39 percent distribution for juvenile and adult cases, respectively.

The eight magistrates of Arlington County worked slightly more than 10,000 hours in 1984. They issued 28,348 processes or 93 percent of those requested (30,469). Both processes and requests for processes declined by an identical 12 percent for 1983 figures. The 10,528 committals and releases was the largest category of processes to be issued (37 percent of all processes). Of 9,191 requests for arrest warrants, only 53 were not authorized. Misdemeanor warrants accounted for 66 percent of the arrest warrants issued. Approximately 79 percent of the bonds requested were issued. The majority of the bonds were secured (55%). The magistrates also issued 117 search warrants, 149 temporary mental detention orders and received 862 traffic prepayments.

EIGHTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Eighteenth Judicial Circuit consists exclusively of the city of Alexandria. It is anticipated that Alexandria will experience only a slight increase in population from 1980 (103,217) to the year 2000 (106,300). Juveniles numbered 18,938 or 18 percent of the 1980 population.

During 1984, the circuit was authorized three judgeships. Those serving were Albert H. Grenadier, Donald Hall Kent, and Wiley A. Wright. Judge Donald M. Haddock was appointed to the bench following the resignation of Judge Wright on April 11, 1984. Judge Grenadier died on March 29, 1985. Judges Robert T.S. Colby and D.F. O'Flaherty continued to serve the general district court. Handling the juvenile and domestic relations cases was Judge Joseph L. Peters, Jr. The three district court judges utilized a total of 60 substitute and recalled retired judge days. This gave each judge an average of 20 assistance days each.

Increasing by seven percent, the commenced caseload of the Eighteenth totaled 3,891 for 1984. Civil and criminal caseloads reported increases of 13 and 234 new cases, respectively. The breakout of case types for the circuit was as follows: law (21%), equity (28%), felony (36%) and misdemeanor (15%). The equity and felony categories differed most from the statewide distribution of 21 percent law, 33 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor. The number of cases reaching disposition was 118 fewer than reported in 1983. Four percent or 159 cases were concluded by jury trial. The age of concluded civil cases revealed that 52 percent (828) of the 1,590 terminated civil cases were resolved within 12 months of filing. Of the 2,028 criminal cases concluded, 91 percent were terminated within 150 days of initiation. The pending caseload for the circuit expanded by 273 cases and numbered 2,694.

The general district court serving Alexandria reported 38,231 new cases and 48,316 hearings in 1984. The caseload rose by an additional three percent while hearings decreased by five percent. Reductions of 10 and 1 percent occurred in the commenced caseloads of criminal and civil cases, respectively. An increase of seven percent occurred in traffic cases which contributed to the overall caseload expansion. Traffic cases comprised 67 percent of all new cases. The balance of the distribution was 9 percent criminal and 24 percent civil. The statewide dispersion was 55 percent traffic, 16 percent criminal, and 29 percent civil.

As in 1983, there was an overall decline in the number of cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court. There were 2,149 new cases in 1984, a five percent decrease. This was attributable to the eight percent reduction in juvenile cases. Adult cases declined by only two cases. There were five more hearings in 1984 bringing the total to 6,841. This district ranked thirty-first among 32 districts for its caseload size. Adult cases averaged 4.11 hearings per case which was second highest in the state. Also, juvenile cases averaged 2.69 hearings per case which was the third highest among all districts. The average hearings per case for both categories combined was 3.18, well above the 1.96 average statewide. The distribution of cases was 65 percent juvenile and 35 percent adult.

In 1984, there were six magistrates authorized to serve the city of Alexandria. These individuals reported 27,410 inquires from the public during their 9,562 hours of activity. They handled nearly 22,000 requests for processes of which 87 percent were granted (19,100). Both transactions and processes increased by five percent in 1984. Arrest warrant processes included 850 felony warrants, 3,268 misdemeanor warrants and 5,564 summonses to appear in court. There were 9.5 arrest warrants issued per 10 requests. Of 5,922 bonds requested, 3,643 were granted (62%). Committals and releases (5,340) accounted for 28 percent of the processes. Other activity included the issuance of 103 search warrants, 73 temporary mental detention orders and the receipt of 255 traffic prepayments.

NINETEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The highly populated Nineteenth Judicial Circuit comprises Fairfax County and the cities of Fairfax and Falls Church. This circuit has significantly more residents than any of the other circuits. By the year 2000, this area is predicted to reach 860,200 residents. This represents a 37 percent increase over the 1980 census population of 625,806. The 1980 juvenile population of 182,215 was the highest among all circuits.

The eleven judges authorized to serve the circuit court were F. Bruce Bach, Barbara M. Keenan, Lewis H. Griffith, Richard J. Jamborsky, Barnard F. Jennings, Thomas J. Middleton, Jr., Jack B. Stevens, J. Howe Brown, Jr., William G. Plummer, Johanna L. Fitzpatrick and Quinlan H. Hancock. Judge Keenan was elected to the new Court of Appeals by the General Assembly effective January 1, 1985. Elected to fill the vacancy effective February 16, 1985, was Judge Thomas J. Fortkort, formerly serving in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. Presiding in the general district court were G. William Hammer, Richard T. Horan, Robert M. Hurst, Stewart P. Davis, Frank B. Perry, III, Thomas J. Rothrock and J. Conrad Waters, Jr. Judge Hammer has announced his retirement to be effective July 1, 1985. Michael P. McWeeney has been elected to fill the vacancy. Juvenile and domestic relations cases were heard by Judges Jane Pritchard Delbridge, Arnold B. Kassabian, Michael J. Valentine, Gaylord L. Finch, Jr. and Judge Fortkort. James W. Fourqurean replaced Judge Fortkort on the juvenile bench. The twelve district court judges utilized 181 total assistance days during 1984. This represented 15.1 assistance days per judge.

The circuit recorded 14,659 new cases commenced in 1984, a ten percent reduction (1,583 cases) from 1983. The circuit reported the second highest caseload statewide for new cases. In addition, the civil caseload (9,653) ranked first among all circuits despite a 15 percent decrease in civil cases. Also, with 5,006 criminal cases in 1984, the criminal category posted the second highest number statewide. The allocation of the commenced caseload was 25 percent law, 40 percent equity, 22 percent felony and 13 percent misdemeanor. This varied considerably from the statewide distribution of 21 percent law, 33 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor. The number of concluded cases decreased by three percent or 454 cases. Sixty-two percent (5,653) of the 9,068 civil case dispositions were cleared from the court's dockets within 12 months of filing. Eighty percent of the 5,073 criminal case dispositions were resolved within five months of initiation. Pending cases increased by four percent and numbered 14,260.

The general district courts of the Nineteenth reported a total of 196,211 commenced cases during 1984. This caseload ranked second highest statewide in the number of cases recorded. Furthermore, the general district courts ranked first in traffic cases, third in criminal cases and fourth highest in civil cases. The 14 percent increase in cases filed with the courts was attributable to a ten percent rise in both criminal and civil and a 15 percent expansion in the traffic caseload. Hearings rose by six percent. The cities of Fairfax and Falls Church noted the most significant increases with 26 and 25 percent, respectively. Fairfax County compiled a 13 percent increase. The caseload distribution was weighted heavily toward traffic cases as they constituted nearly three-fourths of the caseload. The caseload attributable to criminal and civil cases was 11 and 15 percent, respectively.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts recorded the highest number of cases among all districts with a total of 19,921 new cases for 1984. In addition, the district ranked highest among all districts in juvenile cases reported (14,135) and second highest in adult cases (5,786). The caseload grew by five percent with juvenile and adult cases increasing by four and seven percent, respectively. The number of hearings rose by one percent and ranked first statewide in the number of hearings for 1984 (30,260). The juvenile caseload was nearly three-fourths of the total caseload distribution with 71 percent.

The district ranked second highest statewide in the number of processes granted (96,954) during 1984. The 31 magistrates worked nearly 43,000 hours and handled almost 124,000 inquiries. Total processes issued represented 83 percent of the process requests (116,587). Nearly 40,000 committals and releases were authorized representing 41 percent of the total processes. Arrest warrants numbered 27,059 of which 76 percent were for misdemeanors. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 9.4 for every 10 requested.

TWENTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twentieth Judicial Circuit serves the Northern Virginia counties of Fauquier, Loudoun and Rappahannock. This is a rapidly growing circuit as evidenced by the 45 percent increase in population from 1970 to 1980 and the 61 percent projected increase from 1980 to the year 2000. The 1980 census population has recorded at 99,409 and is projected to be 160,400 by 2000. Of the total 1980 population, juveniles numbered 31,228.

Judges Thomas D. Horne, Carlton Penn and William S. Robertson continued to serve in the circuit courts of the Twentieth. The two authorized general district court judgeships were held by Archibald M. Aiken, Jr., and John Alexander. A. Burke Hertz and John P. Ryan were the judges handling the juvenile and domestic relations cases. The district court judges used an average of 4.9 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during FY 1984. This was well below the 13.9 statewide average days per judge.

The three judges of the Twentieth Circuit experienced a one percent decrease in the caseload in 1984. This was 19 fewer cases than recorded in 1983. The final total of commenced cases was 2,303. The largest change occurred in Fauquier County which noted a nine percent of 74 case drop in caseload. Loudoun and Rappahannock Counties recorded increases of 52 and 3 cases, respectively. The commenced caseload distribution was 21 percent law, 44 percent equity, 24 percent felony and 11 percent misdemeanor. Equity cases were more heavily weighted than the 33 percent statewide average. In addition, felony and misdemeanor cases were under weighted in comparision to the statewide composition of 29 and 17 percent, respectively. Fewer cases were concluded in 1984 (2,355) than in 1983 (2,489). There were 102 jury trials during 1984, 20 fewer than in 1983. An examination of the age of concluded civil cases (1,467) indicated that 62 percent (909) reached disposition within 12 months of filing. Less than five months had elapsed from initiation to termination for 63 percent of the 888 criminal cases.

In the general district courts of the Twentieth, traffic cases comprised nearly three-fourths of the district's distribution. Criminal and civil cases comprised 12 and 15 percent, respectively. Traffic cases grew by 15 percent and criminal cases increased by two percent. This accounted for the nine percent rise (2,568 cases) in the total number of new cases (31,441). There was a ten percent reduction in the civil caseload. Hearings increased by two percent to reach 33,430. The three localities all registered moderate increases in caseloads: Fauquier (9%), Loudoun (9%) and Rappahannock (12%). Each locality noted increases in traffic cases and decreases in civil cases. The counties of Fauquier and Rappahannock posted decreases in the number of criminal cases by 13 and 28 percent, respectively. Loudoun County posted an 18 percent increase in the criminal caseload.

The juvenile caseload for the J&DR courts increased by nine percent while adult cases decreased by an equal percentage. This effected a two percent growth (67 cases) overall in cases filed (3,993). An increase of two percent (134 cases) occurred in the number of hearings as well (7,264). The caseload composition was 64 percent juvenile. Fauquier County recorded a seven percent case reduction. The counties of Loudoun and Rappahannock had 6 and 17 percent increases, respectively. The hearings per case ratio for the juvenile and domestic relations courts was 1.82 which was somewhat below the statewide average of 1.96.

In 1984, the nine magistrates authorized to serve the Twentieth District experienced an eight percent increase (1,047) in total process requests (14,879) and a seven percent increase (834) in total processes issued (12,596). They recorded working 7,071 hours during which they received 6,759 telephone inquires and 1,333 in-person inquires. They granted 5,456 arrest warrants processes which was 95 percent of those requested. Also, 2,501 bonds were issued of which 80 percent were unsecured. For every 10 requests for bonds, 6.2 were issued. A total of 4,129 committals and releases were issued. Finally, the remaining activities included the issuance of 110 subpoenas, 33 search warrants, 63 temporary mental detention orders and the receipt of 304 traffic and Class IV misdemeanor prepayments.

TWENTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Henry and Patrick counties and the city of Martinsville constitute the Twenty-First Judicial Circuit. By the year 2000, this circuit is projected to have 102,300 residents, a nine percent increase over the 1980 census population of 93,450. Juveniles comprised 28 percent of the 1980 population.

Serving the circuit throughout 1984 were Judges Frank I. Richardson, Jr., and Kenneth M. Covington. Three district court judges were also authorized. J. Frank Greenwalt, Jr., and Charles M. Stone served the general district court and Junius P. Warren was the authorized judge for the juvenile and domestic relations court. The district judges used, on the average, 7.7 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during FY 1984. The statewide average assistance days per judge was 13.9.

The number of commenced cases for the circuit declined by 614 cases from 1983 and numbered 2,603 by the close of 1984. This represented a 19 percent reduction that was attributable to nearly equal decreases in both civil (– 18%) and criminal (– 20%) cases. All three localities noted caseload reductions with Henry County posting the most significant decrease of – 22 percent (357 cases). The city of Martinsville and Patrick County had declines of – 18 percent (222 cases) and – 9 percent (35 cases), respectively. The caseload composition for the circuit was 17 percent law, 26 percent equity, 33 percent felony and 24 percent misdemeanor. Law and equity cases were underweighted and felony and misdemeanor cases were more heavily weighted than the statewide averages. The total concluded cases declined by 20 percent from 1983's 3,021 cases to number 2,408. Fifty-four juries were impaneled during 1984. A majority (62%) of the concluded civil cases (897) were cleared from the docket within 12 months of filing. The age of termination for criminal cases (1,511) indicated that 93 percent reached disposition within five months of filing. The pending caseload reached 1,701 cases in 1984, an increase of nearly 200 cases (13%) from 1983.

In 1984, the general district court's caseload included 20,564 new cases and 25,582 hearings. These figures constituted increases of three and four percent, respectively. Similar slight increases were noted in traffic (4%) and civil cases (4%). Only criminal cases declined and this was a decrease of 60 cases (– 1%). Patrick County accounted for the greatest increase (15%). Henry County noted a one percent decrease in cases and the city of Martinsville recorded a five percent increase. The caseload distribution for the Twenty-First remained consistent with the previous year's. It again had one-fifth of the cases falling under criminal and two-fifths each, falling to traffic and civil. This differed from the statewide distribution, especially with respect to traffic and civil cases.

There were 3,890 new cases and 4,782 hearings recorded for the juvenile and domestic relations courts. These represent increases of seven and six percent, respectively. Adult cases grew at a faster rate (10%) than did juvenile cases (4%). Interestingly, the two categories of cases were nearly equal in size with juveniles numbering 1,956 and adults at 1,934. This is a difference of only 22 cases. Patrick County posted the most significant increase (35%). The city of Martinsville and Henry County posted increases of nine and two percent, respectively.

The district was authorized nine magistrates during 1984 and they worked 12,168 hours, responded to 30,897 individual inquiries and issued 24,029 of 25,749 process requests. Requests and processes increased slightly over 1983 figures. Arrest (5,391) and civil warrants (7,666) together equaled 54 percent of the processes granted. Arrest warrants were issued for 93 percent of the requests. Misdemeanor warrants accounted for 83 percent of the arrest warrant processes. There were 2,482 bonds issued in response to the 3,409 requests, a 73 percent issuance rate. The magistrates also issued 4,823 subpoenas and 3,579 committals and releases. Other process activity involved the issuance of 33 search warrants and the receipt of 45 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors.

TWENTY-SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Represented in the Twenty-Second Judicial Circuit are Franklin and Pittsylvania Counties and the city of Danville. It is anticipated that this circuit will grow from 147,529 (1980 census) to 166,000 by the year 2000. The number of juveniles recorded during the 1980 census was 40,004.

Presiding in the circuit courts were Judges Beverly A. Davis, III, Samuel M. Hairston, and James F. Ingram. Sitting in the general district courts were T. Ryland Dodson, F. Nelson Light and William N. Alexander, II. Judge Alexander assumed his duties on September 1, 1984 following the retirement of Judge Light. Judges Spiros B. Skenderis and Robert F. Ward continued to serve the juvenile and domestic relations district court during 1984. On an average, each district court judge utilized nine assistance days during FY 1984, four days fewer than the statewide average.

Experiencing a decline of two percent, the commenced caseload of the Twenty-Second Circuit totaled 4,432 for 1984. While civil cases decreased by 17 percent (351 cases), the criminal caseload expanded by an additional 245 cases (10%). The city of Danville noted an appreciable decline of −10% in its caseload. Franklin and Pittsylvania Counties recorded modest increases of two and three percent, respectively. The number of cases concluded declined 16 percent from 1983 and numbered 4,370. Four percent of this number reached disposition through jury trial. Slightly more than three-fourths of the 1,719 civil case dispositions were resolved within one year of filing. Within five months, 93 percent of the 2,651 criminal cases were terminated. The final case makeup for the courts was 14 percent law, 25 percent equity, 37 percent felony and 24 percent misdemeanor. This composition varied from the statewide distribution of 21 percent law, 33 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor.

The general district courts of the Twenty-Second also noted slight decreases in the overall number of cases and hearings. In 1984, there were 33,326 new cases, 480 fewer than in 1983. The number of hearings declined by 104 cases to total 39,473. The reduction in the caseload can be attributed to the decrease of 1,387 civil cases (−13%) and 92 criminal cases (−1%). There were nearly 1,000 additional traffic cases. Franklin County posted reductions in all case types which resulted in an overall eight percent caseload decrease. The caseloads for Pittsylvania County and the city of Danville remained relatively unchanged from the previous year. The caseload distribution was 23 percent criminal, 50 percent traffic and 27 percent civil. This differed from the statewide distribution of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

The two judges of the juvenile and domestic relations district courts handled 5,312 new cases in 1984. New cases grew by an additional 64 cases of which 10 were juvenile and 54 were adult. Hearings increased from 12,059 in 1983 to 12,694 in 1984 (5%). Franklin County had the greatest increase in caseload. While the juvenile caseload remained unchanged from the previous year, adult cases in Franklin County grew by 66 percent bringing an overall increase of 27 percent. Pittsylvania County noted a three percent rise in cases and the city of Danville expeienced an eight percent reduction. The final distribution for the district was 58 percent juvenile and 42 percent adult.

In 1984, the 11 magistrates of the Twenty-Second responded to nearly 24,000 public inquiries during their 19,281 hours of activity. They had 42,080 process requests of which 31,129 were granted. In other words, nearly three-fourths of all requests resulted in a process being issued. Process requests actually increased by eight percent while processes issued declined by one percent. Arrest warrants numbered 9,116, a 90 percent issuance rate. Misdemeanor warrants represented 81 percent of all arrest warrants issued. Civil warrants (6,429), committals and releases (8,338) and bonds (5,570) constituted significant portions of the processes issued. Nearly one-half of the bonds requested were granted. Other process activity for the magistrates included the issuance of 1,371 subpoenas, 77 search warrants, 136 temporary mental detention orders, and the receipt of 92 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors.

TWENTY-THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Third Judicial Circuit includes the cities of Roanoke and Salem and Roanoke County. The circuit was registered as having 197,123 citizens by the 1980 census which included 49,895 juveniles or 25 percent of the population. The State Department of Planning and Budget projects that the population will grow to 225,100 by the year 2000, a 14 percent rise.

The circuit and district courts experienced a significant transition in 1984 with regard to judgeships. Presiding during 1984 were Ernest W. Ballou, Jack B. Coulter, Frederick L. Hoback, Lawrence L. Koontz, Jr., and Kenneth E. Trabue. Judge Hoback died in office on January 2, 1985. In addition, Judge Koontz was elected to the Court of Appeals. Former district court judges Gerald O. Clemens and Roy B. Willett were elected to fill the vacancies effective February 16, 1985. The general district court judgeships were served by James P. Brice, Charles O. Cornelison, Edward S. Kidd, Jr., Arthur B. Crush, Jr., Julian H. Raney, Jr. and Judge Clemens. Judge Raney's term began on April 1, 1984, to replace Judge Cornelison who resigned effective March 1, 1984. Judge Crush retired from the bench on March 1, 1985. George W. Harris and John L. Apostolou were elected by the General Assembly to begin serving April 16, 1985. The general district judges continued to provide assistance to the Twenty-Seventh district. Three juvenile and domestic relations judgeships were authorized during 1984. These positions were filled by James W. Flippin, Frederick L. Hoback, Jr., and Roy B. Willett. Philip Trompeter was elected to fill the vacancy left by Judge Willett's election to the circuit court. On the average, each of the eight district judges used 10.7 assistance days during FY 1984.

With a six percent reduction in the 1984 caseload, the circuit totaled 6,294 commenced cases. The overall decline was the result of an 11 percent drop (434 cases) in the criminal caseload. Civil cases (3,090) increased by only six cases from the previous year. The circuit ranked fifth highest statewide in commenced cases and in both categories of cases (civil criminal). Roanoke County and the city of Roanoke posted declines in caseloads of 14 and 5 percent, respectively. The city of Salem recorded a nine percent growth in its caseload. The number of cases reaching disposition within the circuit's three courts declined by six percent from 1983 and totaled 5,872. Approximately three percent (151) of this number was concluded by jury trial. There were 115 juries impaneled during the year to hear these cases. Fifty-four percent (1,543) of the 2,856 concluded civil cases were cleared from the court's dockets within the one year of filing. For the 3,016 criminal case dispositions, 84 percent were cleared from the dockets within five months.

Ranking sixth highest in the state, the general district court recorded 80,714 new cases and 89,350 hearings in 1984. In addition, the district's caseload was ranked fifth highest in both criminal (17,775) and civil (27,096) cases. The largest increase occurred in traffic cases (8%) and the only decrease occurred in civil cases (−3%). Roanoke County and the city of Roanoke both posted overall increases while the city of Salem had reductions in all case types (−10%). The distribution of cases was 22 percent criminal, 44 percent traffic, and 34 percent civil. This distribution was weighted more heavily in criminal and civil cases and less in traffic cases when compared with the statewide caseload compositions.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations courts increased by 14 percent and totaled 10,795. Hearings rose by eight percent and numbered 18,126. This was an increase of 1,339 commenced cases and 1,276 hearings. The rise in caseload was due to the 20 percent increase in juvenile cases and a 5 percent rise in adult cases. Juveniles accounted for 64 percent of the caseload. Among the 32 districts, the Twenty-Third ranked fifth highest in total caseload, total juvenile cases and total adult cases. The increases in caseloads by locality were Roanoke County (6%), Roanoke City (17%) and Salem (12%).

The 11 magistrates of the district issued the fourth highest number of processes statewide (57,191). The magistrates worked 18,311 hours in 1984. There were 18,301 arrest warrants issued of which 14,830 (81%) were misdemeanor warrants. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 8.8 for every 10 requested. Bonds numbered 9,177 which was 47 percent of those requested.

TWENTY-FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Amherst, Bedford, Campbell and Nelson and the cities of Bedford and Lynchburg comprise the Twenty-Fourth Circuit. By the year 2000, the circuit is expected to increase in population by 21 percent from 1980. This represents an increase from 194,411 (1980 census) to 235,900. Juveniles represented 27 percent of the 1980 population.

Four judges were authorized for the Twenty-Fourth Circuit. Serving the courts were J. Samuel Johnston, Jr., Robert C. Goad, Norman K. Moon and William W. Sweeney. Judge Moon was elected to serve on the Court of Appeals effective January 1, 1985. The General Assembly elected Richard S. Miller of the general district court to fill the vacancy. Judges James S. Farmer, Jesse C. Crumbley, III, Coy M. Kiser, Jr. served in the general district courts along with Judge Miller. Judge Kiser also provided assistance on a regular basis to the Twenty-Fifth District. Paul Whitehead, Jr., was elected to replace Judge Miller who began his term with the circuit courts on February 16, 1985. Juvenile and domestic relations cases were handled by Judges Lawrence Janow, W. Raymond Minnix and Dale H. Harris. The judges of the district averaged 8.6 assistance days each during the past fiscal year. The state mean for assistance days per judge was 13.9 during FY 1984.

The Twenty-Fourth Circuit reached 5,000 commenced cases in 1984, a nine percent expansion over 1983. Civil cases grew most rapidly (12%) while the criminal caseload increased by five percent. Criminal cases represented 51 percent of the commenced caseload which was more heavily weighted than the 46 percent statewide average for criminal cases. An overview of the circuit disclosed increases in the city of Lynchburg (19%) and in the counties of Bedford (9%) and Campbell (5%). Amherst and Nelson Counties each posted decreases of 10 percent. The caseload was distributed as follows: 19 percent law, 30 percent equity, 37 percent felony and 14 percent misdemeanor. The felony category varied the most from the statewide distribution. Felony cases averaged 29 percent statewide. The number of cases concluded increased by 261 cases from 1983 to reach 4,803. A significant portion (79%) of the civil cases (2,478) reached disposition within one year of initiation. Eighty-eight percent of the 2,325 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within 150 days of filing. Pending cases totaled 2,296 in 1984, a nine percent increase from 1983.

The general district courts reported a 1984 caseload of 54,175 new cases and 62,858 hearings. New cases increased by five percent from the previous year while the number of hearings reflected a slight decrease of two percent. Districtwide, the number of criminal and traffic cases grew from their respective 1983 levels while the number of civil cases fell slightly. The 1984 caseload composition was 21 percent criminal, 57 percent traffic and 22 percent civil. The criminal and civil distribution varied most significantly from the statewide distribution. The counties of Amherst and Campbell and the city of Lynchburg reported caseload increases ranging from four to nine percent. The remaining localities showed slight decreases in the cases commenced.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district courts, the four localities posting caseload increases were Bedford (39%), Campbell (8%) and Nelson (8%). Amherst County and the city of Lynchburg recorded caseload reductions of ten and three percent, respectively. The result was an overall six percent rise (466 cases) in the caseload for the district (8,050). Juvenile cases grew by 11 percent and adult cases declined by one percent. Total hearings increased seven percent. Statewide, the Twenty-Fourth had the eighth highest caseload recorded for 1984. The separate categories for juvenile and adult cases also ranked eighth largest in the state. With 1984 completed, the composition of cases was 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult.

The Twenty-Fourth District was served by 18 magistrates who reported nearly 26,000 hours of activity, handled 26,012 telephone inquiries and 7,108 in-person inquiries, and received 35,576 transactions. Eighty-one percent (28,759) of the transactions (35,576) resulted in a process being issued. Requests and processes increased by three percent each. Misdemeanor warrants reflected 72 percent (9,634) of the arrest warrants issued (13,323). Arrest warrants represented 46 percent of the processes. Bonds numbered 7,431 and constituted 26 percent of the processes.

TWENTY-FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Fifth Circuit has the largest number of localities of any circuit in the state. It consists of the counties of Alleghany, Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Craig, Highland and Rockbridge, and the cities of Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Covington, Lexington, Staunton and Waynesboro. The Bureau of the Census listed this circuit with 187,295 residents in 1980. The Department of Planning and Budget projects the population to grow by an additional 25,705 persons by the year 2000.

Judges Rudolph Bumgardner, III, Duncan M. Byrd, Jr., George E. Honts, III, and Thomas H. Wood served the circuit during 1984. The district was authorized seven judgeships. Serving were judges Thomas H. Wood, Joseph E. Hess, Elmer C. Westerman, Jr., William E.Carson, Sr., and Talmage N. Cooley. Judge Wood was elected to the circuit court effective March 15, 1984 and was replaced by Judge Cooley who assumed his duties on July 23, 1984. The area also received regular assistance from Judge Coy Kiser of the Twenty-Fourth District. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations courts were Robert S. Culpepper, John B. Curry, II, and Harrison May. The district court judges utilized, on the average, 17.2 assistance days each during FY 1984. This was slightly higher than the 13.9 assistance day average noted during FY 1984.

A total of 4,292 new cases were commenced in the circuit courts in 1984, a seven percent decline from the previous year. The decrease was the result of 364 (– 14%) fewer civil cases commenced. Criminal cases rose by two percent (35 cases). The majority of the localities recorded caseload reductions. These included the counties of Augusta (– 20%), Highland (– 18%), Bath (– 11%), Rockbridge (– 7%) and Alleghany (– 3%). Also reporting decreased caseloads were the cities of Clifton Forge (– 14%) and Staunton (– 6%). Craig and Botetourt Counties and the cities of Buena Vista and Waynesboro reported caseload increases, most significant of which occurred in Craig County (18%). The circuit reported a final caseload composition of 18 percent law, 36 percent equity, 30 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. There was a six percent increase (236) in the number of cases concluded (4,404) during 1984. Juries were impaneled on 103 occasions. Of the 2,428 civil case dispositions, three-fifths were resolved within 12 months of filing. Four-fifths of the 1976 criminal case terminations were cleared from the court's dockets within five months of initiation.

The Twenty-Fifth's general district courts recorded fewer civil and criminal cases and traffic cases increased only an additional 25 cases. Overall, new cases declined by three percent and numbered 64,374. Hearings decreased by five percent to number 66,921. The individual case types revealed a reduction of 12 percent in criminal cases and four percent in civil cases. The counties of Bath, Craig, Highland, and the city of Clifton Forge all reported substantial caseload reductions in 1984 that ranged from – 19 percent to – 22 percent. Only the city of Lexington reported a significant increase in new cases commenced (31%). Both the cities of Lexington and Waynesboro reported increases in traffic cases of 58 and 80 percent respectively. These increases contributed towards the district's caseload make-up of 70% traffic. The statewide distribution for traffic cases was 55 percent. The criminal distribution of 16 percent was equal to the statewide figure and civil cases accounted for 14 percent of the caseload.

The three judges of the juvenile and domestic relations district courts recorded one less juvenile case and 51 more adult cases in 1984 over the figure for 1983. Overall, this was a one percent increase in new cases to bring the total commenced caseload to 6,192. The number of hearings increased by four percent or an additional 474 hearings. Six localities posted caseload reductions. The change in caseload ranged from a decrease of 27 percent in Bath County to an increase of 33 percent for Botetourt County. The Twenty-Fifth had the identical caseload distribution as the state: 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult.

In 1984, nearly 23,000 activity hours were recorded by the 31 magistrates of the Twenty-Fifth. The magistrates responded to 25,634 public inquiries and processed 25,808 of 29,235 requests (88%). Transactions decreased by eight percent and processes declined by four percent from 1983 figures. Most process activity was given to the issuance of arrest warrants (11,830) of which 85 percent were for misdemeanors. Approximately 9 of every 10 warrant requests were authorized.

TWENTY-SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Sixth Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Clarke, Frederick, Page, Rockingham, Shenandoah and Warren, and the cities of Harrisonburg and Winchester. The 1980 Bureau of the Census reported a population of 209,201 persons. It is anticipated that this number will grow to 262,400, a 25 percent increase by the year 2000. Those under eighteen years old numbered 54,937 (26%) in 1980.

Henry H. Whiting, Joshua L. Robinson, Robert K. Woltz and Perry W. Sarver served as circuit court judges throughout 1984. The district courts were authorized six judgeships. Sitting in the general district courts were Robert E. Hayes, John A. Paul, Harold G. Potts and David G. Simpson. Judge Potts has announced his retirement will be effective July 1, 1985. Norman DeV. Morrison has been elected by the General Assembly to fill his vacancy. Judges B.B. Bowers and Carle F. Germelman, Jr., presided in the juvenile and domestic relations court. Each of the six district court judges used, on the average, 15.8 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the last fiscal year. This was slightly higher than the 13.9 assistance days averaged per judge statewide.

The circuit reported declines of 2 percent for civil cases and 14 percent for criminal cases from 1983 totals of 2,177 and 2,371, respectively. This resulted in an overall eight percent reduction in commenced cases which numbered 4,180 at the close of the year. The highest percentage increases occurred in Page (35%) and Clarke Counties (17%). The city of Winchester and Rockingham County grew by 38 and 2 cases, respectively. Decreases in caseloads were posted by the counties of Warren (−34%), Shenandoah (−10%) and Frederick (−7%). The breakout of cases revealed the following composition: law (16%), equity (35%), felony (39%) and misdemeanor (10%). This differed considerably with the statewide distribution of cases, especially with respect to felony (29% statewide) and misdemeanor (17% statewide) cases. The number of cases reaching disposition was 4,163, a five percent reduction from 1983. Eight percent of this number were resolved by jury trial. The age of concluded civil cases (2,262) indicated that 64 percent or 1,451 were disposed of within one year of filing. Terminated within five months of initiation were 1,644 cases (86%) out of a total of 1,901 criminal cases concluded during the year.

The general district courts of the district reported a 1984 caseload that included 77,249 new cases and 81,992 hearings. The Twenty-Sixth's new caseload ranked seventh largest throughout the state for 1984. New cases increased by more than four percent from the number initiated in 1983. This growth was primarily the result of an additional 2,190 traffic and 1,147 civil cases. The number of hearings held in 1984 was 355 fewer than in the previous year. Clark County and the city of Winchester posted the most notable increases of 26 and 18 percent, respectively. Clark County experienced an increase of 63 percent in civil cases. Page County registered an 18 percent caseload reduction. The district finished the year with a caseload dispersion of 15 percent criminal, 64 percent traffic and 21 percent civil.

Statewide, the juvenile and domestic relations courts had the ninth largest caseload overall, the seventh largest adult caseload, and the tenth highest number of juvenile cases. In 1984, there were 7,284 new cases, eight percent fewer than in 1983. Juvenile cases declined by four percent and adult cases decreased by 13 percent from 1983. Adult cases represented 44 percent of the cases filed in 1984. The number of hearings declined by six percent to number 11,084. Five localities registered reductions in caseloads that ranged from −2 percent to −26 percent (Clarke County). Only Warren and Shenandoah Counties recorded caseload increases.

The 19 magistrates authorized to serve the district in 1984 reported decreases of three and five percent for transactions and processes, respectively. The final 1984 data numbered transactions at 35,167 and processes at nearly 30,000. The magistrates registered nearly 17,000 activity hours in which they responded to about 12,000 telephone and in-person inquiries by the public. Nearly 14,000 arrest warrant processes represented 47 percent of the total processes inssued. Arrest warrant processes were issued for 90 percent of the arrest warrant requests. More than three-fourths of the 7,679 bonds issued were for unsecured bonds. There were 6.8 bonds issued per 10 requests.

TWENTY-SEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Carroll, Floyd, Grayson, Montgomery, Pulaski and Wythe along with the cities of Galax and Radford are included in the Twenty-Seventh Judicial Circuit. The Department of Planning and Budget projects that the 1980 population (199,428) will increase by 24 percent and total 247,600 by the year 2000. The juvenile population reached 49,124 during 1980, 25 percent of the total population.

During 1984, four judges served the circuit: R. William Arthur, Kenneth I. Devore, A. Dow Owens and Duane E. Mink. Judge Arthur retired on January 1, 1985, and elected to replace him was Willis A. Woods. George B. Cooley, James H. Joines and John C. Snidow, Jr., heard general district cases and William F. Thomas, Jr., Jacque Wayne Pierce and James L. Tompkins handled the juvenile and domestic relations cases. During FY 1984, the district judges used 14.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days per judge. Statewide, this measure was 13.9 assistance days per judge.

The circuit recorded a commenced caseload of 4,200 in 1984. This reflected a three percent increase which was attributable to the ten percent (179 cases) rise in criminal cases (1,966). This was partially offset by a two percent decline (45 cases) in civil cases (2,234). The city of Radford posted the most significant increase in caseload (40%), followed by the counties of Wythe (20%) and Grayson (14%). Montgomery (−8%) and Pulaski (−3%) Counties recorded the only decreases in cases. Cases concluded declined by three percent from 1983 and totaled 3,707. Four percent (151) of the cases cleared from the court's dockets were resolved by 122 impaneled juries. A total of 1,455 or 72 percent of 2,024 concluded civil cases reached disposition within 12 months of filing. For the 1,683 criminal cases resolved during the year, 78 percent were cleared from the courts' dockets within five months of initiation. Varying somewhat from the statewide distribution of cases was the circuit's case-type composition of 18 percent law, 35 percent equity, 25 percent felony and 19 percent misdemeanor. The pending caseload increased by 15 percent or nearly 500 cases to number 3,884.

New cases in the general district courts decreased slightly (−3%) in 1984 and totaled 56,010. The caseload reduction resulted primarily because of an 11 percent drop in civil cases and one percent decline in traffic cases. Criminal new cases increased by four percent. An increase of 16 percent was reported by Grayson County. The city of Galax posted the greatest reduction in cases (−13%). The caseload composition was approximately 20% criminal, 60% traffic, and 20% civil. In contrast, the statewide distribution was 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

The thirteen percent increase in cases for the juvenile and domestic relations courts was attributable to the 22 percent rise in the juvenile caseload. The adult cases increased by one percent over 1983 figures. Total commenced cases came to 6,849 new cases of which 4,297 were juvenile and 2,552 were adult. The juvenile caseload was ranked tenth statewide. The number of hearings increased by 17 percent to number 12,706. Districtwide, all localities had caseload increases with the exception of Pulaski County (−2%). The remaining localities had caseload expansions that ranged from three percent (Grayson County and the city of Radford) to 54 percent (Floyd County). The districtwide caseload composition was 63 percent juvenile, similar to the statewide average of 61 percent.

In 1984, there were 10,000 more processes requested (52,442) than processes issued (42,319) for the 23 magistrates of the Twenty-Seventh District. This represented an issuance rate of 81 percent. The district noted the sixth highest ranking in the number of processes issued statewide. The magistrates reported working 29,336 hours. Arrest warrants constituted 38 percent (15,938) of the processes issued. Misdemeanors comprised 82 percent of the warrants issued. There was nearly an equal number of committals (5,717) and releases (5,690). Combined committals and releases equaled the second highest category for processes issued. Bonds numbered 8,170 of which 78 percent were unsecured. Civil warrants totaled 3,842, subpoenas equaled 2,235 and there were 80 search warrants issued.

TWENTY-EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The jurisdiction of the Twenty-Eighth Circuit includes Smyth and Washington Counties and the city of Bristol. According to the 1980 census, this circuit had a population of 98,895 of which 26,953 were less than eighteen years of age. By the year 2000, it is predicted that this jurisdiction will reach a population of 116,800, an 18 percent gain over 1980.

The two circuit judgeships during 1984 were filled by Charles B. Flannagan, II, and J. Aubrey Matthews. General district court cases were handled by Judges David D. Brown and T.L. Hutton, Jr., while Judges Charles H. Smith, Jr., and Eugene E. Lohman heard juvenile and domestic relations cases. The district's four judges used an average of 6.8 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during FY 1984. This was well below the statewide per judge average of 13.9 days.

The two judges of the Twenty-Eighth Circuit noted a ten percent decrease (210 cases) in commenced cases. New cases totaled 1,996 by the close of the year. Civil and criminal categories of cases registered reductions of 7 (54 cases) and 14 percent (156 cases), respectively. All three localities within the circuit posted declines in caseloads: Smyth County (−13%), Washington County (−1%) and the city of Bristol (−15%). The final caseload composition for the circuit was 26 percent law, 39 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 6 percent misdemeanor. The percentage for felony cases was identical with the state average, while the other three categories varied considerably. The number of cases concluded dropped four percent from 1983 and numbered 2,163. There were 86 juries impaneled during the year. The juries disposed of 52 cases or two percent of the dispositions. Of the 1,459 civil cases concluded, 67 percent (975 cases) were disposed of within 12 months of filing. The number of criminal case dispositions (704) resolved within five months of initiation was 588 or 84 percent. The number of cases pending a disposition was reduced by 167 cases or 12 percent.

The general district courts reported decreases in new cases and hearings. The district had 1,037 fewer cases commenced for a total of 25,677 for the year. Each type of case declined: criminal (−5%), traffic (−3%) and civil (−6%). There were 26,384 hearings, 326 fewer than in 1983. The city of Bristol ended the year with an overall decrease of 17 percent in its caseload. This reflected reductions in all three case classifications. Washington County remained relatively unchanged from the previous year. Smyth County had a final increase of eight percent in its caseload. The caseload composition revealed that criminal cases comprised 25 percent, traffic cases represented 58 percent and civil cases constituted 17 percent.

There were 5,593 new cases and 8,733 hearings for the juvenile and domestic relations district courts in 1984. These figures constituted reductions of five (299 cases) and nine percent (854 hearings), respectively. Juvenile cases declined by five percent and adult cases declined by six percent. Juveniles constituted 59 percent of the caseload distribution. Washington County had the largest caseload reduction (−12%) followed by Smyth County (−1%). The city of Bristol noted the only increase in caseload with a three percent rise.

Ten magistrates were authorized for the Twenty-Eighth District during 1984. They reported receiving nearly 26,000 requests for processes during their 13,045 hours of service. Eighty-seven percent or 22,559 of the requests results in a process being issued. Transactions and processes declined by six and five percent, respectively. For the 9,000 requests for arrest warrants, the magistrates issued 939 felony warrants, 6,553 misdemeanor warrants and 457 summonses. Misdemeanors accounted for 82 percent of the warrants. There were 3,438 unsecured bonds issued as compared with 1,378 secured bonds. Bonds were issued for 71 percent of the bond requests. There were 4,250 committals and 3,985 releases issued. In addition, the magistrates also issued 1,378 subpoenas, 31 search warrants and 49 temporary mental detention orders.

Six counties comprise the Twenty-Ninth Judicial Circuit. They are the southwestern counties of Bland, Buchanan, Dickenson, Giles, Russell and Tazewell. With a population listing of 164,226 persons in the 1980 census report, this area is projected to gain another 44,174 citizens by the year 2000. Approximately 51,271 juveniles resided in this circuit in 1980.

Serving the Twenty-Ninth Judicial Circuit during 1984 were Judges Nicholas E. Persin, Glyn R. Phillips and Robert Lee Powell. The general district court judgeships were filled by Thomas J. Bondurant, Wade S. Coates, and Pat B. Hale. Judge Coates retired on October 1, 1984, and Frederick H. Combs was selected to fill the vacant judgeship position. Judges Susan Bundy and J. Wesley McClintock, III, were authorized to serve the juvenile and domestic relations courts. The 21.6 average assistance days used by each district judge was higher than the statewide average of 13.9 days per judge.

With a seven percent decline in commenced cases from 1983, the Twenty-Ninth Circuit recorded a total of 3,737 cases in 1984. Both civil and criminal cases declined by five and ten percent, respectively. The counties posting overall decreases in cases were Buchanan (−18%), Dickenson (−16%), Russell (−15%) and Giles (−7%). Bland and Tazewell Counties reported increased caseloads of 23 and 13 percent, respectively. The final allocation of cases was 28 percent law, 32 percent equity, 22 percent felony and 18 percent misdemeanor. The number of concluded cases reached 4,716 during 1984, a 12 percent rise from the previous year. Four percent (187) of these cases were determined by jury trial. The case aging figures indicated that 54 percent of the 3,131 concluded civil cases were on the courts' dockets less than 12 months. For the 1,585 criminal cases that were terminated in 1984, 69 percent reached disposition within five months of initiation. A substantial reduction of 979 cases (−26%) occurred in the pending caseload from 1983 (3,747) to the close of 1984 (2,768).

Within the general district courts, Bland County was the only locality to report an increase in caseload (7%). The other localities posted caseload reductions that ranged from a negative 3 percent (Tazewell County) to a negative 16 percent (Giles County). These caseload reductions were evident in the four percent decrease in new cases districtwide. By the end of 1984, commenced cases totaled 46,459. The number of hearings (48,438) also decreased (−9%). Among the case types, criminal cases declined most (−17%) and civil cases decreased by four percent. Only traffic cases posted an increase (1%). The final caseload distribution was 18 percent criminal, 58 percent traffic and 24 percent civil. This differed moderately from the statewide distribution of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts remained relatively unchanged from the previous year with regard to caseload and hearings. New cases decreased by eight cases to number 5,992 in 1984. Hearings declined by 39 from 1983 and reached 12,660. At the close of 1984 there was a four percent reduction in juvenile cases and a five percent rise in adult cases for the year. The Twenty-Ninth J&DR Courts ended 1984 with the tenth highest number of adult cases among all districts. The counties of Buchanan and Dickenson recorded the most significant changes in caseloads. While Buchanan County noted a 19 percent decline in its caseload, Dickenson County recorded a 19 percent increase in its caseload. The final caseload distribution came to 56 percent juvenile and 44 percent adult.

The 21 magistrates of this district received 30 percent more process requests in 1984. Processes issued declined by 16 percent. The district ranked seventh highest in the number of processes with 41,003 or 58 percent of the processes requested (70,137). The magistrates reported 23,594 activity hours during which they responded to more than 27,000 public inquiries. The most significant process activity included the issuance of 11,741 arrest warrants, 61 percent of those requested. Eighty-six percent of the warrants were issued for misdemeanors. Of the 20,209 bonds requested, 7,620 or 38 percent were issued. A significant number of committals (5,561) and releases (4,727) were issued as well. Civil warrants totaled 7,194. Other process activity included the issuance of 1,686 subpoenas, 48 search warrants, 129 mental detention orders and the receipt of 2,297 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors.

THIRTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The southwestern counties of Lee, Scott and Wise, along with the city of Norton comprise the Thirtieth Judicial Circuit. Of a total 1980 census population of 99,644 persons, 29,586 were juveniles. By the year 2000, the circuit is expected to increase by 26 percent from 1980 to a population of 125,400 residents.

During 1984, the three authorized circuit judgeships were filled by S.W. Coleman, III, M.M. Long, Jr., and John Robert Stump. Judge Coleman was elected to a new Court of Appeals effective January 1, 1985. The General Assembly elected William C. Fugate of the general district court to fill the position. The district was authorized four judgeships in 1984. Hearing cases in the general district courts were Judge Monti S. Meeks and Judge Fugate. Elected to fill the vacancy left by Judge Fugate was R. Larry Lewis whose term began March 1, 1985. Juvenile and domestic relations cases were heard by Judges James C. Roberson and David B. Summerfield. The district judges averaged 19.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during FY 1984.

There were significantly fewer cases (−20%) recorded in the circuit during 1984 (2,807) than during 1983 (3,495). The greatest percentage change occurred in commenced civil cases (1,564) which declined by 23 percent. Criminal cases (1,243) dropped by 15 percent from 1983. Lee and Wise Counties each noted 23 percent caseload reductions. Wise County had nearly 500 fewer cases and Lee County recorded almost 200 less cases. Scott County posted only three additional cases (1%). By the close of 1984, the circuit reported that 2,661 cases had reached disposition. This was 15 percent or 474 cases fewer than the 3,135 concluded in 1983. One-tenth (273) of these cases were disposed through jury trials. Of the 1,421 civil cases concluded during 1984, 65 percent (917) reached a disposition within one year of initiation. Three-fifths of the 1,240 criminal case terminations were resolved within five months of filing. The final disposition of cases was 23 percent law, 33 percent equity, 20 percent felony and 24 percent misdemeanor. This varied from the statewide distribution for felony (29%) and misdemeanor (17%) cases. The pending caseload grew by an additional 146 cases and totaled 4,589.

The general district courts handled 27,427 new cases and 45,362 hearings during the past year. These figures represented decreases of three and one percent, respectively, below the comparable 1983 levels. The decline in new cases was the result of 675 fewer (−7%) criminal cases and 263 less (−4%) civil cases. Traffic cases increased only slightly (66 cases) over the number recorded in 1983. The 1984 general district new cases were divided 34 percent criminal, 44 percent traffic and 22 percent civil. This distribution was weighted more heavily with criminal cases than the statewide caseload composition of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. Districtwide, Lee County reported the only increase in caseload (5%). Scott County reported a decline of one percent and Wise County noted a caseload reduction of six percent.

The counties of Scott and Lee recorded substantial caseload increases in the juvenile and domestic relations courts. Scott County had a 49 percent growth increase in new cases. Wise County noted a two percent caseload reduction. This activity resulted in a district new caseload of 4,784, a seven percent increase from 1983. The adult caseload grew by 15 percent and juvenile cases decreased by two percent. The number of hearings increased by four percent. The composition of cases for the district was 47 percent juvenile and 53 percent adult. This was the only district where adult cases (2,518) outnumbered juvenile cases (2,266).

Working 15,053 hours in 1984, the 12 magistrates of the Thirtieth received 13,050 inquiries from the public and 40,293 process requests. Process requests increased by 28 percent and those issued (26,583) decreased by one percent. This represented an issuance rate of 66 percent. Of the 8,031 arrest warrants issued, 1,177 were for felonies, 6,691 were for misdemeanors and 163 were for summonses. Most of the bonds issued were unsecured (66%). The 9,189 committals and releases issued constituted 35 percent of the processes.

THIRTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The northern Virginia county of Prince William and the cities of Manassas and Manassas Park combine to form the Thirty-First Judicial Circuit. There was a remarkable 50 percent increase in the circuit's population from 1970 to 1980. The circuit is expected to increase another 65 percent by the year 2000 from the 1980 level. The projected increase is from 166,665 (1980 census) to 275,600. This area recorded the highest percentage (36%) of juveniles among all circuits.

During 1984, three judges served the circuit: H. Selwyn Smith, Jr., Percy Thornton, Jr., and Herman A. Whisenant, Jr. Five district court judges were authorized for the Thirtieth. Serving in the general district courts were Frank A. Hoss, Jr., William R. Murphy and Joseph A. Gallagher. Judges Raymond O. Kellam and Patrick D. Molinari handled the juvenile and domestic relations cases. The district court judges utilized the lowest average number of assistance days per judge (1.51) among all 32 districts.

The Thirty-First Circuit recorded 4,343 cases commenced in 1984, a one percent increase from 1983. The slight caseload expansion resulted from a six percent (88 case) growth in criminal cases which numbered 1,649. The number of civil cases (2,694) declined by two percent (44 cases). The distribution of the case-types was 23 percent law, 39 percent equity, 25 percent felony and 13 percent misdemeanor. To some extent, this varied from the statewide compositions of 21 percent law, 33 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor. There was an increase of 12 percent (411) in the number of cases concluded (3,923) during 1984. Approximately three percent of these cases (135) were resolved by 133 impaneled juries. Within 12 months of filing, 73 percent (1,783) of the 2,448 civil cases were cleared from the court's dockets. The age of concluded criminal cases (1,475) revealed that 77 percent were disposed of within five months of filing. Pending cases equaled 4,152 during 1984, an 11 percent increase from the previous year.

The general district court serving the Thirty-First District noted reductions in the total cases filed (−1%) and in the total hearings (−6%) in 1984. Traffic and civil cases each declined by two percent. Only criminal cases registered an increase (10%). The caseload totals for 1984 were 71,011 new cases and 63,883 hearings. The final composition of these district figures resulted in a 72 percent distribution of cases attributed solely to traffic. This was substantially higher than the statewide average for traffic cases (55%).

There were 6,676 new juvenile cases and 2,962 new adult cases in 1984. This reflected a 69 percent and 31 percent split for the juvenile and domestic relations district courts. New cases totaled 9,638, a 9 percent increase over 1983. The juvenile number reflected a seven percent increase and adult cases grew by 12 percent. Hearings increased by five percent. Statewide, the district was recorded as having the sixth highest overall caseload, the sixth largest juvenile caseload and the ninth highest adult caseload.

The 11 magistrates authorized to serve this district issued nearly 41,000 processes. This was sufficient to be ranked eighth highest statewide. With 49,188 transactions, the rate of issuance was 83 percent. Both processes and requests for processes each increased marginally by two percent in 1984. Activity hours were recorded at 17,598. Together, the 9,174 bonds and 11,256 arrest warrants represented exactly one-half of all process activity. Ninety-three percent of the arrest warrants requested resulted in an issuance. Of the 16,629 bond requests, 55 percent were granted. Committals (7,447) and releases (6,642) represented 34 percent of the processes. Also issued by the magistrates were 3,294 subpoenas, 69 search warrants, 114 temporary mental detention orders and 389 civil warrants. The magistrates also received prepayments on 1,862 traffic infractions and 663 Class IV misdemeanors.
